Does Jitney Club Evade New Regulations

Another week has passed and no licenses have been issued by the Selectmen of Weymouth to operators of jitneys as a public conveyance. One application has been received by the Selectmen and as he was not willing to conform to the newly adopted regulations, the license was refused. The Selectmen have however granted more licenses under Class A, as follows: To Karl H. Barnett, Theodore E. Connor, Francis W. Rea, Joseph H. Franks, Samuel J. Ross and Burton, to carry persons specified to and from work in private automobiles. The Selectmen have appointed Percy L. Bicknell as Jitney Inspector, and have instructed the Chief of Police to enforce the new jitney regulations. The first of the week it was reported that a "Jitney Club" had been formed. Persons desiring to ride in jitneys from their homes to the Fore River plant or the various shoe factories could, upon election, become members of this club.

Dues are assessed on each member sufficient to meet the expenses of the operation of the jitneys. The sponsors of the club hold that the jitney regulations of the town do not apply to the club. The Selectmen say that the evasion of the law will not work. Wednesday morning acting under orders of the Board of Selectmen officer George W. Nash of the Weymouth police arrested William McCarthy and Thomas J. Dolan, both of Weymouth for operating jitneys in violation of the jitney ordinance recently adopted by the town of Weymouth. The men were arraigned before Judge Thomas McNamara that morning and the case against both was continued to Jan. 3. The men were operating jitneys for the convenience of the North Weymouth social club. McCarthy said that the jitneys had been leased to the social club and used only by members of the organization. Passengers in the jitneys when the drivers were arrested on Wednesday carried membership cards which entitled them to transportation. The cards were signed by Joseph McKinnon, treasurer of the club. The jitneys operated between the Fore River yards, North Weymouth, and the various shoe shops in East and South Weymouth. The men arrested had engaged lawyers and will fight the case. Another question has arisen as to the legality of the jitney regulations themselves, as they have not been published in a newspaper as required by law of all town by-laws and regulations.

Weymouth Shoe Company Insures Its Employees

This week the Stetson Shoe Company of South Weymouth announced to its 400 or more employees that beginning Dec. 17 each would be insured at the company's expense. There will be no physical examinations, as all are taken on the group plan, and the policies issued will be for one year, to be renewed. Each person in the company's employ on Dec. 17 will be insured for $500, which is the minimum sum, while those that have been with the company for five years will be insured for $1000, which is the maximum amount. The dependent designated as beneficiary may be husband, wife, children, parents or any relative actually dependent. In case an employee leaves the company's service his policy will be canceled.

At Christmas the employees of the Weymouth Light & Power Company were given a life insurance and sick benefit policy in the Travelers Life Insurance Company. By paying $1 per month the amount of the policy

Gas Supply of District Jeopardized by Fire

For an hour New Years Day the gas supply of the Old Colony Gas Co. which supplies Weymouth, Braintree and many other towns was threatened by fire at the plant of the company. About 10:15 box 23 was pulled and the firemen upon arriving found a brilliant illumination in the new two story brick building occupied by the boilers and generators. It was in the generator room that the fire started while employees were making a shift from one set to another. Prompt and heroic work by employees before the department arrived counted in checking the blaze. Weymouth and Braintree apparatus and firemen responded and laid two lines of hose from the hydrant opposite the works, one from the hydrant on Quincy avenue north of Allen street, and one from Commercial street near the Union church across both the street railway and the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. The loss was chiefly to the steel roofing, and the tar and gas consumed; possibly $1,000; covered by insurance. The recall came at 11:30 and a few minutes later Vice President E. M. Farnsworth, Jr., arrived on the scene.

ROBERT MCINTOSH
Robert McIntosh, formerly on the board of Selectmen of Weymouth and a Representative to the Legislature, died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward A. Powers, 15 Lanesville avenue. Mr. McIntosh was born in Belfast, Ireland, and when 17 years old he came to Boston and then to Weymouth and entered the employ of the old Weymouth Gas Company, being a clerk for 37 years. When the Church of the Immaculate Conception was built he became sexton and served in that capacity 40 years. He was a member of Weymouth Council, K. of C. Mr. McIntosh leaves seven children Mrs. Charlotte Donahue of Braintree, Dr. John D. McIntosh of Rockland, Mrs. Edward A. Powers of East Weymouth, Robert E. McIntosh of Brockton, Frank and Miss Mary McIntosh of East Weymouth and William McIntosh of Rockland. Funeral services were held this morning at the home of Mrs. Powers at 8:30 and a solemn high mass of requiem being celebrated at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, at 9 o'clock.

A vast amount of work now remains to be done which the intervention of war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that a very large capital expenditure ought to be made to make up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war, and to prepare the roads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country.

WALKER D. HINES,
Director General of Railroads.

Work more—Produce more—
Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

President Proclaims Return of the Railroads to Their Owners on March 1.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR BILL

First Shipment of Deported Reds on Its Way to Russia—Admiral Sims Refuses Medal and Accuses Secretary Daniels of Injustice.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

President Wilson, having been convinced of the dangers that would be incurred if he carried out his announced intention to return the railroads to their owners on January 1, since congress could not or would not pass the necessary legislation by that time, yielded to the situation and on Wednesday issued a proclamation setting the date for the return as March 1. In the intervening two months, he believes, the railroads and express companies should be able to prepare adequately for the resumption of their business under their ownership and control. This action pleased such congressmen and railway officials as were interviewed, and the latter expressed the belief that the roads would be ready by March 1 to carry on. Of course they expect congress to enact suitable legislation and the interstate commerce bill to permit such rate increases as will make it possible for them to borrow the money for needed equipment, extensions and improvements.

Immediately after the issuance of the president's proclamation Director General Hines made an appeal to all officers and employees of railroads to redouble their efforts to produce the best and most economical railroad service possible during the remaining period of federal control. This really was directed especially to the railway brotherhoods, which have been holding in abeyance their demands for wage increases amounting to nearly a billion a year to see whether the government's efforts to bring down the cost of living would have any marked effect. They do not seem impressed by the present success of those efforts and are growing restless. It remains to be seen whether they will now wait much longer for the decrease in prices, which the attorney general has said are likely to begin to appear next month.

The prospects for early legislation for the return of the railroads to their owners have brightened very considerably. The senate having passed the Cummins bill, conferences began to adjust the differences between that and the Esch bill passed by the house. The clauses concerning wage adjustment, the forbidding of strikes and voluntary or compulsory arbitration presented the greatest difficulties. The conferees said they hoped to make considerable progress before congress reconvenes on January 5.

Loud cheers, metaphorically speaking, sped on its way the departing transport Buford when at the beginning of the week it started for Europe. No one wanted ever to see any part of the cargo come back, for that cargo consisted of 249 rabid and dangerous "reds" who were being deported by Uncle Sam for his own sake. True to type, the radicals cursed the United States venomously as they were herded onto the vessel, and threatened awful deeds when they returned. They were headed by Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, who for many years have preached their poisonous doctrine in America almost unbridled. The delectable Emma shouted, as she passed up the gangplank: "This is the beginning of the end of the United States." Just where the unsavory gang is to be landed was unknown even to the captain of the transport until he opened his orders at sea. It was presumed, however, that they would be put ashore at a Finnish port and sent thence by rail to Russia.

If the Chicago Federation of Labor was seeking a way to "get in bad" it could not have found a better one than in its action endorsing the work of Emma Goldman and Berkman and announcing its opposition to the deportation of aliens who are members of any union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. No such brazen demand for the exemption of any "class" from punishment for crime was ever heard, at least in America. The decent citizens of America, who after all form the vast majority in the country, have shown plainly that they are tired of the alien radicals and their vicious activities, and the sooner union labor recognizes that fact, the better for it. As might have been expected, William Z. Foster, erstwhile apostle of syndicalism and sabotage and organizer of the fabled out steel strike, supported the anti-deportation movement in the Chicago meeting. It is planned to extend throughout the land the plan to save union men from "banishment and exile."

A recent example of the work of the radicals was revealed when the army transport America bringing the peace commission from France, docked at Hoboken with 11 members of the crew in irons charged with mutiny and other crimes. The troubles, which broke out on the eastward trip, were instigated by bolshevik and I. W. W. agitators.

Admiral Sims, who commanded America's naval fighting forces in the war, started what may develop into a real naval scandal when he declined to accept the Distinguished Service medal awarded him by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. The admiral, in his letter to the secretary, accused the latter of injustice and discrimination in making up the list of those to receive medals and navy crosses, and expressed his indignation at the giving of the medal to swivel chair officers and to officers who lost their vessels at sea under circumstances that might not be to their credit, while it was refused to others who displayed great bravery and gallantry in combat. Many of the latter, recommended for the decoration by Admiral Sims and approved by the board of awards, were cut from the list by Mr. Daniels. The admiral said such injustice would go far toward destroying the morale of the navy and he did not wish to countenance it by accepting the medal awarded to him.

Secretary Daniels said there was no basis for the charge of favoritism, that he was determined to decorate every commander of a torpedoed ship—his son-in-law, Commander Bagley, is in that category—and that the list is not yet closed. It was said in Washington that the admiral's action was very likely to bring about a congressional investigation of the whole matter.

Great Britain will never consent to separation of Ireland from the empire, but is willing to give it the largest possible measure of self-government and to give this at once. Such was the statement of premier Lloyd George to parliament, and he then proceeded to give an outline of the home rule bill which the government will introduce when parliament reassembles. The measure will create two legislatures somewhat on the American model, one for the southern part of Ireland and the Roman Catholic part of Ulster, and the other for Protestant Ulster. Above them will be the council of Ireland, elected by the two legislatures. The latter bodies have the power to combine at any time without the consent of the British parliament. All powers not reserved to the imperial British parliament are given to the legislatures. These reserved powers include peace and war, foreign affairs, the army and navy, defense, treason, trade outside of Ireland, navigation, wireless and cable, coinage, trade marks, light-houses, and the appointment of the higher judiciary until the legislatures agree on a plan for the appointment of judges. Also reserved are the income tax, customs and excise, but the excise may be reclaimed by Ireland by agreement of the legislatures. Ireland is to collect all of the taxes and retain all but a fair contribution to the imperial expenses.

The house of commons as a whole received the scheme with approval, but there is little hope that it will please any of the Irish factions. In that fact, it is said, lies the best chance of its success. Lloyd George took occasion to say what he thought of the recent attempt to assassinate Viscount French, lord lieutenant of Ireland. He declared it was not only despicable and dastardly, but one of the most foolhardy political crimes in history.

Delay of the Germans in signing the protocol rendered futile the hopes of the supreme council that peace would be proclaimed by Christmas. Though the council had indicated that it would lessen its demands for reparation for the scuttling of the interned German war vessels if the Germans could prove that they could not turn over the material required, Von Lersner, chief of the German delegation, felt it necessary to carry the amended terms to Berlin for submission to the government. It was announced in London that Premier Lloyd George would go to Paris this week to confer with Clemenceau.

Addressing the chamber of deputies, the French premier made the first authoritative statement concerning the conference in London. The two principal decisions made, he said, were not to make peace and not to compromise with the soviet government of Russia. The allies were determined, he added to be the allies of all peoples attacked by bolshevism and would maintain a barbed wire around Russia, notably by aiding the Poles, Roumanians and others along the frontiers. He expressed full confidence in the Anglo-Franco-American pact and predicted a solution of the Fiume difficulty. The chamber thereupon gave the government a vote of confidence, 153 to 71.

Really, the Fiume dispute seems at this writing to be on the eve of settlement. The Italian cabinet has approved an agreement with D'Annunzio on the basis of proposals made by the government. This, it was reported, was that Italy should keep in its possession the whole of the armistice line, confirming the right of Fiume to decide its own fate and assisting it financially to resume its activities under the regime of a free port. The recent plebiscite in Fiume resulted in 75 per cent of the votes being cast in favor of the Italian government's plan for the future occupation of the city. It was said that Captain D'Annunzio declared he would not accept this result and that he departed from the city.

As for Russia, the bolsheviks seem to be getting along very well in a military way. They have beaten Petture and his Ukrainian army, and are said to have cut off the retreat of Denikin's volunteers so that their only way of escape is into Roumania. The Estonians and the bolsheviks, it is announced, agreed on the questions of frontiers and military guarantees.

A compromise proposal concerning the peace treaty was formulated last week by Senator King of Utah, a Democrat who supported most of the Lodge reservations. Taking these as a basis, he so modified the wording that he hoped it would be acceptable to all the senators who favor the ratification of the treaty. Senator Hitchcock was not so sanguine that the King plan would solve the tangle.

The bituminous coal operators, after registering an objection to the statement that they had agreed to the terms of the settlement with the strikers, have accepted the agreement, at least in the central competitive field. The president named the commission that is to inquire into the situation and determine wages and conditions. He appointed Henry M. Robinson, John P. White and Rembrandt Peale, representing respectively the public, the miners and the operators. Already some of the larger operators have let it be known that they intend to pass on to their customers the 14 per cent advance in wages, but the federal department of justice officials say such action will result in prosecutions if the consumer is asked to pay more.

SEE NEED OF GOOD ROADS

"Doughboys" Who Served in France Impressed by the Excellence of That Country's Highways.

Signs multiply that the returning soldier is to be the strongest of all apostles of good roads. He knows that except for the network of highways leading to Verdun not even the heroic poilu could have kept the Germans from passing. Day and night, as long as the peril lasted, an unending line of motor trucks rolled into the threatened region and back again. On a scale only slightly less impressive, it was always so when there was a "show on." In the minds of our soldiers, however, the military need of stone roads seems less important than the commercial need, and always a deep sense seems present of the beauty of the smooth and shaded highway. The Amaroc News, official organ of our army on the Rhine, points out that of the 2,750,000 miles of highway in the United States, less than 275,000 miles, or one in ten, has any form of surface whatever. But it becomes lyric when it notes that in France "each road, it matters not how small or how seldom used, has its quota of beautiful shade trees, whose limbs form an arch to protect the traveler from the sun." The American legion will have posts throughout the land, and wherever there is a post there will be a band of men who know the value of easy communication and who know how to have their way.—New York Times.

FOR MORE COMMUNITY MUSIC

Boston Newspaper Makes Strong Point of Its Value in Creating a Sense of Unity.

The growth of community music means many things, remarks the Boston Herald. It means an endless source of pure pleasure to those who listen, and far more to those who participate. It means a mighty stimulus to the love and understanding of good music. It means that at last we are beginning to weary of being entertained by others and mean to create and perform our own music, through our own efforts. Most important of all, it means that America is discovering at last that she is a united nation and is expressing her joyful sense of unity in song.

Let us see that the children have their share in this national awakening, a voice in this national chorus. Let every village, town and city gather its young people and train them for a community chorus or orchestra. There could be no surer means of making them loyal to each other and to their country and of preparing a musical future for the nation.

The world war has taught us, for one thing, how to come together as a community for spiritual expression in song. We shall be the richer if we preserve and cultivate this practice.

For Home Builders to Decide.

The first question to confront the home builders is: "In what section shall we locate?" That is a question for the individual to decide, but the things he should look at carefully and answer before buying are: Is it a beautiful location? Is the transportation service good? Has the town complete sewerage system? Is the water supply good? Can gas and electricity be supplied at a reasonable rate? Are there city conveniences, such as mail delivery, fire and police protection, good schools, churches, clubs, and, last but not least, what is the possible future of the place? Is it well protected by restrictions for residential purposes? Will two-family or apartment houses encroach or business come too near? It is the restrictions on the surrounding property that are of vital interest to the purchaser, not the restrictions on the piece being bought. You know what you are going to do and you also want to know what others in the vicinity could do, should they be so disposed.

Primer on Billboards.

A little primer on the city and its billboard problem:

"Haven't the property owners a right to do as they please with their property?"

The United States Supreme court said in a decision in 1908: "The state as quasi sovereign and representative of the interest of the public has a standing in court to protect the atmosphere, the water and the forests within its territory, irrespective of the assent or dissent of the private owners immediately concerned."

"But does this right apply specifically to billboards?"

Yes. In 1917 the Supreme court held: "A city, exercising the police power may prohibit the erection of billboards in residence districts in the interest of the safety, morality, health and decency of the community."—Kansas City Star.

City and Rural Home Builders Like Small Houses That Contain All Present-Day Conveniences—

By WM. A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

This is the season of the year when those who expect to build a home next spring are studying home building designs. Undoubtedly they have fixed in their minds about the sort of house they will build. But the decision will be influenced by the designs of houses they see and by the exteriors and interiors of the homes of the friends they visit. Nevertheless, building a home is an important step, and the house should not be selected without a careful study of plans and consideration of what the family needs.

One of the first decisions to be made is in regard to the materials to be used. In a great many minds, the thought of a house brings a picture of a frame building of wood. To others, brick will be the material, while some will consider hollow building tile, or cement blocks. Each material has its advantages and disadvantages. But, when arguments for and against the different materials are summed up, it finally becomes a matter of individual taste.

In practically every city the majority of houses erected at the present time are of brick, either of solid brick or of brick over frame, or hollow tile. Brick has a good, substantial appearance and has the advantages of providing a home that is warm in winter and cool in summer. And at present prices there is little difference in cost between any of the materials.

Herewith is shown a home building design that is most popular. It is a five-room brick bungalow that is attractive in exterior appearance and has a room arrangement that is convenient and will make a most comfortable home. While the rooms are small in number, they are of good size, and will provide accommodations for the average family.

The attractive feature of the exterior of this house is the porch. It is 26 by 10 feet in dimensions, which is a convenient arrangement. Plenty of closet space is provided.

A narrow stair, opening out of the dining room, leads to the attic over the rear half of the house. It will be noted that the roof is raised sufficiently to permit of a good-sized room in the attic to be used either for storage or as a sleeping apartment.

The basement extends under the whole building and provides ample space for the heating plant, the fuel room, and rooms for the storage of fruits and vegetables and the various garden tools, etc.

This type of house is not only economical to build, but it is a good investment. It is of a size that is readily salable and has a room arrangement that will appeal to a majority of buyers.

The most satisfactory way to secure a home of one's own is to build it. When plans for the building have been selected, the owner knows exactly what he will get, and that it will be the sort of house that he and his family want.

Keep Community Buildings.

One result of neighborhood and community activity during the war has been the increasing desire in many regions to make this work permanent. To this end certain neighborhoods are preparing to acquire buildings originally erected for other purposes and transform them into community centers. Other towns which have temporarily maintained headquarters for soldiers camping in their vicinity propose to make these headquarters per-size that makes it a place where the members of the family will congregate in summer. The pergola effect of the roof, the artistic columns, the panel effect in the front wall and the stone trim combine to make it pleasing in appearance.

The house is of standard brick construction with a veneer of face brick. It is 26 feet wide and 48 feet long, a size and shape suitable for a narrow city lot. However, its lines are such that it will fit almost any size lot, and when surrounded with shrubs and flowers on a large plot will be an exceptionally good looking building.

The five rooms, as shown by the floor plan, are living and dining rooms, two bedrooms and kitchen, and, of course, a bathroom. How conveniently these rooms are arranged can be readily seen by a glance at the floor plan.

The living room is 23 feet long and 13 feet wide, extending across the front of the house. The entrance door is at one end, and there are two broad windows in the front wall and two smaller windows in the end wall, which makes the room sunny and cheerful. Cheerfulness in the winter is contributed by the open fireplace.

Back of the living room on one side are ranged the dining room and kitchen; on the other, connected by a short hall, are the two bedrooms, with the bathroom between.

The dining room is an exceptionally large room for this type of house, being 12 by 17 feet. It has a set of four windows in the outside wall, making it a light and cheerful room. The kitchen is 10 by 11 feet, and has additional space in the pantry and entry way, the latter opening onto a small rear porch.

The front bedroom is 11 feet 6 inches by 12 feet, and the rear bedroom is 10 feet 6 inches by 13 feet. The location of the bathroom, opposite the entrance to the hall from the dining room, is a manent and broaden the scope of their service to the benefit of all. An interesting feature of the movement is the construction of community houses as memorials to the soldiers who died in the great war. Many of the community buildings are designed for the use of farmers and their families on business visits to the cities, according to information reaching the United States department of agriculture.

Be Glad You Have Not a Billion.

What does a billion mean to you? Well, take the Brooklyn bridge—one of the engineering wonders of the world—as a basis of comparison. Thirteen long years were required to build it. Thousands of lives went into its making. It cost $21,000,000. Yet with $1,000,000,000 we would have sufficient to build forty-eight Brooklyn bridges says the Popular Science Monthly. Here's another way of comprehending 1,000,000,000. Suppose that in the summer of 1870 a paying teller had started counting $1 bills. Counting at the rate of 150 a minute, and working eight hours a day, 365 days a year, allowing for Sundays, holidays and a short vacation, he would have handed out his last bill in the summer of 1916.

Removing Ashes by Suction.

Ashes are now being removed from certain large buildings in New York city by a sort of magnified vacuum cleaner system, with entire success and relief from dust, says the Popular Mechanics magazine in an illustrated article. Before the boiler plant in each building is a concrete pit three feet in width and depth, from which a pipe extends to the street level and terminates beneath the sidewalk. A truck carrying the apparatus, connects its suction pipe with this terminal, and a powerful blower quickly extracts the ashes, which enter a bin and are subsequently dumped into another truck to be carted away.

Is Your Motor Extravagant in Gasoline?

That depends largely on the quality of your gasoline and the mixture you use.

With high quality, uniform gasoline and the carburetor adjusted to insure complete, clean combustion, any motor will show gasoline economy and dependable power whether crawling in traffic or pulling up a heavy grade. The careful, rigid processes of refining and testing SOCONY Motor Gasoline guarantee its high quality and uniformity. Simply adjust your carburetor to SOCONY and stick to it. Then you'll get big mileage out of your gasoline. It is uniform, rapid-fire, clean-burning and power-full wherever you get it. For motoring economy standardize on SOCONY.

Progressing Rapidly.

For the fourth time a new baby had arrived at the home of Robert's sister Nellie. When informed of the event one of his aunts told him in an impressive manner that he was now an uncle for the fourth time. Rather fussed, the little fellow answered: "Goodness me, if things keep on I'll soon be a grandpa."

Turtle Unstops Sewer.

To open a stopped sewer pipe, Frank Ward of Richmond, Mo., caught a small turtle and cut a small hole in its shell. Then he tied a string in the hole and started the turtle through the sewer pipe. Whenever the turtle stopped a pull on the string started it clawing its way forward again until the pipe was clear.

International Courtesy.

Foreign vessels entering United States ports are obliged to display only the flag of the country to which they belong. It is customary, however, for steamers to carry the United States flag at the foremast when entering United States ports, but this is merely a matter of international courtesy and is not compulsory.

Why Do You
Read Newspapers?

Right away you say "to know what's going on everywhere, to be well informed."

You read the front page for the most important news.

There's at least one more page that you turn to regularly, probably several pages.

Perhaps it's the church, or local, or club and social page, or page of news.

At any rate you want to have up-to-date information on whatever interests you.

Do you read the advertising columns regularly?

Do you know that they are one of the most important features of your newspaper?

You are interested in whatever will save you money, time and labor.

Read the advertisements to learn what is new—what you need—and where to find it.

The newspaper advertisements will tell you how to increase your knowledge and your income.

Read them faithfully.

CLUB and SOCIAL

—Miss Elsie Hemmingway, a popular young lady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitley Hemmingway of 79 Richmond street, and John Phelan of Methuen, were married at Trinity Episcopal Church Friday evening by the rector, Rev. William Hyde. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Cissy Hemmingway, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Byron Nichols best man. Miss Nellie Chase played the wedding march. The bride wore a costume of white crepe de chine with veil caught up with lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore coral crepe de chine. Both carried bouquets of white carnations. The couple were the recipients of many handsome gifts. The bride is a member of Trinity church, and secretary of the church guild. The groom who recently returned from overseas, was a lieutenant in the army. Mr. and Mrs. Phelan left after the reception on their wedding trip. They will reside in New York city.

—Miss Barbara Cole is spending the holiday vacation from her studies at Bradford Academy at her home on Main street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Ford of Main street gave a Christmas party to the children of the neighborhood last Wednesday afternoon. The children gathered out of doors about a beautiful tree, which was decorated with appropriate colors, and Christmas trimmings, and enjoyed games and sang Christmas carols, after which gifts were presented to each guest. Candy and fruit was also given to the children.

—Mrs. Gordon Willis and Miss Frances Wheeler spent Christmas with their brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Wheeler, at Scarsdale, New York.

—Mrs. H. F. Perry entertained a party of young friends last Friday evening in honor of Joseph Sweeney of Bristol, Conn. who is home over the holidays. Games, music and a Christmas tree made up the evenings entertainment, and a lunch was served. The hostess was assisted by Miss Annie Amabile and Miss Alice Sweeney.

—Miss M. M. Hunt and her mother Mrs. Mercy Hunt have been enjoying a visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hunt of Stoneham.

—Cards have recently been received by friends from Archie Heffernan at Miami, Florida, who is visiting his brother David, formerly of this town but now an attorney in a place near Miami. Archie served with Co. B, 101st Engineers, throughout the war and upon receiving his discharge from the army he reopened his office in Boston, doing business as an insurance broker, and commuting to Boston from his home on Hill street. He plans to remain in Florida for the winter, and perhaps permanently.

—Miss Jennie Richmond has been on a visit to her cousin Russell Pray in Philadelphia, Pa.

—Miss Ellen Adlington was 86 years old Wednesday and her friends remembered her with a post card shower. In the evening a large delegation from Trinity Episcopal church of which she has been for years a member, called at her home on Franklin street and extended congratulations and left many happy reminders of the occasion.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Frew of Staten Island, N. Y., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Glines of Sterling road.

—Miss Minnie L. Jesse of South Weymouth has been awarded a gold medal for attaining the greatest efficiency in penmanship at Burdett College, Boston.

—Miss Evelyn Silvester is spending the holidays at her home in Charlotte, North Carolina.

—Miss L. May Chessman is spending two weeks in the South, visiting Washington, Old Point Comfort, and observing the industrial work at Hampton Institute, Virginia.

—Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., held their regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon with Mrs. Harriet B. Bachelder. Quite a little business was transacted. Later there were piano solos by Miss Katherine Davenport and a Christmas tree was dismantled and gifts distributed to the members. Mrs. Grace M. Walsh and Mrs. L. F. Bates were in charge of the tree. Refreshments were served by the hostess and Mrs. W. B. Clapp, and a social hour followed.

—The marriage has been announced of Miss Bertha Frances Doran of Bridgeport, Conn., and Lieut. J. S. Wheatley of Beverly, Mass. Miss Doran is a former resident of South Weymouth.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be January 5, in the Masonic Temple at 2.30. There will be a current events paper read by Rev. Elbert W. Whipple. Miss Mary Parker Dunning will speak on the costume travel and talk in the Country of the Golden Dragon, and Miss Boyden of the Brown church of Brockton will give contralto solos.

The ministers of Weymouth will be guests of the club at this meeting, but owing to the lengthy vacation in the schools the invitation to the teachers will be postponed until later, the date to be announced.

—The Weymouth Catholic Club will resume activities on Monday, Jan. 12, when meetings will be held the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

—At the First Universalist church at Quincy on New Years Eve, Miss Rachael Payson of that city became the bride of G. Arnold Prescott of Braintree. The double ring ceremony was used. A reception followed in front of the altar. Mr. and Mrs. Prescott will reside on Pond street, South Braintree. Mr. Prescott holds a responsible position in the electrical department at The Fore River.

—Miss Ellen Barter and Arthur Bancourt of East Weymouth were bridesmaid and best man on Monday evening at the marriage of Jennie M. Parry and John W. Magee at Bridge-water.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Brayshaw of Sea street will observe their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Sunday, Jan. 4. There will be a reunion of the family during the day and open house to their many friends will be observed from four till eight.

—Troop 1, G. S. A., tendered their bugler, Martha Glenn, a farewell party on Tuesday evening at the home of Scout Madeline Means on Evans road. Scout games were played and refreshments served. In behalf of the troop, Agatha Killen presented Miss Glenn with a birthday book containing the names of the entire troop. The Glenn family are leaving immediately for Westwood.

—Mr. and Mrs. William S. Wallace were the guests of Mrs. Lawrence N. Wallace of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, at Christmas.

—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Patten of South Braintree are the parents of a baby girl born on Christmas day at the home of Mrs. John Benjamin, Drews avenue, East Weymouth. Mrs. Patten was formerly Miss Lotita Benjamin of North Weymouth.

—The annual Christmas entertainment of the L. A. of the K. C. Boat Club was held in the club house last Saturday evening. Two trees prettily decorated with gifts for every one were the center of attraction. Santa Claus was represented by Mr. Ray Leach. A buffet lunch was served and a musical program enjoyed by the large gathering. Mrs. Hannah Abbott was chairman and had the following committee: Alice Horton, Agnes Abbott, Lucy Miller, Ethel Hayden, Kate Holbrook, Grace Walker, Bertha Leach, Bertha Bailey and Edith Lund.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Bartlett and Miss Goodale of Lovell street left last Friday for St. Petersburg Florida, where they will spend the month of January.

—A meeting of the State Council of the Daughters of the Nation was held Wednesday afternoon at the Boston City Club, with Mrs. Irving, State regent presiding. Mrs. Mary Jones of Braintree, Mrs. Albert Avery of East Braintree and Mrs. Della Caulfield of Weymouth represented the Old Colony chapter.

OLD COLONY CLUB

The next meeting of the club will be held Thursday Jan. 8, at 1.30 P. M. It will be time well spent to attend this special meeting which will be a First District joint public health and civics conference.

Mrs. Sumner Coolidge of Lakeville State Sanitarium will speak on "Public Health," and Mrs. William Mitchell of Scituate on "Civics." Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, State Director of Thrift, from Newtonville, will have much of interest on the subject of "Thrift."

A box will be placed at the door into which each person attending may place a question desired answered on any of the subjects.

Gilbert Herwood, the boy violinist, will entertain with selections. This meeting is open to the public, free of charge, and it is hoped as many as can will avail themselves of this exceptional opportunity. Universalist church, Jan. 8, 1.30 P. M. All welcome.

W. R. C. NOTES.

Next regular meeting of the W. R. C. will be held in G. A. R. hall, Tuesday, Jan. 6, at 2.30 o'clock. Supper will be served at 6, followed by a joint installation of Reynolds Post, G. A. R., and Reynolds W. R. C., in the presence of department officers and invited guests.

Additions to National Forests

Prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture

Purchase totaling 66,381 acres in the White mountains, the southern Appalachians and Arkansas at an average price of $3.91 per acre have been approved by the national forest reservation commission, a body created by congress to purchase land on the headwaters of navigable streams for the protection of their watersheds. The action of the commission means that usefulness of the new national forests in the East, the inception of which dates from the beginning of purchase work in 1911, will be greatly increased.

The commission also decided to request, for the fiscal year beginning 1921, an appropriation of $10,000,000 in five annual installments of $2,000,000 for extending purchases. The program contemplated is contingent on the assurance of definite sums being available for making purchases through a period of years. Without such assurance the policy will be to restrict purchases to tracts contiguous to lands already approved for purchase. This policy is dictated in part by considerations relating to the administration of the lands and fire-protection measures. The lands recently approved for purchase bring the total area acquired or being acquired under the act of March, 1, 1911, to 1,835,308 acres.

35 Executions in Army During War

Ten Put to Death in France;
Twenty-Five in the U. S.

The annual report of Maj. Gen. Enoch Crowder, judge advocate general of the army, was given out a short time ago, and with it there was made public for the first time an official summary of the "capital" cases occurring in the army since April 5, 1917, the beginning of the war period.

Death penalties were adjudged in 145 cases from that date to June 30, 1919, and execution was consummated in 35 cases—ten in France and 25 in the United States. Murder was charged in two of these cases, murders and mutiny in 19, assault in 11, and assault and murder in three.

"In no case," according to the report, "was a capital sentence for a purely military offense carried into execution."

General Crowder made no specific reference to the attack upon his administration by former Brigadier General Ansell, but in an appendix gave detailed statistics covering military courts martial.

HER MUSIC

It trembled off the keys—a parting kiss
So sweet—the angel slept upon his sword,
As through the gates of Paradise we swept—

Partakers of creation's primal bliss!
—The air was heavy with the breath
Of violets and love till death.

Forgetful of eternal banishment—
Deep down the dusk of passion-haunted ways.

Lost in the dreaming alchemies of tone—
Drenched in the dew no other wings frequent.

—Our thirsting hearts drank in the breath
Of violets and love in death.

There was no world, no flesh, no boundary line—
Spirit to spirit—chord and dissonance.

Beyond the jealousy of space and time
Her life in one low cry broke over mine!

—The waking angel drew a shuddering breath
Of violets and love and death.

—Martha Gilbert Dickinson.

Masks Worn to Represent Supposed Faces of Gods

Masks have a religious origin. Away back in prehistoric times they were doubtless worn by priests and others who took part in religious ceremonies; and this is the case today among primitive peoples all over the world. The masks are supposed to represent the faces of gods, whose parts are taken in the ceremonial by individuals assuming the character of divinities. In Polynesia the native deities are naturally oceanic, and many of the masks in that region represent astonishing fishes and monsters of the sea such as no human eye ever beheld.

FEED TO INCREASE EGG PRODUCTION

It is the practice of a large percentage of the most successful poultry men to feed a part of the daily grain ration ground.

Most of them feed the ground grain moistened with either milk or water, although some feed it dry. A fowl's gizzard is capable of grinding all kinds of grain, but it is generally considered to be more economical to have a part of the grinding done by steam or water power.

The soft-feed idea, however, must not be overworked, says an authority. Hens like ground feed better when it is moistened than when dry. Although full fed on dry mash and grain they will eat a little bit more of moist mash. For this reason many poultry keepers give a light feed of moistened mash once a day to increase egg production. When handled right it is very effective.

A beginner often reasons that it is cheaper for the miller than for the fowl to grind the grain; but the powerful muscles of the gizzard are there to be used, and experience has shown that the balance of power of functions in the fowl's economy makes the vigorous exercise of the gizzard beneficial. When feeding moistened ground feed have it a comparatively dry, crumbly mash, and not a thin slop. Give what they will eat readily in 15 or 20 minutes.

LIGHT AND AIRY

A conceited man revolves around himself.

Telephone girls never invite you to call again.

Girls will be girls—if they can't be married women.

A free thinker isn't a free thinker when he is in jail.

A woman will have her own way even if it is a roundabout way.

It is impossible to forget the majority of things that should be forgotten.

Most Perfumes Chemical And Not From Blossoms

The great bulk of perfumes are chemical productions. The Wall Street Journal says the commercial problem is whether the American perfumer of the future is to be an artisan or an artist. Shall he deal with the fragrance of flowers or chemical odors and scents? The idea of the layman is that the cosmetic chemist seeks the odor of flowers, but as a matter of fact, synthetic chemistry not only crowns his work with the crushed oil of roses, violets and jessamine, but seeks to rival the fragrance of flowers with superior scents originating wholly within the laboratory and trade-marked as such.

The above presupposes an educated cook who will provide food which is eatable.—N. M.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

The dessert adds the finishing touch to the meal. It should be appropriate, that is, following a heavy meal be light and dainty, or a meal less substantial may have a more filling dessert. The dessert is valued for its decorative effect as well as for its food value.

Date Pudding.—Boil together ten minutes two cups of water three-fourths of a cup of brown sugar, and three tablespoons of cornstarch. Add one cup of sliced dates. Mold in sherbet cups. Garnish with whipped cream and chopped nuts, or pieces of cherry or dates.

Apple Snow.—Pare, core and cut about four apples into quarters. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly until the apples are soft and the water has almost evaporated. Cool, put through a vegetable sieve. Add powdered sugar to taste and fold in as much whipped cream as you have apple pulp. Chill and serve.

Peach Cup.—Take eight canned peaches, two eggs, one-half cup of milk, one and one-half cups of flour, three tablespoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one teaspoonful of butter. Mash two of the peaches and add the well-beaten yolks of eggs. Add the milk and the dry ingredients sifted together. Add butter melted. Beat the mixture in a buttered custard cup, add half a peach, cover with batter, sprinkle the top with sugar and bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes. Serve with whipped cream or a hard sauce.

Apricot Ice.—Take four cups of dried apricots, four cups of water, the juice of three lemons, one-half cup of sugar and the whites of three eggs. Soak the apricots until soft; cook until tender. Press through a potato ricer to remove the skins. Add sugar to the pulp, then water and cook ten minutes. Remove from the fire, cool, add lemon juice and freeze. When the mixture is partly frozen, remove the cover and add the beaten whites of eggs. Cover and finish freezing.

Apricot Whip.—Take two cups of apricots, one-half cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and the whites of two eggs. Wash and soak the apricots. Cook in the same water until soft. Remove stones and rub through a sieve. Add sugar and cook five minutes. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and fold them into the apricot pulp when it is cold. Add lemon juice. Bake in a buttered baking dish for twenty minutes. Serve with cream or custard sauce.

"Go forth this day with the smallest expectations, but with the largest patience, with a keen relish for and appreciation of everything beautiful, great and good, but with a temper so genial that the friction of the world shall not bear upon your sensibilities."

TABLE DAINTIES.

For a cake out of the ordinary, try one made from the following recipe:

Lightning Cake.—Cream a half cupful of shortening, gradually, with half a cupful of sugar, four beaten egg yolks, three tablespoons of milk and one cupful of sifted flour, with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Spread the mixture in a shallow pan and over it spread the frosting whose recipe is given below; dredge with sugar and cinnamon, and bake thirty minutes. For serving, cut in strips about two inches long and one inch wide.

Frosting for Lightning Cake.—Beat four egg whites very light, gradually add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of blanched and shredded almonds. Spread on the uncooked cake dough and sprinkle with one tablespoonful of sugar mixed with half a teaspoonful of cinnamon.

Rhubarb and Raisin Jelly.—Cook three dozen large, choice raisins in boiling water to cover, until tender. Add more water if needed. Cook until tender two cups of rhubarb cut in small bits, with one cupful of sugar; shake the pan to keep the pieces unbroken. Soften two tablespoons of gelatin in half a cupful of cold water, then add the raisins and hot liquid to dissolve the gelatin; add rhubarb and turn into a mold. When cold and firm, serve unmolded with whipped cream.

Baked Ham.—Take a slice of ham two inches thick, parboil in water to nearly cover. Remove the ham to a baking pan, spread with brown sugar and mustard, using a teaspoonful of mustard to two tablespoons of sugar. Add the water from the pan, and bake occasionally. Bake until well browned.

Beans and Bacon.—Take one can of tender string beans, drain and season well. Cut up two slices of bacon in small bits and fry until brown. Remove the bacon to the dish of beans and fry one small chopped onion in the hot fat; when the onion is well cooked, add the beans and when well mixed with the fat, add enough sharp hot vinegar to season well. Serve hot with frankfurter sausage.

An' there's folks that pass you by;
There's folks that hold their troubles

There's folks to crush the weaklings
And there's folks to curb the strong,
An' now an' then there's folks that Like
To jolly folks along.

NUTRITIOUS DISHES.

With eggs at the price they are it does not seem economy to use them in any quantity, but with food combinations two or three eggs will supply the protein needed, yet make an inexpensive main dish.

Eggs and Dried Beef Scrambled.—Chop fine half a cupful of dried beef. Melt two tablespoons of sweet fat in an omelet pan. Add the chopped meat, three-fourths of a cupful of tomato, a teaspoonful of scraped onion or a bit of juice, half a teaspoonful of salt and a few grains of paprika; stir until hot, then add three beaten eggs and cook until the eggs are creamy throughout. Serve on squares of buttered toast or with baked potatoes.

Meat Loaf.—Put through a food chopper one pound of veal steak, half a pound of beef from the top of the round and one-fourth of a pound of cooked ham. Mix well, add two eggs beaten light, a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of paprika, two tablespoons of chicken fat, two milk crackers rolled fine, onion juice, chopped parsley or Worcestershire sauce; shape into a loaf. Make a depression in the center and set in end for end two hard cooked eggs, removed from the shell. Cover the eggs in the loaf and place in a baking pan. Baste with hot fat and bake two hours. Serve hot or cold with a sauce made in the pan.

Codfish Balls.—Put hot boiled potatoes through a ricer, enough to make two cupfuls. Have ready one cupful of salt codfish, picked very fine, covered with cold water; beat slowly until the water is milky; then drain and dry in cloth. Mix the potato, fish, a tablespoonful of butter, paprika and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Beat with a wooden spoon until light and fluffy. Shape in balls, roll in egg, mixed with three tablespoons of cold water, then in soft sifted crumbs. Fry in deep fat. If the balls are made the day before and left uncovered they will cook better.

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight?
When a lift just in time might make everything right?
Do you know what it means, just a clasp of the hand,
When a woman has stood just all she can stand?
Were you sister of hers when the time came of need?
Did you offer to help her? Or didn't you heed?

SOMETHING GOOD TO EAT.

If one wishes a little ice cream for three or four sherbet cups, it may be made in a pound baking powder can. Any kind without acid may be used; fill the can two-thirds full, put on the cover and set into a deep jar filled one-third salt and two-thirds ice, let it stand until chilled, then turn the can in the mixture, occasionally removing the top and scraping down the sides. It will not take long to freeze and this saves using a large freezer when a small amount is needed.

One of the Thousand Isle Dressings.—Take half a cupful each of olive oil and lemon juice, one tablespoonful of grated onion, half a cupful of orange juice, three tablespoons of minced parsley, eight olives chopped fine, eight cooked chestnuts also chopped, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, a dash of paprika and one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard. Shake in a mason jar until well blended.

Combination Salad.—Cut a small tomato into quarters or eighths leaving the sections together at the stem end. Arrange on lettuce and heap over this a tablespoonful of chopped celery, a quarter of a thinly sliced pear and the tapering end of a banana, which may be placed in the center of the salad. Mix with boiled dressing and heap the minced and sliced mixture around the center. Shake a bit of paprika on the point of the banana and serve. A few grapes, skinned and seeded, may take the place of the pear or both may be added. The combination of flavor is especially pleasing with a mild salad dressing, enriched with whipped cream.

Beans and Bacon.—Take one can of tender string beans, drain and season well. Cut up two slices of bacon in small bits and fry until brown. Remove the bacon to the dish of beans and fry one small chopped onion in the hot fat; when the onion is well cooked, add the beans and when well mixed with the fat, add enough sharp hot vinegar to season well. Serve hot with frankfurter sausage.

Gowns for Formal Dress FURS IN DEMAND

The outstanding feature in this season's apparel is brightness. Everything is colorful, not always vivid, but always glowing. The metallic cloths, silk and satin surfaces, brocades and metallic laces, assure the liveliness of evening and afternoon dress. Milliners and bootmakers, taking their cue from gowns and wraps, see to it that headwear and footwear carry out the brilliance that would otherwise eclipse them. Beads, sequins and rhinestones stand ready to aid the artist in any sort of apparel who is compelled to add his glowing bit to the costume that is animated and joyous. It is just a question of more or less glow.

In afternoon gowns we look for and find less than in those to be worn under artificial light; but in many of these there are metallic laces and brocades introduced, veiled with crepe georgette or chiffon. The advantage of an afternoon gown made in this way is that it is brightened up by artificial light and becomes quite equal to holding its own in the brilliant company of regulation evening gowns. There are many women who have little use for formal evening dress and there are women who do not look well in it—it is not suited to their style or personality, as anyone knows who has a chance to observe. But the afternoon dress is universally becoming.

A fine example of a frock that will do double duty is shown at the left of the two figures above. It has a skirt of silk in a heavy crepe weave, with an insert of metallic brocade, in subdued colors, veiled with georgette crepe like the skirt in color. The underbodice is made of the brocade and the overbodice of georgette. The upper sleeve is of the crepe, with a very deep cuff of silk joined to it with a band of brocade that lies under the crepe. The cuff is open in the underseam. A wide, shaped girdle is made of the silk used in the skirt, with flat cords and tassels finishing the opening at the right side.

Metallic brocade and satin make the lovely evening gown at the right. After the manner of evening gowns, it reveals plenty of material, cleverly draped below the waist, and very little above it. There are narrow bands of satin over the shoulders, with small blossoms set close together in them. A very wide tulle scarf, ending in silk tassels, adds an allurements to the shoulders and arms it serves to veil.

Twice as Much Peltry Is Being Worn This Season.

Three-Quarter Coat Still Favorite With Young Girls—Novelties in Sport Models.

Handsome furs for mid-winter wear are being featured at all the exclusive furriers and reports say that there are nearly twice as many furs being purchased this season as last. On the "Avenue" and in the limousines one glimpses fur coats and scarfs that are truly magnificent. Indeed to be fashionably dressed this season one must be fur clad or at least "fur trimmed." Even hats are distinguished by bits of fur, while some ingenious milliners have fashioned entire hats from the skins of animals.

For the "jeune fille" the half or three-quarter coat is still favored. Those young girls who did not purchase coats of this type late last season when they were first introduced, are busy shopping now for this popular model. Sometimes these sport coats are belted, but more often they fall in a graceful flare from the throat to the hips. Taupe squirrel is a happy choice for the younger set with Hudson seal as a close rival.

Another sport model recently seen at a fur shop was made exclusive because leopard skin allied itself with French seal. The top of the coat was of leopard 12 inches deep with a border of seal the same depth. The sleeves featured the same combination and as a final touch of cache there was a deep collar of seal and a narrow belt of leopard.

Nutria and beaver are well liked by many women and shown often in two tones of the same fur. For instance, a seven-eighth-length coat of nutria was collared, cuffed and bordered with nutria of a darker shade.

For the large matron there is a gorgeous cape of broadtail fringed at the bottom. A chinchilla collar added to the warmth at the throat and the apertures for the arms were finished with cuffs of the lighter fur.

Short capes and shoulder lengths are still seen with velvet gowns. An interesting hip cape of seal is belted at the front and shows a stunning collar of kolinsky.

When one goes to the theater or smart restaurant she dons a draped dolman of squirrel, mole or seal that falls from a deep shoulder yoke. The fur is set on rather full at the yoke and is draped lavishly at the hips, but narrows fashionably at the feet.

SHIRRED VELVET BAG IS NEW

Attractive Model Designed for Evening Use as Well as for Dress Occasions.

Chiffon velvet shirred on a green-gold frame makes a bag that is smart enough to be a serious rival of the head bag, which has held sway for so long. There have been many novelties offered in the past months to take the place of the solid head bag, but there was none of them either in manner or in design good looking enough or elegant enough to attract any attention from women who really dress well.

This shirred velvet-bag is only smart because the frame is unusual and very beautiful, and the velvet is only a minor part. The frame is green gold and the shape is an elongated octagon with delicate etching. The velvet, which may be in a shade to match the frock, is shirred to the frame, which passes all the way around the bag and is double, opening out flat and disclosing a well-fitted interior. This is to be carried in the evening or for dress occasions, but is hardly suitable for shopping.

might possibly find a place in the dressing-table drawer.

It is carried out in dark brown silk lined with pale pink silk, and bound with brown ribbon. The sides are stiffened with pieces of card sewn in between the silk and the lining.

OUTFIT OF BLACK AND GOLD

Milady is gowned for the most elaborate afternoon occasion when she dons this stunning gown of black and gold brocade velvet and black satin.

FASHION HINTS

Even indoor frocks are trimmed with fur.

The beaded frock of georgette crepe is an essential garment.

Narrow self-girdles are still fashionable for coats and dresses.

A New York inventor has patented a child's muff formed like a doll.

Black frocks are worn merely as backgrounds for brilliant brocade vests or girdles.

New York reports a few of the evening frocks recently shown have a very high waistline.

Evening turbans with trims of paradise or jewels are made of French plush in brilliant colors.

From present indications, squirrel, mole and kolinsky will probably be the most popular furs this winter.

Castor is a new color introduced in velvings, and velvets of blue, taupe, brown and black are as usual quite correct.

Paris has put the stamp of approval on large hats, particularly hats of black velvet. Many of these hats have slightly drooping brims and tam crowns and many of the crowns are striped with white or colored souchette.

Dolman Sleeves in Coats.

Smart coats for limousine or promenade wear have the huge dolman sleeve which is so graceful. This sleeve has an armhole that extends from the shoulder to the waistline and from this big armhole the sleeve tapers to a 12 or 15-inch width at the wrist. A new coat of fursan brown bolivia has these dolman sleeves ending in cuffs of kolinsky and there is a bolter collar of kolinsky around the throat. The coat is double-breasted and the buttons, down one side, are set in tabs that make an effective trimming from shoulder to hip.

Little Trimmings.

Decorative hat pins constitute the only trimming seen on some hats, particularly of the off-the-face type.

Now Is The Time To Advertise

There are not many women who are not deeply interested in making their houses attractive, and in changing the countenance of the various rooms once in awhile. Especially they like to freshen up and make dainty their own quarters. But there is nothing that has soared in price to heights beyond that reached by new furniture, and one can live without it, so it is the part of the economic housewife to keep her money in her pocket until things are normal again and a dollar will buy more than 30 to 50 cents' worth of merchandise.

In the meantime, it is worth while to spend a little money to keep the house and oneself looking attractive. In spring or fall, when walls are done over, cover them with plain—that is, unfigured—paper, or other covering in light tones of gray, tan, buff or barley. If a new rug or two is to be bought, let it be plain, also, or nearly so, and in a dark shade of the color on the wall. With a background of this kind draperies, bed coverings, cushions, scarfs for dressing cases and chiffoniers, in figured cretonnes, will make attractive interiors at little cost.

Cretonnes are shown in unending variety of designs in light and dark colors, skillfully patterned, so that they may be used in living rooms and bedrooms to furnish up old-style or unsightly furniture. Couches in the living room covered with it, chairs covered to match, with hangings and cushions, will dress up the heart of the home for winter or summer, with a small outlay. One must practice restraint, and not overdo in the use of figured materials. Often a plain material bordered with the figured cretonne will help out in the matter of using just enough and not too much. Quieter colors also are to be chosen for living rooms than for bedrooms.

In bedrooms head and footboards of unsightly beds, or of brass or iron beds, are transformed by coverings of cretonne with a valance to match, box-plaited along the side. A coverlid of plain cotton in one of the colors, or the predominating color in the cretonne, side curtains of the same, bordered with cretonne, and lambrequins to match, will transform a bedroom into something charming—a joy for a season or two at least. There are so many soft tones in beautiful colors that are gay and cheerful for the bedroom.

In this day of bare hardwood floors and rugs, the beautiful colonial or rag rugs merit more consideration. For bedrooms, they may be made in darker shades of any of the colors in the cretonne used, and they are of the same character of furnishings.

Cretonne is used for making any number of smaller accessories of bedroom furnishing, as laundry and shoe bags, lamp and candle shades, glove and handkerchief boxes, screens, window-seat coverings, pin cushions and all other cushions, and for covering shirtwaist and hat boxes or chairs. It is saving table linen in many a dining room, where it appears at breakfast or lunch in centerpieces and dollies, instead of white linen table cloths. When it comes time to fit up the porch for summertime, cretonne is indispensable. Willow furniture in gray, green, tan or brighter tones must have cretonne cushions, and swinging or stationary couches their cretonne coverings. Some colors and patterns stand laundering very well, which is another item in favor of this cheerful fabric.

Belts and Girdles Important.

Novel sashes, belts and girdles play a very important part in making otherwise plain blouses qualify as things of beauty. Some very handsome flexible metal belts are worn with good effect with blouses of velvet and the sheer blouses often have girdles of gold or silver cloth or of metal insertion cleverly handled.

An Unusual Blouse.

A blouse recently seen was of apricot-colored duvetyne, the entire surface of which was couched over in navy blue floss.

CLAPP MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION

The C. M. A. basketball team left yesterday to play their hardest game of the season, with the fast Rumford quintet. The game with Rumford which is played every year is one of the best on the C. M. A. schedule and will prove whether the home team is in the race for the amateur championship of New England. They have played five games this season and each time have decisively defeated their opponents. With the Rumford game tucked away to their credit, the C. M. A. can well claim the championship basketball team of the New England states.

Later, Clapp Memorial won 18 to 12. Yesterday the Clapp Memorial Juniors won from Weymouth Juniors 22 to 21.

"All aboard", for the trip to North Easton, Jan. 8, where the C. M. A. will play the North Easton Post of the American Legion. The Weymouth aggregation, recently defeated the North Easton quintet on the C. M. A. floor but dissatisfaction on the part of the Legion team because of the small floor, has made it necessary for a return game to be played on the North Easton floor. Ample transportation facilities will be provided by the C. M. A. and everyone is invited to join the party which will leave the C. M. A. at 6.30 P. M.

Plenty of fireworks are on tap for the followers of the basketball team for the week of January 12, when there will be three games scheduled for the latter part of the week. Dances will be held after the games in the C. M. A. dance hall, and it is hoped that the patronage will warrant running them all through the winter.

The basketball game last Friday evening was one of the best ever played on the C. M. A. floor. The fine points of wrestling which hitherto belonged to our own erstwhile "Rummy" Warren, met their match in the form of the lanky North Easton center, who showed a tendency to test the gym floor with both his own and "Rummy's" heads. Better luck when you go to North Easton "Rummy". Weymouth met its heavier opponents in true C. M. A. style and brought another victory to the home town. The score for the first game was 39 to 28 in Weymouth's favor.

The second team which has been following in the footsteps of the first squad, defeated the High School in a close game on the same night. Spurred on by the promise of C. M. A. jerseys if they won their game, the players won a game that was anyone's until the last second had passed. The score was 23 to 22 in favor of the C. M. A. second team.

The membership in the association has taken a decided jump during the past month and "Doc" Fabyan has been obliged to send out a hurry call for enrollment blanks to take care of the large number of applications received for membership.

According to the best authorities a championship pool contest will be given at the Clapp Memorial rooms during the next week. The two contestants, "Bill" Russell and Louis Daniels, are well known in every part of Weymouth and a large number of members are expected to be on hand to cheer for their favorite. The date of the contest will be announced later.

A great deal of boxing material has been turned out at the C. M. A. but never has the association turned out as much champion material as this year. The wrestling matches are the best that have been seen at the gym during the last five years. With two champion wrestlers in the association the C. M. A. bids fair to produce as many more before the year is over.

HE GETS THE TRADE

The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone.
The constant know of Towser masticates the toughest bone.
The constant wooling lover carries off the blushing maid.
And the constant advertiser is the man that gets the trade.
Don't ever think that printer's ink is money to the bad.
To help you fail a role of cable there's nothing beats an ad.
You can't fool people always, they've been a long time born.
And most folks know that man is slow who tootheth not his horn.
—Exchange.

BETTER CALL UP TODAY

SOME PEOPLE think ADVERTISING is simply SPENDING MONEY BUT THE wise man knows IT'S THE surest way to make more THE ONLY problem is WHAT MEDIUM to use.

CIRCULARS and hand-bills COST A LOT of money BUT YOU give them away SO NOBODY wants them ON THEIR front porches NOR IN their morning mail.

THE SUBSCRIBER PAYS REAL money FOR HIS newspaper AND THAT'S why he values it MORE HIGHLY THAN A circular.

HE BRINGS his paper home SO THAT every member OF THE family CAN READ and enjoy its BREEZY, up-to-the-minute news AND PROFIT by heeding THE HOME-TOWN merchants' BID FOR their trade.

AND THAT'S a good reason FOR ADVERTISING IN A newspaper.

AND NOT only that BUT THE MERCHANT using hand-bills AND CIRCULARS hopes FOR TEN readers TO THE hundred bills, IF WILLIE delivers the 100.

WHEREAS the newspaper advertiser IS SURE of at least FIVE READERS to EVERY COPY of the paper AND THEY all read and heed HIS ADS.

AND THAT'S why he LOOKS pleasant AND GROWS fat in the BANK ACCOUNT. BETTER CALL up today AND HAVE our ADVERTISING MANAGER EXPLAIN.

Please direct all mail for the Gazette or the Times to—"Gazette, Weymouth, Mass." No street address or box is necessary, and no name.

Census Enumerators

Started in Weymouth Today

A meeting of the Census Enumerators for Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and Milton was held last Friday evening in the office of the Supervisor of Census, at Quincy. The Supervisor, Joseph I. Garity of the 8th District gave the enumerators instructions as to the manner of filling the schedules in connection with the coming Federal Census. The enumerators have all received their supplies and started out today to visit every home in their district.

The men and women appointed to serve as enumerators of the Fourteenth Decennial Census are charged by law with the collection of all facts necessary to fill out properly the printed census schedules which each enumerator will carry when making the house to house canvass of the territory assigned to him.

The enumerators for Weymouth are:

North Weymouth, Edith M. Newton of 72 Green street.

Weymouth, Nellie T. Whelan of Common street.

East Weymouth, Alton L. Fahey of 30 Lafayette street.

South Weymouth, Samuel A. Cochran of 164 Randolph street, Frank G. Loud of 14 off Pond street and Jacob Denbroeder of 315 Pond street.

The enumerators for Braintree are: East Braintree, Frank O'Rourke of 83 Hobart street.

Braintree, Mary Finn of 137 River street and A. Maud Anderson of 440 West street.

South Braintree, Helen Harnish of 117 Granite street.

Each enumerator must visit personally each house in his district and make his inquiries of the head or some other member of the family who is competent to answer census questions.

The Act of Congress providing for the Census gives each enumerator the right to enter every dwelling in his district for the purpose of obtaining the information required. Enumerators will carry with them at all times their identification cards and also their written commissions from the Government which they will show whenever requested to do so.

They are instructed to be always courteous and considerate, but in those rare instances where information necessary to fill out the questions is denied them, they are empowered by law to insist on correct answers. There are legal penalties for refusing to answer the census questions or wilfully giving answers that are false.

Each enumerator is prohibited by law from publishing or communicating any information obtained through the census regarding any individual or his affairs. This obligation to secrecy likewise applies to all persons connected with the Census.

After the schedules are all filled out they are sealed up and sent to Washington where the information is tabulated by means of machinery, names being disregarded entirely. No person, therefore, need fear that his personal affairs will be disclosed or that the information given will be used to harm him in any way.

It is expected that the work of enumerating urban districts will be completed in two weeks and of rural districts in one month, except where severe weather makes it necessary to postpone activities.

HOME OWNING

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

What we want here in Weymouth is more people owning their own homes; not just as a matter of quickening and holding the finest spirit that a group of folks can have—the love of a home—but as a matter of economy in our individual life, and to stabilize, standardize and strengthen American patriotism and American citizenship.

When you strike at the home and the fireside, you strike at the very root of citizenship and civilization. When you build a home-nest, and bring your little babies into the world, you are building a monument to your worth as a parent and a citizen, and you are perpetuating the best you have to give to the world.

Let us all help to make this next year the biggest home-building year Weymouth has ever had. Let our banks get together and advertise the terms on which money can be borrowed, as many folks do not know how easy it is to get a home started. Let our factory owners get together and help and encourage their employees to build homes for themselves. Let our Town Fathers and Board of Trade get behind a "Home Owning Campaign".

We all know that what is best for the individual does the greatest good to the community.

Get together for a Home-Owning Campaign and lick Socialism and Bolshevism in Weymouth.

J. S. Wichert.

MOVING LINCOLN MONUMENT

This monument to Lincoln, erected in 1899 by popular subscription in Washington, has been declared out of harmony with the remodeled District of Columbia courthouse, before which it stands. By authority of congress, therefore, it is being moved to a spot near the broad Potomac.

Unfortunate Toads.

Science has at last proved by experiments why it is that so many petrified toads have been found imbedded in stone or their remains in lumps of coal. The toads, it seems, have a habit of crawling into tiny crevices in the stone or wood or coal, as the case may be, while they are still young. From time to time they emerge to get food, but as they can live for a year without it, they sometimes stay in the hole too long and grow too large to emerge. If they get plenty of air they will live for a twelvemonth or so, but if the crevice closes up, they die sooner. In other words, they can live without food, but they cannot exist without air.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN SOUTHERN STATES

Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi suffered most heavily in the recent floods. Heroic rescue and aid work was done by the Red Cross. The property damage was estimated at many thousands, and over 1,000 persons were made homeless by the rushing waters. ## Writing on Bottles.

The following is a published formula for making a waterproof ink for writing on bottles. It is practically a solution of shellac with coloring matter added. Take brown shellac, 60 parts; methylated spirits, 150 parts; borax, 35 parts; water, 250 parts; methyl violet, 1 part. The shellac should first be dissolved in the spirit, and the borax should be dissolved separately in the water. The shellac solution should then be warmed (by placing the bottle in hot water), and added gradually to the borax solution, the mixture being rapidly stirred meanwhile. The dye is added last.

On Loving.

BOBBY AND
THE H. C. L.

By JANE OSBORN

(©, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Go as far as you like," quoth Bobby to his young wife, Lucille, with that peculiar brand of satisfaction written on his face that comes to a man who feels he has been extremely liberal. "Just so long as it is a bang-up dinner, I'm not going to consider any reasonable cost. Here, Lucille," he said, drawing forth a crisp ten-dollar bill from his bill case, "here is something. Spend the whole of it if you want—terrapin, caviar, green turtle, lobster—whatever they have at the nifty diners."

"And there are to be eight of us," Lucille's words betokened weariness, but it was a weariness that Bobby, the exuberant young Bobby, failed to detect.

"Yes," he agreed, "you and me and my brother John and his wife and the Bob Newtons—just a jolly party. I'll be home by six, so as to do anything I can for you at the last minute. I suppose you'll get Sally to wear a cap and apron?" And away went Bobby, filled with pleasurable anticipation of his first dinner party.

It had been settled between the Bobby Stranges when they were married that they would run no bills during the first years of their married life. Bobby was convinced that every housewife should go marketing personally, taking advantage of the better prices that were offered to those who paid cash, and Lucille had agreed perfectly. And Bobby Strange did not mean to be parsimonious.

But the trouble was that Bobby had been rather overfed on a certain brand of magazine article that urges young men to save. It was his theory that if a young man earned sixty dollars a week he should save at least fifteen. He felt that he was generous when he allowed Lucille thirty-five on which to run the house.

When Lucille complained meekly and good-naturedly that butcher bills were amazingly high Bobby smilingly quoted some articles he had read about using the cheaper cuts, but unfortunately Bobby had a taste for chops and steaks and could not endure stews. "Oh, there are other things you can get," he assured her. "I can't remember just what they call them. But you'll find it all in the books."

So when Bobby Strange left that morning Lucille sat looking at the ten-dollar bill. She ran a finger over its verdant face affectionately. There were so many things that it would do. They needed potatoes, and only the day before Lucille had found a place where she could buy eggs at a splendid price.

She had hoped to be able to get some to "put down" for winter. They were out of soap and it was so much cheaper buying it in large quantities. But this ten dollars was not for soap or eggs or potatoes. It was for terrapin and green turtle.

Lucille started out early to shop, and she spent hours in her search for the inexpensive luxuries that she had hoped for. But they were not to be had. Why, even ordinary banyard fowl were fifty cents a pound. Frequently as she marketed she consulted the little menu that she had made out for the dinner that night, and frequently she ran her little silver pencil through certain dainties she had planned to have.

It was not alone a physical fatigue that weighed her down when she returned from the marketing trip.

"You'll wear a cap and apron, won't you, Sally?" she asked when she came home.

"I suppose so, ma'am," replied Sally. "if you get one for me. You couldn't expect me to have them for myself."

Lucille had to take the cork out of the bottom of the china elephant bank in which she had been saving nickles with which to buy a washing machine. Then she went out in search of the white cap and apron that she could buy with the small amount that the elephant presented her with.

The dinner seemed to be successful enough, but something must have passed between the Bobby Stranges afterward that took a little of the felicity out of Lucille. For when her brother John arrived unexpectedly the next morning at about nine after Bobby had started off for his office he found his sister in tears.

He had trouble in tracing these tears to their source, for Lucille knew that John was an unswerving friend and champion of her Bobby. If he had not been she never would have explained to him.

"After you had all gone," she explained, "he said to me that I needn't have been so thrifty. He told me that he wouldn't in the least have minded if I had spent all the money he gave me for the dinner—in fact, he said he had rather hoped we would have something a little better than chicken and—"

Lucille's tears seemed to start afresh at the details of the little dinner party; she sobbed like a child before she went on—"and stringbeans (sob) and tomato salad (sob) and ice cream and—"

And I spent every cent he gave me," Lucille went on when she had regained her composure. "There wasn't a cent left and I had to take the cork out of the elephant. I told him so, and then he said that it was all because I didn't know how to buy. He said that that was my great fault—not knowing how to buy, and he said that there were some women who could manage on a lot less money than I did and have more delicacies, too. He was very kind, only he really thinks I don't know. But honestly John, I went to the cheapest places in town and carried all the bundles home myself, so I wouldn't have to go to places that send them."

"Well, I guess Bobby just don't understand," reflected the loyal John. "Bobby's young—not much older than you—and there are a lot of things you youngsters have to learn. Perhaps I can teach him."

"Oh, please don't, please don't," entreated Lucille. "Don't even mention the H. C. L., because if you do then Bobby will know that I have been talking about him to you, and that would be dreadful." John promised secrecy, but he went away secretly promising himself that he would educate Bobby.

Weeks passed and the slight disappointment that Bobby had sustained regarding the dinner party was well-nigh forgotten. Little was said concerning the question of food costs, except that Bobby once or twice referred to Lucille's general ignorance concerning the rudiments of buying. He had decided to be magnanimous and not reprove her, but he would occasionally tease her about it.

Then stormclouds began to gather. Bobby was away from home two nights one week and three the next. He was preoccupied and seemed to be distraught. Rather reluctantly, when Lucille asked him where he went, he told her that he was at the club. Then Lucille recalled the little tiff they had had concerning the H. C. L., and she was troubled indeed. Women had lost their husbands' affections before, she told herself, because they had been bad housekeepers. She had decided to take her troubles to John—John who always stood up so loyally for Bobby.

"Then one night when Bobby did come home the conversation went like this:

"Lucille, how much are you paying for butter?"

"Sixty-five cents," said Lucille.

"I thought so, and you can't get decent coffee for less than forty cents, can you?"

"Why, no."

"That's what I'm telling them. But those old fogies—I guess they haven't been in a market or provision store for years. They don't know—how can they know? Why, food prices have doubled in two years." Bobby was waxing eloquent. "Doubled, I tell you. And tomorrow night at the meeting of the club I'm going to sail into that house committee and give them what's coming to them. It can't be done, gentlemen, it can't be done." Bobby had risen from his place at the table and was addressing the imaginary club in meeting assembled.

Lucille didn't know exactly what had come over her beloved Bobby, but she felt as if suddenly a millstone had dropped from her shoulders. But Bobby explained.

"You see your brother John—well, I suppose he realized that I had a bit more business ability than the other fellows in the club. Anyway, he appointed me a committee of one to act as a sort of honorary steward—to see to the buying—sort of jack up the chief who has usually had full charge. Some of the members had been complaining that for a dollar he ought to be able to give us a better dinner. But I went into the matter systematically, as I always do, and, believe me, it can't be done. If those old fossils think it can, they'd better try. Why, one of the members of the house committee had the audacity to tell me that I didn't know how to buy."

"You dear Bobby," sympathized Lucille. "Wasn't that hateful?" And then as a look of happiness settled over her pretty fair features; "when did brother John ask you to take charge?" she asked.

"It was the day after our little dinner party—and say, Lucille, since I've been looking into this matter I'll have to confess I don't see how you got that dinner up on that measly ten dollars. It's been a revelation to me, I say."

A Wonderful Goer.

"Like a lift, sir?" said a countryman, civilly, as he overtook a footman traveler on the dusty road. As they jogged along they chatted about all sorts of things. Presently the old chap pulled out a watch of the turnip variety. "Can 'ee tell the toime, sir?" he asked.

"Certainly. It is exactly three o'clock," replied the other as he watched the driver set his watch at twelve. Then he stopped him. "I said three o'clock, not twelve," he added.

"Oh, that be all right, sir!" said the carter, as he slipped his timepiece into his pocket. "Her'll soon make that oop. Her be a wunnerful goer!"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Divorces in the United States.

The latest report of the United States national census bureau once more discloses not only an increase in the ratio of divorce to marriage, but in the ratio of divorce to growth of population—112 divorces to every 100,000 people in 1916, as against 84 in 1906 and 72 in 1900. There were 112,036 divorces granted in 1916, concerning 108,702 of which there are exact statistics; of these 39,900, more than a third, were for desertion, with cruelty second, the two combined accounting for nearly two-thirds (65.1 per cent) of all the divorces granted in that year, adultery figuring far behind, and drunkenness lagging in the rear.

THE FLORIST

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(©, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tony stood in his little florist shop and gazed longingly at the window across the avenue. His dark eyes, that held the tragedy and beauty of Italy in their brown depths, gazed during all idle moments in that same direction.

But the girl in the shop behind that window was not aware of Tony's gaze nor in any way conscious of the florist's existence.

Had both the tiny fragments of shop been rolled into one there would not even have been a space worth calling a shop—not a real Broadway shop. But within the heart of Ruby Vale was an ambition and sense of the artistic quite big enough to fill far greater space than her slim means could measure in actual possession. Ruby was not exactly one of the great herd of interior decorators that were filling all available basements with oddments of antiques and orange candlesticks, but she carried an assortment of accessories to the home.

As Tony gazed across the avenue each morning when he opened his own fragrant shop he knew that some new exquisite color scheme would greet him in Ruby's window. Try as he might to rise early, the girl opposite always managed to be down earlier and to have arranged her display for the day before he could get there.

He would then arrange his own beautiful flowers and was beginning to take his color effects, as far as was possible with seasonable blossoms, from the window opposite.

Only the day before there had been an exquisite twisted silver candlestick with an amethyst chignon shade, and lying carelessly beside it a cushion of amethyst taffeta with great silver tassels. Tony had sighed rapturously. Asters were in season and within ten minutes after seeing Ruby's window Tony had a display of lavender asters, with here and there a touch of silver birch.

Today the color was softest mazel, and Tony had glided in the palest of chrysanthemums, with a few nasturtiums for character.

Had the two shops been side by side they would have lured the most indifferent passer-by and drawn many a customer, first to buy a dainty lamp shade and then into Tony's shop for a cluster of flowers to match it.

How Tony longed to go across the street with just a flower or two and thereby add the necessary finishing touch to Ruby's window display no one but himself knew. And perhaps had Ruby been other than an amber-eyed, golden-haired girl to make one dream of, Tony would have found courage to make his small contribution. But the heart of the florist beat thunderously at the very sight of Ruby and he feared to seem foolish in her eyes.

Had Tony been a scheming lover he could easily have gone boldly into the shop opposite and purchased any amount of lovely things for the little apartment that was perched high up on Riverside drive, with its windows turned toward the broad Hudson. He could have had endless trips to the shop, first for hangings for those windows, then for candle shades and finally for cushions, and in the end he might have carried Ruby herself out of the shop and into his heart. But Tony was not wise in the art of wooing. He was far wiser in the art of making and investing money, and braver at fighting, as a medal or two pinned on his old uniform could vouch, than he was at winning a girl.

Modesty forbade Tony even supposing that Ruby had cast eyes in his direction.

But modesty was greatly in error, for Ruby had not only cast many admiring glances at young, good-looking Tony, but she sent many a longing eye at the wonderful flowers that so often matched the color of her own window decoration.

Ruby had put all her small hoardings into a very lovely stock and could not afford to buy the few flowers she would love to have had daily to adorn her window. She, with Tony, realized that the few living blossoms would add a touch to her color scheme that would attract even the most elusive eyes. But flowers in the city were too expensive for struggling decorators to buy, so Ruby contented herself by planning for the day when she should not only have all she wanted but a full garden of her own.

The morning that gave Tony a time advantage over Ruby was a record day. He arrived at his shop before the blinds opposite were even drawn or the color scheme there for him to copy. Tony wondered whether he should wait, but decided to develop a window effect of his own and was not without a faint hope that Ruby would see it and take his lead as he had so often taken hers.

Chrysanthemums were in from the market—great shaggy wonders of the flower kingdom, and Tony, unable to resist the warmth of pink, threw himself with characteristic swiftness into the arrangement of a window that set its glow along the entire block. Certainly it cheered the early business humans as they dashed into the subway's yawning mouth.

Had Tony been anywhere but in the extreme back of his shop he would have seen Ruby emerging hurriedly from that same subway, stand for a moment entirely absorbing the exquisite color of his flowers, then flit across and insert the key in her own door and pass within.

When he next looked across the street his heart jumped joyfully. In Ruby's window, with its soft background, was a luster ware lamp of exquisite pink with a chignon shade that fairly took one's breath away by the chignon softness of it. A pink wastebasket and billowy cushion completed the dainty picture.

Tony was no longer shy. With swift fingers he selected the most wonderful of chrysanthemums—pink and shaggy and exhaling that strange fascinating odor that was neither sweet nor bitter, but just fresh and pure.

He faced the little door opposite now with the same feeling of a conqueror that had been his when facing the enemy guns. Boldly he crossed the street with his huge pink blossom, a splash of color amid the Broadway traffic.

Ruby flushed brilliantly when she saw Tony in her doorway, but her smile went deep into the florist's heart.

"Oh-h!" she breathed softly, "what a wonderful, wonderful flower!"

"I wanted you to have it in your window," Tony told her simply.

"It will bring me in clients by the dozen," Ruby accepted the flower so graciously that Tony chided himself for not having come over weeks before. "Let's put it in this pink vase."

Together they stepped outside to get the full effect and both marveled at the artistic whole.

"I will bring you flowers each day," said Tony, "and as I am supplying many hotels and restaurants with flowers I know I can get you orders for candle shades for the same places—that is—if you want me to." Tony's habitual modesty rushed to his rescue. "Perhaps you don't."

A swift tremor of emotion seized Ruby. She had a desire to cry, but decided to laugh instead. The idea of her not wanting orders was amusing, but Tony was so innocent in his doubts. She knew that the coming of the florist into her life meant great big work and something even bigger than work. The quiet expression in Tony's eyes as they looked into hers told Ruby many things.

"Of course I want them," she told him, "and in return I shall send every client I get straight over to you to get flowers to match every color scheme."

Tony laughed. "I see people swarming to my shop now, so good-by for the time being." He was out before Ruby quite realized that he had been there. Only the pink chrysanthemum reminded her throughout the day of Tony. She carried it home to her small room at night rather than to leave it alone in the shop, and as the evenings wore on a different flower was added to the collection, having served its duty during the day. And each morning that Tony came over with his flowers and his orders found Ruby curiously ready to receive him.

A scant three weeks had passed, busy weeks, however, before he told her about the apartment with the windows looking far up the Hudson.

"Whenever you design anything especially artistic," he said, "just smuggle it away for me. There are just five rooms, but I'll say there won't be five more wonderful rooms in the world when they are decorated with some of these chignon things."

"And many flowers," Ruby suggested.

"One wonderful flower," said Tony.

Fishing Frog Hideous.

There is a hideous reptile, known as the fishing frog, which angles for its game as expertly and with as great success as the most adroit fly fisher. He is a clumsy, awkward swimmer, but nature has compensated him for his unwieldiness by furnishing him with an equivalent for a rod and line, with bait always ready for use. Two elongated tentacles spring from his nose, which taper down like actual fishing rods. To the end of them is attached, by a slender filament, which serves the purpose of a line, a bait in the form of a shiny bit of membrane. The hooks are set in the mouth of the fisherman below, and in order to induce the fish to venture within reach of them, the angler stirs up the mud at the bottom with his fins and tail. This attracts the fish and conceals him from their observation. He then plies his rod; the glittering bait glows in the water like a living insect. The dazed fish are taken in great numbers, perfectly circumscribed by the trick of the crafty angler, who can give pointers to the best trout fisherman.

Had to Wait for Fame.

Dryden and Scott were not known as authors until each was in his fortieth year. Thomas Carlyle was thirty-nine before he published "Sartor Resartus," and forty-three when he produced his "French Revolution." Richard Hooker was forty-one when his famous "Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity" was first published. Dr. Samuel Johnson was thirty-eight when he announced the plan of his Dictionary of the English Language, and was forty-six when, after a heroic struggle against penury, he succeeded in publishing the work.

Little Guam's Expensive Pests.

The rat and iguana campaign is still continuing. Rat catching has become almost a habit with the natives, as a line of them with their quarry is always in evidence in front of the jail on rat days. From the inception of the campaign in September, 1916, up to and including December 18, 1918, 1,571,643 rats and 49,053 iguanas were destroyed at a total cost to the island government of $37,940.25.—Guam News Letter.

SEVENTY-FIVE AND BOARD

By M. P. MERRYMAN

(©, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Yellow October sunlight poured through the west windows of the library. Myriad dust particles floated along the slanting sun paths that slid abruptly into shadow at the table's edge. The assistant professor of biology sat humped over a book that lay upon the table before him, but he was not concentrating, at least not upon the text. With a thump of his fist that set the book jumping he raised his head and looked about the big, quiet room.

The assistant professor took off his glasses and rubbed his eyes and stretched. Then he shoved his hands into his pockets, tilted back in his chair and surveyed the shelves of dog-eared volumes opposite him. It gave him an immense satisfaction, this bare, low-vaulted room with its brown walls and solid, brown tables and its rows and rows of books.

The assistant professor pulled out a crumpled bit of paper from his pocket and smoothed it out upon the book, after which he continued to regard it with an expression of ironical amusement. It was a check made out to him for the amount of twelve dollars and fifty cents; a sum he had received in payment of a scientific article which it had taken him two months to write. It was a good article, too, but according to more than one editor "not sufficiently popular in tone."

He had been trying to make a decision. This last contemplation of the scrap of paper in his hand had served to topple the scales. He closed the book with a bang, uncrossed his long legs, rose from the table and ambled down the aisle to the door. Outside he stood for an instant blinking in the strong light. When he closed his eyes they still registered printed book pages. With something of the feeling of a stranger he turned and scuffed along the leaf-strewn path to the lake. Now that there was no longer any doubt about his departure the intimate landscape seemed all at once unfamiliar and different. He felt already detached from it—and sorry.

The moment the tip of her canoe veered round a bend in the shore line he recognized it and whistled. The assistant professor of English whistled her answer and waved an undignified paddle in greeting as her small craft slipped into sight.

"Want to come?" she called, invitingly.

"Sure!"

"All right! Climb in!"

The canoe nosed landward and slushed into the sand. With a lunge which shot the boat into deeper water and himself miraculously, into the boat, the new passenger embarked and took charge of the paddle.

"Where to?" he asked.

"Oh, anywhere," she replied and smiled at him.

He selected the most distant spot on the lake, laid the paddle across the canoe and rested his elbows on it.

"Takes longer this way," he explained.

She laughed and leaned sideways to watch a swirl of red and yellow leaves that went scudding along the surface of the water like a fleet of toy sailboats. The red of her tam-o'-shanter, however, held more fascination for him. At length the leaves whirled out of sight and she settled back in her seat to feast her eyes upon lake and trees and sky.

"I'm so sorry for all the folks who live in cities," she said.

"Why?"

She looked up inquiringly at the question. He had snapped it out so abruptly it puzzled her a little. He had begun paddling, too, furiously.

"Why?" she repeated. "Why, because they miss all this!" She waved a brown arm toward the rustling woods that shadowed them. "Wouldn't you hate to miss it?" she queried. The blade in his hand cut a long swath before he answered.

"I—I expect to miss it—after next Sunday," he said.

"You—you mean—?" Her question hung unfinished.

"Yes, I'm going away—to the city," he said dryly with a pucker of his mouth as if even the taste of the words was bitter to him.

"Oh!" She bit her lips and tried to go on speaking naturally, but her brain appeared to be turning a somersault—and no words came.

"Yes," he went on dully. "I'm going away. Decker has a fellow here now who can take my place. They've given me these last two days till college opens to decide. Well, I've made up my mind. I'm going to the city to live in a hall bedroom and work in an office—and sell rubber. I'll lose the selling rubber, but I've got to stick to it till I can make a decent enough living to ask a decent girl to marry me. I'd rather stay here and go on with my work than anything else on earth, but I'll be hanged if I'll ask my wife to wear second-hand clothes all her life or wear 'em myself. This digging along forever on seventy-five a month and board is getting my goat. Today this came. It was the last straw."

He drew his offending check from his pocket and flipped it into her lap. She read it and met his eyes when she had finished. "I—I don't know that I blame you much," she said.

They skimmed along for a time, each waiting for the other to speak. When she had made up her mind that he never expected to open his mouth again, she gave in. "And—how does—the girl—feel about it?" she inquired. "That would make—some difference—of course." Hours passed for her before he replied.

"I—I haven't—asked her—yet," he said hesitatingly.

With a little shiver of relief she sank back in her seat and caught back the smile in her eyes so that he might not see. He went on blustering, man-fashion:

"It isn't unreasonable, is it, to want enough to live on decently? I'm not aspiring to plumbers' wages, you know, or anything like that; but hang it, even a teacher's got to live."

She began speaking then and her voice grew softer and fuller as she went on. "I know," she replied. "It's unfair and it probably will be for a long time to come, but you can't have everything, you know, Bob. You have the work you like best in all the world. Not many men can say that."

"I know all that," he said, shaking his head in reply. "I've talked that way to myself, too, but all the same steam-heated apartments in town rent for $50 a month."

"So you have been house hunting?"

He had not even the grace to blush. "Sure!" he exclaimed. "Why shouldn't I? Even a poor devil of a pedagogue can look, can't he?"

She leaned forward, her eyes dancing, but for the moment she felt a little like his mother, nevertheless.

"Boy," she explained slowly and emphatically, "when you're a school-teacher you don't rent a steam-heated apartment in town; you get a cottage in the country and buy a good second-hand stove. For that matter, all the furniture is second-hand but you needn't look like that—it's nice! You buy a few pieces at a time and put on three coats of paint and then you enamel it and if you want to you paint little flow—"

He could not wait for her to finish. "And for an engagement ring," he jeered, "you buy some pretty little tin thing at the five and ten."

She shook her head defiantly till the red tassel bobbed. "No, you don't! You hunt up that lovely old amethyst ring of your mother's that you once showed to—to me."

He was still stubborn and unconvinced. "And then," he demanded, "when the house is rented and furnished—and everything—who pays the bills?"

Her patience reached its limit. "Can't you figure out anything for yourself?" she demanded angrily. "Some land goes with the cottage, of course; enough to raise garden truck for the—the family, and besides that you do whatever you can. Raise chickens or rabbits or bees or thoroughbred dogs or mushrooms or anything that sells—how can I tell exactly? Personally, I've made several hundred dollars writing 'detek-diff' stories. Maybe your—your wife could do something like that—after the dishes."

The assistant professor of biology began to believe he had died and gone to heaven. He felt as if he were treading on balloons that bore him higher and higher, yet strangely did not break. The prospect of remaining at his work made him giddy enough, but added to that the idea of wife and home was still beyond his rapidly expanding imagination.

"Do you—do you suppose—it could be done?" he demanded, and tried to swallow. The red mouth beneath the red tam-o'-shanter was quivering, but the round little chin was firm. "Of course it could!" she said.

"God!" murmured the assistant professor of biology fervently. "I—I almost believe it could, too! And you don't believe I'd be a low-down cad for asking the best little girl in the world to marry me and live like that?" His hands moved forward, eagerly awaiting the touch of the two steady ones that slipped into his own, while the paddle, unnoticed, slid into the water and floated away.

"I—I'm sure you wouldn't," she answered, "if—if you mean me!"

Move After Death in Family.

Of the inherited rover spirit of the wild people of Davao and their belief that the death of a member of the family is indicative of the will of Allah for them to change their homes, the bureau of forestry says:

"When someone dies in the house built on the land or homestead given to the head of a family, the entire family will move to some other place and in most cases the house is either burned or torn down and the land on which it was built is abandoned for some years. A wild bird of the pigeon family, locally known as alimukon, is the common god or fortune teller of the wild people of Davao. Unless this bird answers favorably to their supplications to go back to the old place, their old abode or abodes are either forever abandoned or left untouched for many years."

Children at Play.

You have but to go abroad for half an hour in pleasant weather, or to throw open your doors and windows on a Saturday afternoon, if you live anywhere in the neighborhood of a school house, or a vacant lot with here and there a patch of green or a dry place on it, and steal behind the curtains, or draw the blinds and let the fresh winds blow through and through the chambers of your heart for a few minutes, winnowing the dust and scattering the cobwebs that have gathered there while you were asleep, and lo, you will find it ringing with the voices of children at play, and all alive with the glimmering phantasmagoria of leap frog, prison base, or knock-up-and-catch.—John Neal.

No. 7416
Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
LAND COURT

To Joseph P. Loud, Charles E. Loud, Mary O'Gara, Metropolitan Real Estate Associates, Joseph Ruggiero, Adeline J. Carigan and Donato Bruno of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth; Goldie E. Landry, of Wintthrop, in said County of Suffolk; the Inhabitants of the Town of Weymouth, a municipal corporation located in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Charlena H. Martin, Edward I. Martin, E. Russell Sanborn, Martin M. Wetmore, Aeno Kankasalo, Lempi Nihitila, Kalle Hanhiala and Georgianna T. Merrill, of said Weymouth; John Genoa of Franklin, in said County of Norfolk; Mary A. Bartley of Malden, Jane E. Hannon of Everett, and Frances W. Scherer and Thordike H. Whittemore, of Newton, in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth; Herbert J. Libby, of Bryants Pond, in the State of Maine; any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Rebecca French, late of said Weymouth, deceased; and any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Elizabeth L. Whittemore, late of Arlington, in said County of Middlesex, deceased, who have not released their interest in the land hereinafter described; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Charles G. Jordan, Administrator of the Estate of John Shea, late of said Weymouth, deceased, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

Two certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Weymouth, bounded and described as follows:

First parcel: Easterly by Essex Street and on land of Lempi Nihitila; Northwesterly by land of Charlena H. Martin, Jane E. Hannon, Mary E. Bartley, Joseph Ruggiero and Georgianna T. Merrill; Southwesterly on land of Jane E. Hannon, Metropolitan Real Estate Associates, Inc., Joseph Ruggiero, Georgianna T. Merrill and Southwesterly on land of Joseph P. Loud, Charles E. Loud, Martin M. Wetmore, Kalle F. Hanhiala and Lempi Nihitila. Excepting from the above the lot bounded Northwesterly by the middle of Harvard Street 60 feet; Northwesterly by the middle of Avonia Avenue 120 feet; Southeastern on land of the petitioner 60 feet; Southwesterly on land of the petitioner 120 feet. Said parcel contains about 280,500 square feet of land and is subject to rights of way over the streets, roads and avenues shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned.

Second parcel: Westerly on Essex Street; Northwesterly on land of Edward I. Martin; Easterly on land of E. Russell Sanborn; and Southerly on land of Martin M. Wetmore; containing about 73,400 square feet of land.

Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land rights of way over the private ways shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned. The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-sixth day of January A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-sixth day of December in the year nineteen hundred and nineteen. Attest with Seal of said Court.

Church School will meet at 1.15 P. M. The Reds won the contest for attendance, and will be given a party by the Blues, probably on January 7. Attendance last week was 74, out of a possible 96. We should do better, and with help of parents we shall do better. Be loyal to your own. Mrs. E. R. Sampson, superintendent.

The Ladies Circle will meet on Wednesday, January 6, to prepare for the fair. All our ladies are invited to come.

The Old Colony Association will meet at this church on January 20. The people of our church will be the hosts.

An interesting talk was given by Bartlett Spooner of Quincy on travels abroad with Uncle Sam. Mr. Spooner will conclude his travel talks on January 11 with talks on "Rhelms and some of the French towns." This is under auspices of the Y. P. C. U.

FIRST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

Weymouth.

The subject of our address on Sunday is "From Man to Man," a message direct to you as we start a New Year. This church holds a welcome to all who desire a liberal religious worship. Worship at 10.30 A. M., Rev. E. Whipple, minister.

Church school will meet at 11.45. The children are doing excellent work in attendance. Those who do not come miss a golden opportunity, and their parents for them. Start the New Year right. Miss Esther Bicknell, superintendent.

Mr. Whipple concluded last Sunday his four talks on the "Place of Religion in Society," giving three religious ideals for 1920. First of these is the willingness to test new theories, or permit them to be tested out by those who so desire. Our government was and is an experiment, and Washington with his associates regarded it as such. Life altogether is an experiment, and the many new theories which have been set free in the world are the ones which have been tried out and proved. We should be willing to let Russia try her experiment if her people desire it.

Second, is the passion for truth, or to face the facts. This is a scientific age and we should study the findings of science to guide us in our progressive work. If an idea is good, it will eventually be set free no matter how much we fight against it. Many of our public holidays, and honored men represent the revolution against narrowness, prejudice, and tyranny. The slander of the gossiping public is far less dangerous to progress or personal happiness than the restrictiveness and narrowness of one's own particular mind or soul.

Third, is that religion interest men as well as women. The hereditary functions of the past have divided the sexes, man interesting himself in progress through business and politics, woman through the perpetuation of the race, and its training. Now we see that such a division has partially failed. Woman has brought up her children with care only to find that political and business interests marred or destroyed them for the best things. Man has evolved a great system of government only to see it crumble because people of sufficient ability to control it had not been reared. The two must join and each be interested in all the fundamental needs of progress, if we truly want to make a happy civilization for the future.

BOY SCOUTS BIRTHDAY

On February 8, 1920, there will be a tremendous birthday observance—that of the Boy Scouts of America. The scouts of every place will unite with hundreds of thousands of others all over the country in observance of the Tenth Anniversary of Scoutcraft. The celebration will continue for eight days.

It will also be known as Father and Son Week. During that time in hundreds of cities there will be fathers and sons banquets, where boys and men will get together for fellowship and mutual help.

The Anniversary is to have as one of its objects a request to every man, woman and child in the nation to "do a good turn daily" for one week, the same as the Boy Scouts do throughout the year.

Every Boy Scout, wherever he may be at 8:15 on the night of February 8, will stand at salute and repeat the Scout Oath, which is as follows:

On my honor I will do my best:
1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout law;
2. To help other people at all times;
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and normally straight.

The birthday will bring to popular attention an organization that has been a help to the country in patriotic and social work. The Boy Scouts of America has made a record of practical aid.

The Boy Scout program was designed, not for military service, but for the development of true American spirit, while developing the true American character in these sturdy embryo citizens. It has made boys whose principles are correct and complete.

WHY THAT LAME BACK?

That morning lameness—those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this Weymouth resident's example.

Mrs. F. Harper, 48 Granite St. says: "For a long time I was terribly troubled with my back and kidneys. I was sore and lame through the small of my back and over my hips. My back ached most of the time. My kidneys acted irregularly and annoyed me very much. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. I received excellent relief and the benefit has been permanent."

OVER A YEAR LATER Mrs. Harper said: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and it is a pleasure to again recommend them. Doan's have always given me fine relief."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Harper had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. 21,52-1 (Advertisement)

HOW WEYMOUTH OBSERVED HER 250 ANNIVERSARY

The Committee had designed to request Rev. Joshua Emery, who had just closed a long pastorate over the First Church in Weymouth, and had been invited to be present, to respond to the following sentiment:—"The Churches of Weymouth—the nurseries of civil as well as religious liberty," but by inadvertence, they had failed to communicate their desire in this regard. In his absence it was deemed advisable, on account of the want of time or responses to all the sentiments prepared, to omit the proposing of this; but to request Mr. Emery to respond in writing for publication, which he kindly consented to do, as follows:—

Most of these churches had a separate beginning during my pastorate of thirty-five happy years in the First Church. I am not sure, not having my record of statistics at hand, but think that the whole number of religious societies or churches in Weymouth at this date is sixteen. All except four of these, I think, have had their beginning since January 1, 1838. The Methodist Church at East Weymouth is one of these four, and when formed I have no certain knowledge. Of the other three churches, the Union Church, at Weymouth Landing, was organized in 1811; and the Second Church, located in South Weymouth, was formed in 1723; and the First Church, it is believed, had the nucleus of its beginning in 1623. For the space of one hundred years it stood alone, the whole town included within its precinct.

The earliest records of the First Church having been lost by fire, its early history cannot be known, except as gathered from the town records and from tradition. We have reason to believe that its faith, for substance, as expressed in its creed, is the same now that it was at the beginning. We know that strong and good men, long ago passed to their reward, ministered at its public altar. Some were men highly esteemed for their wisdom and counsel in the affairs of State; and all for their ability and virtue in pastoral work. We know that the church, so far as needing human aid, was sustained in its first century by strong pillars within and by strong aids outside its pale. "There were giants in the earth in those days," and some of the true Puritan race in Weymouth. Nor did the race become extinct with their death. They left behind them a seed whose children and children's children, in successive generations, have been faithful to the trust committed to them by the fathers, in maintaining religious institutions for their own and the public good. This, certainly, is the testimony of the observation and experience of thirty-five years of pastoral work with the descendants of the founders of the First Church in Weymouth. The same was the testimony of one who had been pastor of this church about forty years, when, near the beginning of my pastorate, he said to me, "The best wish I can leave with you is, that you may have as many and happy years among this people as I had."

When a church comes down the centuries crowned with the testimony of its successive pastors to its fidelity and purity in doctrine and practice, in maintaining and perpetuating its institutions and ordinances in its old age, surely it is worthy of being commended and honored on the occasion of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its birth. The churches which have grown up around it, and surely those which sprang from it, have good reason to rejoice in a percentage so venerable and worthy of grateful remembrance. Not in this world will it be fully known what has been the power of this church for good, and what the aggregate influence exerted by it in the far off, bygone years, upon the churches around and the community at large. The two hundred and fifty years of its record are closed and sealed until a future revelation. May the coming centuries have a record that shall correspond to the increase of knowledge and activities of the times upon which it has already entered and through which it has yet to pass. In the end may it be worthy of the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful."

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP.

A cold is probably the most common of all disorders and when neglected is apt to be most dangerous. Statistics show that more than three times as many people died from influenza last year, as were killed in the greatest war the world has ever known. For the last fifty-three years Boschee's Syrup has been used for coughs, bronchitis, colds, throat irritation and especially lung troubles. It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning. Made in America and used in the homes of thousands of families all over the civilized world. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Had the Idea, All Right. Teacher asked Gertrude if she knew the difference between "man" and "men." "A man is one man and men is a lot of mans," was the child's reply.

Looking for 'Em. "My husband is a man worth his weight in gold." "Then you had better never let him get near to the Mexican border."

"Cold In the Head" is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Persons who are subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the system, cleanse the blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. All Druggists 5c. Testimonials free. $1.00 for any case of catarrh that HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will not cure. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

WORLD'S HIGHEST PRICE PAID FOR COLT

A yearling colt, which brought the highest price ever paid for a youngster, $57,000, was recently sold at Doncaster, Eng., to Lord Glanely, a noted turfman.

This colt is by the noted Swynford, out of Blue Tit and is indeed a beauty.

OUTFIELDER MADE AN ASSIST UNKNOWNLY

Billy Evans, umpire par excellence, was fanning about some of the funny plays he has seen during a recent visit to New York. Said Bill:

"I have seen many funny things happen on the ball field. I once saw an American League outfielder lose a fly ball in the sun, have the ball strike him squarely on the top of the head, and then have the center fielder, who was also in pursuit of the hit, complete the catch. The box score gave the outfielder who had used his head an assist on the play. It was extremely funny to all concerned, except the athlete who lost the ball in the sun."

"I once saw a major league player hit for a home run, only to learn upon reaching the bench that he had retired himself midway between first and second, thereby pulling a colossal bone. There was a runner on first when he made his drive over the right fielder's head. The runner on first was a recruit. He believed the fielder would make the catch and played it safe by going midway between first and second. The batsman who hit the ball decided there was no chance for the fielder to make a play. He literally ran wild and passed the runner originally on first midway between that base and second. Of course the moment he passed the preceding runner he was out. He had hit the cleanest kind of a home run, yet in the records he received credit for only a single."

JESS WILLARD NOW THROUGH

Never Was Popular Champion and His Work During the War Did Not Help His Reputation.

Some one in Jess Willard's behalf either has been inspired, or else has been permitted, to throw out the subtle hint that the big fellow may enter the ring again. May the law and the fates forbid! Anyone who saw the big misfit in the ring at Toledo last July will never go to see him again, says Milwaukee Sentinel. He was everlastingly done there, hardly before he started. And not only that, but he is not now, nor has he ever been, popular enough to come back with any promise of support. Willard never was a popular champion. His work during the war did not help his reputation, and his poor showing against Dempsey was a finisher.

Jess Willard will do well to keep himself in seclusion which does not recall himself and his last exhibition to the patient American public. He is more popular outside the public eye and ear than he would be if he attempted to enter the ring again. Willard may not appreciate it, but he's done! He's through! And some one ought to tell him so.

PENN BOOSTING BASKET BALL

In Addition to Crack Varsity Quintet Will Form Junior and Two Freshmen Teams.

University of Pennsylvania, in addition to having a crack varsity basketball quintet this year, will also form a junior varsity and two freshmen teams. This is a fruit of athletics for all development.

NINE LONG RUNS MADE ON FOOTBALL GROUNDS

Any football player who can run 103 yards for a touchdown is a man who is not found once in a generation when you figure that the playing field is only 100 yards in length. This thing happened, however, a few days ago when Medsker, a half-back on Chase college, caught the kick-off back of his own goal line in a game against Mount Union and ran all the way to the other goal posts. It is said that only nine runs in the history of modern football have ever exceeded this.

INTERESTING SPORT PARAGRAPHS

Revival of the baseball players' fraternity is reported.

Cornell's rowing squad consists of 300 oarsmen and 18 coxswains.

American Trapshooters' association conducted 422 shoots last season.

That third league is going good so far. The receipts just balance the expenditures.

Pat Duncan's real name is Louis Bayard Duncan. That's the reason they call him Pat.

Chick Gandil has again made his declaration that he will not play ball with the White Sox next year.

The new owners of the Beaumont club of the Texas League have elected O. G. Greaves president and Kirby Jett secretary.

George Tyler, southpaw pitcher of the Cubs, has had his teeth fixed and the doctors say he will be a winning pitcher next season.

The Australian cricket board of control has invited a British cricket team to tour Australia in 1920-21 and will return the visit in 1921-22.

Jack Attel, a nephew of the well known brothers, Abe, Monte and Caesar has taken up boxing in San Francisco. He weighs 160 pounds.

President James J. McCaffery of the Toronto club thinks the International League made a mistake in granting a franchise to Akron instead of to Montreal.

Ernest Landgraf, who has the Newark franchise of the International League on his hands, makes it known that he may transfer it to Montreal or Scranton.

Heinie Zimmerman, premier third sacker of the Giants' aggregation, is under suspension, but Manager McGraw is expected to announce his reinstatement almost any day.

Albert A. Tearney of Chicago has been re-elected president of the Western league at the annual meeting of the club owners. Mr. Tearney also holds the presidency of the Three-I league.

In a recent athletic meet for blind soldiers, held in Toronto, Mr. Green won four out of twelve events, finishing first in the shotput, the hop, step and jump, standing broad jump and the sack race.

English football association, the governing council of the soccer code, has applications from the South Africa Football association and New Zealand for English eleven to visit those countries next season.

The Stanford bridge grounds near London, where the Chelsea Football club plays its English league and cup soccer games, has been improved and will accommodate 90,000 spectators, including 8,000 under cover.

"CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP" IS CHILD'S LAXATIVE

Look at tongue! Remove poisons from stomach, liver and bowels.

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package, then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fear.

Mother! You must say "California."—Adv.

Plausible Reasons.

The bishop of Birmingham said at a Los Angeles luncheon: "Church-going becomes rarer and rarer among the people as the years pass."

"In Birmingham one Sunday morning a clubman, seated at a club window, looked up from his Sunday paper and said:

"By George, there's Thompson and his wife on their way to church! I wonder what's up?"

"It's either," said a second clubman, "that Thompson has had another attack of heart trouble or else Mrs. Thompson has got a new dress."

HER FADED, SHABBY APPAREL DYED NEW

"Diamond Dyes" Freshen Up Old, Discarded Garments.

Don't worry about perfect results. Use "Diamond Dyes," guaranteed to give a new, rich, fadeless color to any fabric, whether it be wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.—dresses, blouses, stockings, skirts, children's coats, feathers, draperies, coverings—everything!

The Direction Book with each package tells how to diamond dye over any color.

To match any material, have dealer show you "Diamond Dye" Color Card.—Adv.

Apex of Happiness.

She—I wonder if you are happy in our love as I am.

He—Me? Why, I wouldn't change places with General Pershing.

Constipation can be cured without drugs. Nature's own remedy—selected herbs—is Garfield Tea.—Adv.

Yes, Rosie, time is money to the bookmaker when your horse falls to come in.

HURRY! YOUR HAIR NEEDS "DANDERINE"

Get rid of every bit of that ugly dandruff and stop falling hair.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After several applications all dandruff usually goes and hair stops coming out. Every hair in your head soon shows new life, vigor, brightness, thickness and more color.—Adv.

Then He Vanished.

Gwendoline, the eighteen-year-old daughter of the family, had received a splendid present from her young man, an engagement ring set with diamonds and rubies.

That evening at tea, when the happy pair were present, the conversation, naturally enough, turned to jewelry, and someone remarked that it was funny to think that we got pearls from oysters.

Whereupon Gwendoline's horrid little brother edged towards the door and remarked loudly:

"Oh, that's not half so funny as getting rings from mugs, is it, Gwen?"—London Answers.

ASPIRIN FOR COLDS

Name "Bayer" is on Genuine Aspirin—say Bayer

Name "Bayer" means genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Aspirin is trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoacetic Ester of Salicylic Acid.—Adv.

What She Said.

Mrs. Nextdoor—Did you really say that I was bad-tempered with my children? Mrs. Gibbs says so.

Mrs. Overthway—No, indeed, dear. I told her, on the contrary, that you must have the disposition of an angel to put up with them at all.—Columbia State.

Query: Does a man suffer more by ignorance or by knowledge?

Drive This Month For YD Clubhouse in Boston

PROPOSED YD CLUBHOUSE IN BOSTON

Most of the 26th Division of World War Veterans live in New England, and ten thousand are within easy reach of Boston. These men are bound to each other by the closest of ties, that of a common danger constantly faced in a common cause. They are bound to the past by the memories of their dead.

For months they have been asking General Edwards, for God's sake, General, can't you find some place where we can meet the Buddies we knew in France? For months they and their families of their 1730 dead comrades have been groping for some memorial that will permanently express the spirit of the Division.

Finally it has been decided to combine both the craving for past associations and the desire for a memorial in a single object, a Yankee Division Club in Boston where every man of the Division may meet on equal terms and where its heart may be kept beating.

To do this will take $200,000. The men in the Division are themselves contributing all and more than they can afford, hoping to raise $50,000. The balance of $150,000 the Division asks from its friends in New England.

The YD volunteered for its job. It asks its friends to volunteer for this. In all its history the YD has asked for but one thing—its place in the line.

A house has been picked out in St. Botolph street. It is a brick structure, 4 stories high, and it is hoped to fit it with every necessary equipment for comfort and pleasure.

The building of this club house and the raising of funds should be a subject of interest for all people of this town, whether they have relatives or friends connected with the Yankee Division or not. It was this Division that was the first to sail across the ocean and take up their place on the battle front to confront the Huns.

In the Division were many men from this town, and they will always be known as the Minute Men of 1917. They constituted the vanguard of the great American army that was to come, they stemmed the tide, at Seicheprey and Chateau Thierry, and then with the co-operation of the huge army that came in 1918, they pushed forward, shoulder to shoulder, and drove the Hun back across the Rhine.

Now for the first time they come forward and ask you, one and all, to help build with them a memorial for those that still lie in France, not by large sums from individuals, but by small amounts from all.

The chairman of the executive committee having the affair in charge is Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole; Major-General Clarence R. Edwards is chairman of the Finance committee; Allen Forbes, treasurer of all committees. The governors of the six New England States are of the honorary advisory committee.

The state has been divided into districts. The south shore district will have headquarters in Hingham. It is comprised of Hingham, Weymouth, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, Hanover, Norwell, Rockland and Abington.

Mr. James Cresswell of Hingham has been chosen chairman of the Hingham district, and he has appointed Alfred Hall finance officer.

Mr. Cresswell has made the following appointments for the town of Weymouth, Director of Campaign, Eugene Smith; publicity, Thos. MacDonald; finance, Francis Nugent.

For North Weymouth, Director of Campaign, Thos. Coleman, with Arthur Burgess finance and publicity.

Subscriptions should be sent to finance officer of either district.

The drive will be from January 12 to 18.

A meeting of the district committee was held at the home of Mrs. N. F. Emmons Sunday evening. A ball at Agricultural hall will be one of the features of YD week.

Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards is chairman of the Woman's committee which will assist, and she has appointed Mrs. N. F. Emmons as chairman of the Hingham district.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

There is much unrest all over the world and the United States is not entirely immune from Bolshevism. What is needed to avert one of the most dreadful of all calamities is the Americanization of all foreign born within our borders and to rescue those fortunate enough to be born in this country from the slough of despond, to improve their surroundings and give them a more hopeful and cheerful view of the future. To impress upon the foreign born the necessity of being good citizens is one of the greatest objects of Community Service.

There is room in every community for earnest work in this direction and there seems no questioning the statement that Community Service is the best equipped organization to accomplish this tremendous task. It has the machinery and the leaders and it already has proved its worth in a number of cities. Neighborhood and community works are not new in this country, but there is a new promise of force through national organization in the nation-wide plans of Community Service.

Roosevelt said that "no man could be part American and part something else" and truer words were never uttered. The citizens of this country must be all American or nothing. The program of Community Service calls for a great movement to make thorough-going Americans of all of our foreign born population. Americanization is the common term but higher and better citizenship are better words. Through various methods Community Service plans to instill into the alien born the ideals that will counteract unrest and place the dis- of unrest in the background.

G.A.R. and W.R.C. Joint Installation

A joint installation of the new officers of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R., and Reynolds Relief Corps was held Tuesday evening at Grand Army hall, both organizations having special guests. Officers of the allied patriotic organizations and Weymouth Post, American Legion were also invited.

The installing officer of the Post was Past Commander Henry A. Monk of Braintree, who was assisted by Past Commander Pierson of Braintree as officer of the day.

The installing officer of the Corps was Eliza S. Griffin of Roxbury, Department I and I officer, who was assisted by Fannie M. Wheeler of Brighton as conductor. The guests of the Corps were Bertha Walker of Wollaston, department senior aid; Freda Heuser of Department Executive Board; Anna Glass, president of the Quincy corps; Margaret Pierson, president, and Anna Thayer, secretary of the Braintree corps; and Etta Pierce, president of the Hingham corps.

A reception was first on the program, and was followed by a banquet served by the following committee: Mrs. Caroline Sewall, chairman; Mrs. Sarah Horsley, Mrs. Sadie Wolfe, Mrs. Eunice Rowell, Mrs. Elizabeth Wren, Mrs. Mary Dunbar, Mrs. Grace Walker, Mrs. Adelaide Madan, Mrs. Alice Sholes, Mrs. Elizabeth Abram, Mrs. Margaret Green, Mrs. Pauline Cope, and Mrs. Annie Pike.

During the installation ceremonies Mary R. Flint presided at the piano. The principal address of the evening was delivered by Rev. J. B. Holland of the Sacred Heart church which was well received.

The Corps presented the installing officer and her conductor cut glass dishes, and the officers presented Carrie F. Loring a travelling bag. The Jolly Eight presented the new president a bouquet, and bouquets were also presented to the installing officer of the Post and to the pianist.

The new officers of Reynolds Post were published in the Gazette-Transcript, Dec. 5, at the time of the election, the commander being Maj. Francis A. Bicknell who was re-elected, as were most of the other officers.

The newly installed officers of Reynolds Corps are:

President, Mary E. Brassil
Senior Vice President, Clara E. Maynard
Junior Vice President, Ada Pease
Treasurer, Carrie F. Loring
Chaplain, Ellen E. Kidder
Secretary, May Barrows
Conductor, F. Lizzie Burr
Guard, Margaret E. Green
Assistant Conductor, Catherine Day
Assistant Guard, Ella Abrams
Press Correspondent, Mary E. Mahoney
Patriotic Instructor, Della Caulfield
Color Bearers, Jennie Keene, Fannie Murphy, Mary D. White and Sarah Schlimper Musician, Mary R. Flint

—Mrs. Ralph A. Denbroeder presided on Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Old South Union Congregational Church, held in the chapel. The following were elected: Mrs. Freeman Putney Jr. president; Mrs. Walter R. Field and Mrs. David M. Crawford, vice presidents; Mrs. Frank Funnell, secretary; Mrs. Braham A. Bennett, treasurer; Mrs. Sarah Tirrell, auditor; Mrs. Freeman Putney Sr. press correspondent; Mrs. Henry C. Alvord, Mrs. Ralph A. Denbroeder, Mrs. Joseph L. Jannell, Mrs. George L. Barnes, Mrs. Elliott H. Gage, Mrs. Raymond B. Cooper, Mrs. C. B. Coleman and Miss Anna Cady, directors.

JITNEY MEN FINED

The two jitney bus operators at North Weymouth, William J. McCarthy and Thomas J. Dolan, were fined $10 each in the Quincy Court on Saturday, but an appeal was taken, and the case goes to the Superior Court at Dedham.

Town Counsellor Albert P. Worthen of Weymouth appeared for the town and Walter M. Smith of Boston for the defendants.

Judge Avery, who presided, suggested at the outset that the case involved certain phrases of the law that had not been passed upon by the upper court and asked if an agreement on a statement could not be reached so that the case might be sent up.

Attorney Worthen said he would seek to prove that the defendant had been running jitney buses from North Weymouth to the yards of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation at Quincy, and also to shoeshops within the limits of Weymouth, without being authorized to do so. He also said that while it had been claimed that these drivers had not been collecting fares from their passengers, he would seek to prove that they had been hired by the North Weymouth Social Club, an incorporated body, to transport these men to their work.

He would charge, he said, that the men paid in to the club a sufficient amount to meet the expense of operating the buses and that the club had been organized for the purpose of evading the operation of the jitney bus regulations of the town, as each passenger was entitled to ride upon showing a card signed by the officers of the club.

Attorney Smith admitted these facts to be substantially correct, but asserted that the law did not apply to the case at issue. He declared that the statute giving the Selectmen power to make regulations covering the operation of traffic upon the town's highways, applied to common carriers. A jitney bus operator acted as a common carrier, he said, when he ran his bus along certain designated points and stopped to take on or leave passengers indiscriminately. The men on trial, he said, did not operate in this fashion and, therefore, could not be considered in such a class.

Judge Avery expressed the opinion that the club had been organized for the purpose of evading the Weymouth town regulations and in order to allow the case to get to a higher court for a settlement of the legal questions, found the defendants guilty and fined each of them $10. An appeal was taken and each was held in bonds of $100 for the April session of the superior court at Dedham.

NEW CHURCH

A meeting of those interested in organizing a Christian Science church in Weymouth was held Tuesday evening in the building on Cottage street formerly known as the Unitarian church, L. C. Strang presided.

It was voted to form the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Weymouth. A committee on by-laws, Edward I. Farrington chairman, and a committee on church building, Mrs. Frank White of Braintree chairman, were appointed. When the church building occupied for the meeting is in proper condition (repairs are now being made) and the church is properly organized, regular Sunday services and a week night meeting will be held.

EASTERN STAR INSTALLATION

A public installation of the newly elected officers of Mayflower chapter, O. E. S., was held Tuesday evening in the large room in the Masonic Temple, the installing officer being Lillian Welch, associate and deputy grand patron, who was assisted by Clanton Godfrey as grand patron and Muriel Hoffman as grand marshal. Mrs. Frederick McDowell was the pianist. A banquet was served and the affair closed with dancing. The retiring patron, Miss Helen J. Murray, and the retiring patron, Edgar F. Ball were presented with jewels of rank. The installing officer and members of her suite received bouquets of flowers. Many out of town visitors attended.

BONUS CHECKS OF $6,000

The 58 employees of the George H. Bicknell Co., Inc., were very pleasantly surprised on Monday, when the firm presented them with bonus checks aggregating nearly six thousand dollars. The largest amount received by any one individual was $200. The average was nearly $100.

BOARD OF TRADE

The January meeting of the Board of Trade is called on Thursday evening, Jan. 15, at the Clapp Memorial Building. The notice urges a full attendance of members and concludes, "this organization will disband unless better supported."

Several Sites For Proposed Memorial Hall

On Tuesday the committee on the proposed Memorial Town Hall for Weymouth viewed some of the sites suggested as locations. They were accompanied by Arthur Shurtleff, an expert on town planning, the architect Harold Field Kellogg, and Russell H. Whiting, the town engineer. It is not known what lot, if any, is favored.

The Ward Three member of the committee is Joseph F. Kelley, not Albert P. Worthen as previously reported.

Some of the sites considered are:

Lot of Elizabeth E. Farmer, 132 Middle street, corner Maple street, 57,000 square feet.

Lots of Walter E. Tirrell, G. W. Batchelder and Mary Levangle on Broad street, between Cain avenue and the Masonic Temple.

Four lots of Frances H. Clapp on Middle street, corner Broad street. Estate of Edward Flannery on Broad street, 180,200 square feet.

Estate of William H. Green at corner of Broad street and Spring street and running through to Essex street, 263,100 square feet.

Estate of Dennis Cohan, et al, on Broad street, near Broad street place, 328,200 square feet.

Estate of Thomas Our on Middle street near High school, containing over one million square feet.

Wessagusset Club Welcome War Veterans

The annual banquet of the Wessagusset Club of North Weymouth was held at the clubhouse on Monday evening, and was a very enjoyable occasion. Over 50 members sat down to the bountiful turkey dinner provided.

Ten of the members of the club were in service in the World War, and the banquet was a welcome home to them. Maj. Francis A. Bicknell, the commander of the local Grand Army Post delivered the address of welcome, and the response was by Edgar Stiles.

The club elected these officers for the ensuing year:

President, Edgar W. Stiles
Vice President, J. Gardner Alden
Collector, J. Herbert Libby
Secretary, Stanley T. Torrey
Treasurer, Frank H. Torrey
House Committee, E. C. Culley, E. W. Sampson and Frank B. Cushing.
Membership Committee, Clarke Page, Arthur Burgess and Herbert Collier.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. James Brayshaw of 43 Sea street, North Weymouth, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding at their family home on Sunday, Jan. 4.

Fifty years ago, James Brayshaw and Martha Sweet of Jacksonville, Ill., were married by Rev. Thomas Heath, pastor of the Methodist church of that town.

Since 1884 Mr. and Mrs. Brayshaw have resided in North Weymouth, making many friends who flocked to greet them on the anniversary day.

At the family dinner served at one o'clock covers were laid for 27. The house was prettily decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums, potted plants and ferns.

From 5 till 8 Mr. and Mrs. Brayshaw held a reception and were assisted in receiving by their sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bray-shaw of North Weymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Tutty of North Weymouth; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Glidden of Wollaston, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stiles, Edmund H. Brayshaw and James M. Brayshaw of North Weymouth. The six grandchildren of the couple were also present.

An orchestra composed of members of the family gave selections during the afternoon and evening. Mr. and Mrs. Brayshaw were the recipients of many tokens of remembrance.

MARY FRANCES LOUD

In the death of Miss Mary F. Loud, which occurred January third, there has passed from our community a loving home maker, a devoted church worker, a patriotic citizen, and a woman of rare culture of mind and spirit.

Miss Loud, who was born in Weymouth, August 9, 1854, was the daughter of Francis E. and Mary T. (Capen) Loud and a direct descendant of Elder Brewster of the Plymouth Colony. In her life and work she upheld the best traditions of her Pilgrim ancestry. She was graduated from Bradford Academy in 1872.

Miss Loud has always resided in her native town, and with loving devotion has maintained the family home since the death of her parents. She is survived by a brother, Professor Frank H. Loud of Colorado Springs, Colorado, and a sister, Miss Annie G. Loud of Weymouth.

From childhood associated with the First Church in Weymouth, Miss Loud united with the church at an early age, and has since been actively interested in carrying on its work. The zeal with which she has devoted herself to its upbuilding is shown by the positions which she has held,—teacher in the Sunday School, secretary of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, secretary of the Women's Society, (Continued on page 8)

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Treaty Compromisers Still Are Hopeful but Wilson Shows No Signs of Yielding.

PROGRESS OF THE BOLSHEVIK

Sign Armistice With Estonia and Worry Japan by Siberian Advance—Congress Gets Lots of Advice on Railway Legislation.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Prospects of a satisfactory compromise in the treaty situation in the United States senate were not much brightened by the developments of last week. The compromisers were unremitting in their efforts, however, and one of them, Senator Pomeroy, after a conference with Senator Lodge, said: "I believe we will get together. None of the reservations which the majority of the senate adopted is as bad as defeat of the treaty. The country wants the treaty ratified promptly."

The signs that a good many Democrats were ready to abandon the administration's policy of ratification without reservation caused Secretary Tumulty to visit the capitol and study the situation for the president. He had a long talk with Senator Hitchcock, and while neither would give the details of the conference, Mr. Hitchcock said: "We've got a long row to hoe yet before we reach a compromise." He added that nothing Mr. Tumulty said indicated the slightest sign that the president would yield in his refusal to compromise in the fight.

Meanwhile the supreme council in Paris, which had made up its mind to go ahead without waiting longer for the United States, ran up against a snag. It had fixed January 6 as the day on which the protocol should be signed and ratifications of the German treaty be exchanged, and then discovered that the German delegates did not have full power to act. Steps to rectify this were taken. The supreme council learned that there were still some 80,000 German troops in upper Silesia, where a plebiscite is to be held, and it was decided Germany should be told it had better remove them at once. It was also planned to send a mission of allied officers to supervise the withdrawal of Hungarian troops that are in that part of western Hungary that was given to Austria.

On the last day of the year the Estonians and soviet Russians in conference at Dorpat signed a seven days' armistice, the protocol including a temporary adjustment of boundaries, military guarantees and recognition of the independence of Estonia. It was assumed that this agreement would soon be followed by the conclusion of a definite peace between the two countries.

In a New Year's greeting to the world, sent from Moscow by wireless, the soviet government promises that in 1920 it will victoriously end the civil war in Russia, that soviets will be established in Berlin, Washington, Paris and London, and that soviet authority will be supreme throughout the world.

General Semenov is now the dominant figure among the anti-bolsheviks of Siberia. Following his disastrous defeat and the swift advance eastward of the soviet armies, Admiral Kolchak went into eclipse. His forces melted away rapidly, and in the Irkutsk region mutiny and anarchy prevailed. The entente allies and the United States seem quite disinclined to intervene further in the affairs of Russia by force of arms, in which they probably are wise, and it appears to be up to Japan to stop the onward sweep of bolshevism in the far East, if it can be done at all. The impression prevails that the Japanese will be given a free hand on their assurance that they have no intention of annexing any additional territory.

They declare their only aim is to protect their land from the poison of bolshevism. The Japanese premier has indicated that any general advance of the soviet forces beyond the southeast side of Lake Baikal will result in outright war between the Japanese and the bolsheviks.

Premier Nitti and Foreign Minister Scialoja of Italy have gone to Paris and London to try to bring about an adjustment of the Adriatic dispute favorable to Italy. The latter, addressing the Italian senate, said Mr. Lansing's proposal for the neutralization of the Dalmatian islands and the surrounding sea as far as Ragusa was intolerable, since it would leave a part of the Italian coast exposed to the same attack as in the late war, but he believed Great Britain and France could persuade President Wilson to change his views.

"M. Clemenceau and Mr. Lloyd George told me," said the foreign minister, "that if France, England and Italy agreed, even going beyond the terms of President Wilson, they believed they could present the agreement to President Wilson and induce him to accept it in the interest of European peace."

If the conferees of the senate and house do not arrive at a satisfactory solution of the railway bill puzzle, it will not be for lack of advice, expert and inept. All sorts of organizations have been taking a whack at it, and all of them are directly interested. The American Federation of Labor, the four railway brotherhoods and ten railway shopmen's unions affiliated with the federation got together in Washington and told what they wished, what they hoped for and what they would not countenance. In the first place, they declared themselves in favor of two years more of government operation of the railways, in order to give the principle of government ownership a real test. They realized that the return of the roads to their owners on March 1 is now a certainty, but gave notice that they will make government ownership a political issue in the future. As for the pending legislation, they declared themselves against the anti-strike feature and the penalty provisions against ceasing work, and in favor of the features which tend to establish better relations between the employees and the carriers, and urged that these features be extended to the sleeping car and Pullman company employees. The railway shopmen already have voted to strike if congress adopts the Cummins anti-strike provision, and it is believed the brotherhoods might adopt the same course.

Next, the American Bankers' association told what it considered necessary to rehabilitate the impaired credit of the roads. It favors the speedy return to private ownership; the voluntary but not compulsory consolidation of railroad properties; permissive federal incorporation; exclusive regulation and control of the issue of stocks and bonds by railroads and water common carriers by a federal board; a government guarantee to the roads for six months after the end of federal control, of net operating income equal to the standard return for the same period during federal control; and an extension of the carriers' indebtedness to the government for capital expenses to run serially for from ten to twenty years. All these features are in either the Cummins or the Esch bill, and some of them are in both.

Another group vitally interested in the railway legislation is the shippers, and these gentlemen, at a national conference in Chicago, besides recommending higher rates for the roads, adopted resolutions in substance as follows:

"We are opposed to the creation of a transportation board as provided in the Cummins bill.

"We oppose the appropriation by the government of the excess earnings of a railroad company.

"We oppose the scheme of rate-making groups and standardization of earnings therein as provided for in the Cummins bill.

"We are opposed to the consolidation of the railroads and the division of the country into rate groups as provided in the Cummins bill.

"We are in favor of legislation which will permit the return of the railroads to their owners at the earliest possible moment and permit operation by them.

"We are in favor of legislation that will effectually prevent the catastrophe that would follow a general railroad strike and at the same time fully recognize the rights of the laborer and all parties in interest."

President Wilson's second industrial conference has put forward a tentative plan for the settlement of industrial disputes and adjourned until January 12, when it will be ready to listen to criticisms of its scheme from interested parties. So far the comments on the plan have ranged all the way from warm praise to ridicule. As machinery for conciliation the conference proposes this:

1. A national industrial tribunal, appointed by the president, to serve as a board of appeal for the final adjustment of wage and other controversies.

2. Twelve regional chairmen, appointed by the president, who will form boards on occasion from established panels of employers and employees for the adjustment of particular disputes.

3. Regional boards of inquiry to investigate and report upon any dispute which either or both parties refuse to settle through a board of adjustment.

4. Umpires to whom a board may refer a dispute for decision.

The plan does not propose to do away with the ultimate right to strike, to discharge or to maintain the closed or the open shop; but a decision under it would be binding on both parties, having the force and effect of a trade agreement. The conference believes policemen, firemen and other government employees should be denied the right to strike, but not the right to associate for mutual protection or the presentation of grievances.

Numerous deaths in many parts of the country, due to the drinking of bogus whisky made of wood alcohol, have aroused the authorities and have spread dismay in the ranks of those who were relying on "moonshine" liquor for their evasions of the prohibition laws. Criminal gangs in several cities have engaged in the manufacture of this deadly drink, and have profited enormously, but some of their members are now under arrest and probably many others will be caught and punished. Their victims, naturally, are mainly of the poorer classes, which could not afford to lay in "private stocks" before the sale of liquor became illegal. If the wood alcohol is not fatal to the drinkers, it is almost certain to cause total blindness. As one result of the deaths the bureau of internal revenue will recommend to congress the passage of a law subjecting the manufacture and sale of wood alcohol to the same restrictions as grain alcohol.

Attorney General Palmer has no fear that the red movement will go far enough in this country "to disturb our peace and well-being, or create any widespread distrust of the people's government." And in order that it may not go so far, he announces, the department of justice will keep up a persistent and aggressive warfare against the radicals. He says some 2,000 of them will be deported in the near future, and in order to have enough on hand to fill up the "soviet arks" his agents on New Year's day took a large number of the reds into custody. Mr. Palmer urges that the radical propaganda be countered by teaching its purpose through the press, the church, the schools, the labor unions and patriotic organizations.

Death claimed two distinguished members of America's fighting forces last week—Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry and Rear Admiral John E. Pillsbury. General Barry was in active service from the time of his graduation from West Point in 1877 until his retirement, last August. He did excellent work in the Philippines, commanded the army of Cuban pacification, and in the war with Germany tried earnestly to obtain a divisional command in France, but was kept at home because of his physical condition. Admiral Pillsbury, who was graduated from the naval academy in 1882, was retired in 1908 for age, with 25 years' sea service to his credit. During the Spanish war he commanded the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius.

CAP and BELLS

NO SPHINXES FOR HIM.

"I want to keep talking," said Senator Sorghum, "at least enough to prevent any general reference to me as a sphinx."

"But such references imply a certain degree of compliment."

"I don't think so. The sphinx is made up of such contradictory elements that he can't be classified, and the only remark I ever heard attributed to one was largely in the nature of a joke."

A GREAT HEAD.

1st Carrot—Bright chap, isn't he?
2nd Carrot—Yes, that's Mr. Cabbage. He has a great head on him.

Unkind Suggestion.

The swan sings but one song—or so on good authority we've heard. Oh, how we wish some folk we know would imitate that gentle bird.

Candidly Defined.

"What is your idea of a free government?"

"A free government," said the bolshevik, "is one that offers no opposition to our efforts to kick it to pieces and start something under our exclusive control."

Explained.

"What do you mean by saying that the prisoner struck you amidstships?"
"Well, you see, judge, I had just had one schooner and was reaching for another when he hit me."

Real Joy.

"Was Maude honestly glad to see you when you came home?"

"Glad? Why, when she came rushing in to greet me I saw at once she'd forgotten to powder her nose."

Suitable One.

"What is the reigning style of floral decoration for brides just now?"
"I don't know, but it ought to be a shower bouquet."

Their Advantage.

"Good typewriters are always in demand."
"No wonder; they have their business at their fingers' ends."

Naturally.

"What do you think of the record flyer's remarkable feat?"
"That with his remarkable feat he marks a long step forward."

Something Learned.

"Has the government taught you anything about railroading?"
"Yes," replied the old-time railroad manager. "It has taught us that the traveling public can be made more docile and forbearing than we had imagined in our fondest hopes."

PRETTY.

"Is she very pretty?"
"Very. She keeps her father broke buying gowns to equal her face."

Agitations.

Through centuries the world has faced, Philosophers assert, It has been very often scared, But seldom badly hurt.

Arbitrary Assertion.

"How can you assume to speak with authority on this subject, which you have not studied thoroughly?"
"That, sir," replied the uncompromising citizen, "is the very method by which I show my authority."

Wrong Emotion.

Doctor—Madam, I am sorry to have to tell you that we are despairing of your husband's recovery.
Prospective Rich Widow—I don't see why you are despairing about it. I'm not.

CURRENT WIT and HUMOR

BIG UNDERTAKING.

"Few people realize the broad expanse of our nation's territory."

"Sometimes," commented Senator Sorghum, "I wonder if the expanse is not almost too broad. It is very difficult to cover all the points you would like to include in a speechmaking tour."

Joyous Generalities.

"I don't believe people fully understand what you mean by a soviet government."

"They are not supposed to understand it," replied the agitator. "When people fully understand a proposition like that they are almost certain to pick out objections to it."

Illogical Treatment.

"Ma, why do people talk about the cream of things?"

"Because the cream of a thing is always considered the best," my son.
"If cream is the best, then why do they whip it?"

An Elaborate Dinner.

"Was it a good dinner?"
"Splendid. All the time I was at their table I kept thinking that they were serving us food far more expensive than they could afford."

Obedying His Wishes.

Jim—And now that we are engaged let's keep it a secret for several months, dear.

Julie—Of course, Jim. I'll tell everyone that.

A Considerable Genius.

Miss de Jones—Are you musical, Prof. Paddyrusky?
Prof. Paddyrusky—Oh, yes, but if you want to play don't mind my feelings?

EARLY SYMPTOMS.

"I'd like to see that office boy of mine thirty years from now."

"Why so?"
"He ought to make a wonder as a tired business man."

Undisputed Autocrat.

To the most eminent of men
Of strength there comes a loss,
Which makes him own that now and then
The doctor is the boss.

Demonstration.

"Straws show which way the wind blows."
"Nobody needs to be told that who has ever chased his hat up the street."

Hard-Boiled Economy.

"You used to take your eggs soft-boiled."
"Eggs were less expensive then. Just now nobody can afford to risk spilling any part of one."

Jays of Economy.

"Why do you smile when the high cost of living is mentioned?"
"I am thinking of the large amount I now save every time I forego a needless expenditure."

The Mind of a Motorist.

"What do you regard as the most important of our railroad problems?"
"Beating an express train over a grade crossing," answered Mrs. Chuggins.

The Logical One.

"I wonder if it is dark inside the big ships?"
"Why, don't they always have a skylight?"

Its Sort.

"What's oral surgery, pa?"
"I guess it is the kind that mends a man's speech."

Experience.

First Slum Mother—Haven't those settlement girls nerve to come and tell us how to take care of children?

Second Ditto—I should say. Here I've nursed seven through everything a baby kin have and buried five of 'em.

His Failure.

"The bad orator is a man who does evil with a good intention."
"How do you make that out?"
"Because he often murders a good speech while trying to deliver it."

HOME TOWN HELPS

SAVINGS INVESTED AT HOME

Illustration of What a Little Forethought Can Do to Aid in Town's Development.

The business men of an Ohio community discovered, some years ago, that a considerable portion of the savings of its people were flowing out into the hands of promoters of wild-cat schemes, and that other funds were being invested outside the community in enterprises that were certainly no more promising than the community itself could afford.

So a committee of members of the commercial organization was formed, and it was announced that this committee would pass upon investments offered to the people—this being before Ohio had a "blue sky" law. The commercial body frankly announced that capital was needed for the further development of the city's natural resources. While members of the commercial body pledged themselves to give preference to local investments, there was little difficulty in gaining almost as complete co-operation from non-members of the organization. Money was kept at home, and it went largely into the financing of the city's natural industrial expansion.

Here was another instance wherein the natural course of development was most obvious, but in this one the people saw it, while in so many instances they overlook it.—The Nation's Business.

GRADE-CROSSING WARNING

Determined to prevent a repetition of a grade-crossing disaster that cost a life, the citizens of Topsham, Me., have posted near the tracks this advertising sign.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Work Before Community.
At a Boston chamber of commerce luncheon, the secretary, besides presenting a list of thirty-four projects, including that for the erection of a Liberty memorial, which are being considered by committees or special representatives of the chamber, offered five suggestions for what the organization calls its "One Big Job."

"A city," he said, "is not made by location or by natural resources; it is made by the thought of the community. Our community should think and act as one. Our list of thirty-four tasks makes up a sane, progressive, constructive program, but is there one of the thirty-four that is big enough to challenge the attention of the community? Is there one fine enough to be the least common denominator of the community—big enough that all the organizations of the city may join with us in its handling—big enough to characterize the dignity of the organization—big enough to require a point of contact established with every family, if not every soul, in the community?"

"What is our one big job? Is it to build a new library? Is it to promote better industrial relations? Is it to build a new high school? Is it to urge commission government? Is it to attack anarchy and bolshevism in our community?"

Laying Out Grounds.

When laying out grounds, planting plans should be made first showing the location of every tree and shrub on the place. Decide whether the method of planting is to be formal or natural. In the city or town lots where space is limited the formal plan is perhaps the best, while with the large suburban homes and country places there is a splendid opportunity for the development of the natural style. Where the area is large it is possible to have a small body of water, groves of trees, and large groups of shrubbery. For small lots, where more care can be given to the plants, an elaborate plan may be advisable. In some cases home makers are able to devote a great deal of time to the upkeep of the landscape. Some trim their hedges in such shapes and fashions that green statues of all the animals and fowls of the barnyard are left posing on the lawn.

For Better School Sanitation.

School sanitation is one of the things which the community needs to investigate in many cases. Results from many counties show that the elementary schools have a harmful effect on the health of the children. It has been found that for a period of twenty years the gain in weight is much greater during vacation than during the school year. It is estimated that the factors causing this are sanitation, air, water and light, physical exercise, overstrain and fatigue and insufficient food.

PLAN FOR SMALL FRAME HOUSE

Makes Comfortable Dwelling and Is Inexpensive.

HAS ATTRACTIVE EXTERIOR

Design for Home That Will Appeal to the Builder Who Wants Room for Large Family at Low Cost.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Home builders may be placed in two general classes. In one class are those who build a home because they want a place that has an exterior that pleases them, and is arranged inside to suit their ideas of what a home should be. In the other class are those who have an eye to the future; they build a home that will be the most easily saleable should the occasion require. Consequently, the latter select designs for homes that will meet the needs of the greatest number of people.

During the last ten years many thousands of frame houses have been erected that have what might be termed a "standard" room arrangement. These houses contain either six or seven rooms, all arranged after a manner that has been found to best employ the available space. From this statement, it might be inferred that the exteriors are "standard" also; that all of these houses look alike. That is a mistake, for architects by altering the roof lines; changing the designs of the porches and by adding a dormer window to this one, and changing its location in the next one have planned rows rooms and on the second floor three rooms and the bathroom. The entrance at one end of the porch leads into a reception hall, on one side of which are the stairs to the second floor and on the other, connected by a double cased opening, the living room. This room, while not large, is big enough to provide a comfortable sitting place. It is practically square, being 13 feet 3 inches by 13 feet. The dining room, also connected by a double opening, is 11 by 14 feet. The double openings into the dining room and hall make the living room appear larger than it is and take away the sense of smallness that a room closed off would have.

The dining room is attractive and cheerful, made so by the bay, which has two good-sized windows. At the rear of the dining room is the kitchen, 9 by 12 feet, which has a large pantry. At the side of the dining room is a bedroom, 9 feet 6 inches by 14 feet.

The three bedrooms upstairs all are well lighted and well ventilated. Each room sets into a gable, one at each side of the house and the other at the

of such houses that are exceedingly dissimilar in outward appearance.

Accompanying this article is a story-and-a-half frame house that has a "standard" floor plan. But its exterior is different from most of those that have this interior layout. Its steep pitched roof, extending over the porch, the gables on either side and over the dormer, and the projecting roof rafters all make this house "individual." Then there is the unique combination of plain siding, shingles and the touch of

First Floor Plan. stucco that is found at the porch corners.

The size of this house is 22 feet by 38 feet, but it contains seven good rooms and bath. Consequently, it is a house that can be set on a narrow lot, and at the same time provide accommodations for a family larger than the average.

On the first floor there are four front. All are connected by a short hall, opening off of which in the center of the house at the rear is the bathroom, located conveniently to every bedroom. Each of the upstairs bedrooms has a closet, while there are two more downstairs, one in the entrance hall and one in the bedroom.

The house has a full basement, that is, a basement extending under the whole of the structure. Its concrete walls should be finished with a cement plaster coat, and the floor should be of concrete. The basement provides a place for the heating plant, with an inclosed fuel room adjoining. Other rooms may be partitioned off for fruit and vegetable storage and to provide places for storage.

This is one of the most economical of houses to build. It will be noted by the floor plans that the foundation walls have only one "jog," that for the dining room bay; also that there are no fancy exterior features that are costly. At the same time it is a commodious, convenient and good-looking home.

During the coming building season there will be many thousands of homes erected in the United States. In every city and every town, and in the rural communities there are not enough homes to accommodate the families living in them. This is an unprecedented condition, and one that has enabled the owners of homes to demand rents that seem out of proportion to the size of the investment in these homes. Still the head of the family is confronted with the necessity of paying what is demanded, or build himself a home.

When the building season opens those who expect to build this spring or summer will find that contractors already have many building jobs. To meet this condition it is a wise policy to select the home design now and engage the contractor. Then when the time comes to build there will be no delay and no disappointment. Every person who expects to build a home next season should make his plans at once.

Liable to Fade Out.

"You manage to keep in the public eye."

"Yes," said Senator Sorghum; "but every now and then I experience a strange fear that the public is about to wink."

In 1918 there were 766 foreign arrivals including 521 steamers, 227 schooners, 11 barks and seven ships.

One way to reduce carbon trouble

Heavy carbon deposits in the combustion chamber and on piston heads cause lots of engine trouble ranging from pre-ignition of the fuel charge to the destruction of the lubricating oil. This can be avoided. With uniform, high grade gasoline that possesses even vaporizing and ignition qualities, carburetion can be so perfectly regulated that the fuel charge is burned up completely, leaving a minimum of carbon deposit.

SOCONY Motor Gasoline meets every motor fuel requirement. It is carefully refined to a definite standard of high quality. It is as uniform as modern science can make it. Its carburetion and ignition qualities assure dependable power under all weather conditions. Standardize on SOCONY for motoring economy and satisfaction.

SPEAK FRENCH, ALSACE RULE

Strassburg Citizens Intent on Eliminating German as Language of the People.

Strassburg, Germany.—The language most commonly heard on the streets here is not German or French, but Alsatian, a patois not more dissimilar to French than is the patois of the Breton farmer or Breton longshoreman. Strassburgers are intent, however, to eliminate German as much as possible.

This evening I heard loud talking in a corner of a dining room of the hotel just behind my table. It was the head waiter berating one of his help. The voice bore an especially strong German accent, although the words were French. They were: "I don't want to hear a single word of German spoken here; French it must be from now on."

Club Women Bar Silk Hose.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—No more silk hose will be purchased by members of the current events department of the Woman's club here for one year. A resolution pledging the members to such a course has been adopted as one step in combating the high cost of living. The women also agreed not to wear silk stockings after those they now have are worn out.

Does Not Like His Name.

Lincoln, Kan.—One of the young men in Lincoln high school feels that he is unfortunate in his name. It has not thus far in his life affected his popularity in the school or in the community where he is well known. But how about the time when he shall have to begin life on his own account? This boy's name is Kiser and Royal Kiser, at that.

Thought She Had Moved.

Mrs. Clancey was a very sarcastic woman, and it was probably due to this fact that she had a falling out with her friend, Mrs. Murphy, who lived in the apartment just under her.

One day, while Mrs. Clancey was feeling particularly mean, she looked down from her window and saw Mrs. Murphy also enjoying the scenery. She could not resist the temptation to take a shot at her.

"Oh say, Murphy," she called down in deep sarcasm, "why don't ye take your ugly old mug out iv the windy and put your pet monkey in its place? That'd give the neighbors a change they'd like."

Mrs. Murphy looked up. "Well, now, Mrs. Clancey," she slowly said, "it was only this mornin' that I did that very thing, an' the policeman came along, an' when he saw the monkey he bowed and smiled and said: 'Why, Mrs. Clancey, when did ye move downstairs?'"

Why She Seeks a New Home.

Tillie Clinger says that the reason she is looking for another home is because the star boarder at her present place is a railroad engineer who wants the government to take over all the boarding houses and let the boarders run them.—Galveston News.

MONDAY CLUB

The Monday Club held its regular meeting Monday January 5, in Masonic Temple, at 2.30, with Mrs. A. L. Jewell presiding. The meeting opened with community singing in charge of Mrs. Jennie B. Worster, with Mrs. E. R. Dizer as pianist.

The current events topic was in charge of the Rev. Elbert W. Whipple and he spoke of Russia and its endeavor to organize good government, the deportation of the Reds, and the four political parties in the United States today.

Mrs. Mary Parker Dunning, the speaker of the afternoon, was not a stranger to many, and the members of the club were much interested in her travelogue, "The Country of the Golden Dragon." Mrs. Dunning in a very pleasing manner took us to Southern China and showed us the costume, manners, and folk lore stories of the most ancient country.

Miss E. R. Boyden of the Brown church, Brockton, had a beautiful contralto voice which was a delight to listen to.

EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

—The following inventory of the estate of Albert A. Spear has been filed for probate: Real estate, $21,794.44; personal estate, $12,373.55.

—The rent question has come to the front in this town as elsewhere. Many tenants have been greeted on rent days with a notification that in the future they must pay more. As people must live somewhere, and empty houses in all parts of Weymouth are hard to find, they are rather forced to throw themselves upon the mercy of the landlord. Yet there is a landlord with a heart not far from Commercial square who has voluntarily reduced the rent on his tenement $5 per month. His tenant is still dazed from the shock.

—The relief committee of the Weymouth Post, American Legion, report Pat Lester doing well at the Quincy Hospital. He was suffering from the effects of gas and was operated on for appendicitis. Thomas Terry has improved considerably. He was home on a short furlough but has returned to the hospital at Staten Island for further treatment.

—Harley G. Carter, who was for a long time on the dangerous list at the Massachusetts General Hospital, is fast regaining his health. He left the hospital Tuesday night and is now convalescing at his home on Commercial street.

—Mrs. Leary of Canterbury street, who recently underwent an operation at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, is on the road to recovery and soon will be home.

—Patsy Hyland is planning on opening a baker shop in East Weymouth as soon as he decides on a location. He has arranged with Jim Duffy to attend to the baking end of the business. Duffy is a well known baker of long experience, and Patsy's career as a driver for Whitcomb should enable him to succeed in that line.

—The output of the Weymouth Art Leather Company is ever on the increase. Miss Cullen, the office manager, has added Miss Ann O'Tool to her force of assistants. Miss O'Tool is to handle a part of the firm's correspondence.

—Lillian Gish as a child in "Broken Blossoms" will be the attraction at the Odd Fellows Opera House, East Weymouth, next Monday, afternoon and evening.

—Laughing Harry, who late last summer induced the army to give him a try out, is again a civilian. He wears a red chevron and has a discharge of which he is exceptionally proud.

—"Hearts of the World" was shown to a large crowd at Odd Fellows Hall, Monday. Next Monday the attraction will be "Broken Blossoms," a picture that has won favor everywhere. One of the leading parts is taken by Kid McCoy, the ex-pugilist.

—Knights of Pythias whist parties Friday evenings Pythian Hall, 8 P. M. Four good souvenirs each night with souvenir for highest scores during month. —Adv.

—Edward Mulligan and his son Joseph, miraculously escaped injury Tuesday afternoon when the machine they were in was side-swiped by a touring car belonging to the Brockton Last Company that was driven by Cliff Howe. As Mulligan was proceeding south along Pleasant street, Howe started to turn around in front of McCarthy's lunch room. The front fender of Howe's machine was ripped off as it caught in the body of the Ford. Mulligan's presence of mind in opening his throttle and swerving prevented a more serious accident. The Ford tipped until the running board was dragging on the road, but righted itself and came to a sudden stop against the iron electric light pole near the Weymouth Light office. The pole snapped and crashed down across the bonnet of the Ford just missing the wind shield. A few hours before, Harry Spear's machine had struck the same pole, probably weakening it. Both Mulligan's and Howe's machines are insured against accident.

—Crescent Lodge, I. O. O. F., will hold a double installation of officers at Odd Fellows hall, January 15. Emerson Dizer is to be noble grand of Crescent Lodge, and Mrs. Emerson Dizer noble grand of the Steadfast Rebekah Lodge.

—Francis, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mulready, Jr., died on Monday after an illness of six months. Funeral services were held Tuesday, burial being in St. Pauls cemetery at Hingham.

—Thomas J. Terry left Thursday night for Penna. after spending 10 days at home. He wishes to thank the East Weymouth Special Aid and Weymouth Post for the Christmas remembrance he received from both.

—There will be a meeting of the Fairmount Cemetery Circle on Monday evening at 7.30 at the home of Mrs. Dora L. Cushing, 744 Broad street.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

—The Sunday School Board of the Methodist church held its annual meeting, banquet and social Wednesday evening. Toasts were responded to by Rev. Frank Kingdon, G. Ralph Young, Benjamin B. Sylvester, Charles H. Chubbuck and George A. Lincoln. Select readings were given by Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder. At the business meeting the following were elected officers of the Sunday school: G. Ralph Young, superintendent; Charles R. Denbroeder, assistant superintendent; Harry Mattson, secretary; Mrs. Emma F. Mattson, treasurer; Miss Isabelle McIsaac and Miss Elizabeth Green, primary superintendents; Miss Hazel Cann, beginners' superintendent; Mrs. F. Howard Pratt, home department; Mrs. Grace Jay, cradle roll department; Mrs. Addie L. Chubbuck, superintendent of the curriculum. The music comprised chorus singing by all present.

—District Deputy Grand Patriarch George Bagley and suite of East Weymouth installed the newly elected officers of Rockland Encampment, I. O. O. F., at Rockland Wednesday evening. An oyster supper and speaking followed.

C. M. A. NOTES

The C. M. A. basket ball team battled with the North Easton quintet last night at the North Easton Hall. About a hundred backers of the C. M. A. accompanied the team and were carried over the route in two big jitneys. Tomorrow night a game will be played between the Cambridge basketball team and the C. M. A. at Cambridge. An interesting game will be played at the C. M. A. building tonight with one of the fastest teams in the state. With the Rumford game to their credit the home team started off to win the championship title of the New England states. The dances which are to be held after each home game, will be the social events of the season. One of the best orchestras obtainable will play for the patrons of the basketball games and dances.

The second team resplendent in their new C. M. A. jerseys will make their first appearance in the new costumes tonight. The second team was awarded new jerseys when they defeated the High School two weeks ago but have been unable to promenade on the gym floor before a crowd because no games were scheduled. Pull in your chests, second team and don't let it interfere with the good work which has been displayed in the last six games.

—About a dozen young people were entertained by Miss Marion White at her birthday party on Tuesday evening. She was presented by her friends with a pendant. Games and refreshments were enjoyed.

—Miss Ruth Munroe has been operated on at the Eye and Ear Infirmary.

—Five Gazettes this month and 53 this year. Year subscribers at $2.50 get the paper for less than five cents per copy.

—George Roberts was given a birthday surprise party by a number of his friends, Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments served.

KINDS OF FOOD CHILDREN NEED TO MAKE THEM GROW INTO HEALTHY MEN AND WOMEN

Poached Egg on Toast, Baked Potato, Bread and Butter, Milk and Rice Pudding Make an Excellent Dinner for a Three-Year-Old.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some people tell us a great deal about what children ought not to eat but forget to tell us what they ought to have. The kinds of food that children need to make them grow into healthy men and women is being studied by home economics experts.

The most important of these foods is milk. It supplies something for making muscles; something for making bones and teeth; and something that makes children grow. No child will grow as fast as he should or as well without milk. He may get fat, but fatness is not the same as strength. Unless he has milk, some part of him will almost surely be weak.

Every little child should have at least three glasses of whole milk every day, and if possible, four. If he has this amount of milk, and particularly if he can be given one egg yolk a day, he does not need meat. Some mothers worry because they cannot afford to buy meat, fish, chicken or other flesh foods for their children, but this is quite unnecessary if they are able to get milk, and milk is almost always cheaper than these other foods.

How to Serve Eggs.

Some one will probably ask how the yolk of an egg should be served to a child. One good way is to add it to milk gravy. Another way is to cook it hard, salt and mash it and spread it on bread. The mother may just as well use the white of the egg for cake or for puddings. It is the yolk that the child needs most. All of the iron of the egg is in the yolk. There is something in the yolk, too, as there is in the milk that makes children grow. Every mother wants her children to have straight, strong legs. Both milk and eggs help to make the bones strong. Children who do not get these foods are almost sure to have a disease called "rickets." Their bones, being weak, bend under them and get very much out of shape.

Milk gets dirty easily and it is very hard to make it clean after it has become dirty. It is different from such foods as apples and oranges from which the dirt can be wiped. If milk is left uncovered and dust or other kinds of dirt fall on it, or if it is put into a dirty dish the dirt sinks to the bottom and it is impossible to get it out. Dirty milk is almost sure to make children sick and so the greatest pains should be taken to keep it clean. The barn where the cow is kept should be clean; so, too, should the pails and the milkers' hands. After the milk comes into the house it should be kept carefully covered in a cool place.

Use of Clean Skim Milk.

Whole milk is far better for children than skim milk, but clean skim milk is better than dirty whole milk. If the mother cannot get clean whole milk, she had better use clean skim milk and give the child a little extra butter to make up for the fat that was taken off when the milk was skimmed.

The "something" in milk that makes children grow comes from the grass and other green things that the cow eats. The same "something" in eggs comes from the green food that every good chicken raiser provides for his chickens. From the green food it gets into the milk and the egg yolks. This substance, so much needed by all young animals, is also in lettuce, spinach, and other greens. For this reason these vegetables are good for children, particularly when milk and eggs are scarce.

Some children do not like vegetables and it does little good to try to persuade them to eat them. A better way is to put them into soups or gravies without saying anything about it. For example, make milk stews or gravies and put into them any small amounts of cooked vegetables that may be left over or some fresh vegetables cooked for the purpose. Here is a recipe for a milk stew. With plenty of bread, a large bowl of it makes a good dinner for a child.

Milk Stew With Vegetables.

1 quart milk, whole or skim.
1 cupful raw potatoes cut in small pieces.
A few leaves lettuce, spinach or other greens cut into small pieces or chopped.
A small piece of onion.
2 level teaspoonfuls butter or bacon fat.
Salt.

Boil the potatoes till soft and drain. Cook the other vegetables in so little water that they do not need to be drained. Add to the milk. Heat, add the fat and season with salt. Serve hot.

Almost any vegetable can be used for flavoring milk stews. Or a little fish or chopped dried beef may be used. In the case of very little children care should be taken not to serve any tough foods like large pieces of dried beef unless the mother has time to watch and see that they are well chewed.

Another way to use milk is in simple puddings.

Rice Pudding.

1 quart milk, whole or skim.
1-3 cupful rice.
1-3 cupful sugar.
1/2 teaspoonful salt.

Wash the rice thoroughly, mix the ingredients, and bake three hours or more in a very slow oven, stirring occasionally at first.

Any kind of cereal, oatmeal, cornmeal, or cracked wheat can be used in place of the rice and molasses, or brown sugar can be used for sweetening and flavoring.

To say that a child does not need flesh foods like meat, chicken, and fish if he has plenty of milk does not mean that these foods are not good for him. The chief point is that they are not needed and when used in addition to milk they are extravagant. So far as health is concerned some of the tenderer flesh foods, like fish or chicken, may be given in small amounts even to very young children. No child, however, should be given tough meat that is likely to be swallowed in large pieces. Fried meat is particularly harmful.

Use Fresh or Dried Fruits.

Fruit once a day is a good rule. If you cannot afford fresh fruit, get dried fruits. Soak them well and cook them until soft. If the child is delicate give only the juice or pulp. Very young children who are just beginning to eat other things than milk should be given the juice only of the fruits. A little later they may be given the pulp. A healthy child of school age can eat apples, peaches and plums, skin and all.

Every child should have plenty of good bread. There is no danger of him eating too much of it unless it is covered with sugar or jam. A hungry child will eat plain bread without either butter or sugar between meals. Save the sweets for dessert.

Whole wheat or graham bread helps to prevent constipation. So, too, do vegetables and fruits. Mothers who cannot afford vegetables and fruits should give coarse bread occasionally. Cereal mushes, like oatmeal, cornmeal or cracked wheat, are good food for children; they have just as much nourishment in them as the ready-to-eat cereals and cost very much less. Hardness and crispness in food is not the same as toughness. In fact, hard bread or toast is good food for children. Bread that has been dried and slightly browned in the oven can be broken into small pieces and served with milk as cereal mushes are.

As to sweets, save them for dessert when the child is not hungry enough to eat too much of them. One of the simple puddings mentioned above makes a good dessert. So, too, do plain cake or cookies. One of the cheapest sweets is bread spread with butter and sugar, white or brown. Lump sugar is usually far cheaper than candy.

Breakfast may consist always of fruit, fresh or dried, with a cereal mush, milk, bread and butter. Bread and milk or rice and milk are enough for supper. The chief meal should come in the middle of the day. Here are a few suggestions for it:

Suggested Dinners.

Baked Potatoes.
Milk Gravy, made with bacon or salt pork fat.
Greens.
Milk Stew.
Egg on Toast.
Rice Pudding.
Milk Toast.
Stewed Celery or Cabbage.
Boiled Rice with Sirup.
Potato Soup.
Bread and Butter.
Baked Apples.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Always empty the water out of a kettle before refilling it.

The pantry shelves are best covered with white oilcloth, cut to fit.

Use borax in tepid water for washing silk handkerchiefs. Iron dry.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift-fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
Man passes from life to his rest in the grave.

MEALS FOR A DAY.

For the first meal of the day, a little fruit of some kind is a good beginning. If fresh fruits, such as oranges, grapefruit, apples or pears are not at hand, a tablespoonful or two of raisins, steamed and added to the oatmeal or cooked cereal, or a few dates, figs or stewed prunes are all good and desirable breakfast fruits.

With an almost endless variety of breakfast foods, one may have a different kind every morning. If the family is large enough to practice this method without waste.

For the hot dish, eggs are always good, and may be cooked in as many ways as there are days in the year. Bacon is a breakfast meat, and if liked can be served daily without losing its charm. Sausage, chops and fish of various kinds are other breakfast meats. Macaroni is a great favorite. When the fresh fish cannot be obtained the salted fish makes a fairly good substitute. Soak the fish over night, or until much of the salt is removed, then bake in the oven for 20 minutes, covered with cream. Serve hot with bits of butter.

With toast, cakes, muffins, doughnuts, cookies and good coffee, one may find a choice for the first meal.

For luncheon, one hot dish, which may be scalloped fish, vegetables, rice or macaroni, codfish with baked potatoes, or a cream soup, of which there are a large number from which to choose; a salad, some kind of bread, a cupful of chocolate, cocoa or tea, and a small cake, with or without fruit, such as marmalade or jelly, canned or preserved fruit.

For dinner, a clear soup, if followed by a heavy dinner, a cream soup if a light dinner follows; one vegetable besides potatoes, a roast or meat loaf, a simple dessert, with coffee.

For a course dinner, the cocktail is served as a stimulant; on this account the clam and oyster, the various fruit cocktails and those with appetizing herbs, are used, their object being to stimulate, not cloy the appetite.

Pineapple Cocktail.—For each glass take a tablespoonful each of pineapple and lemon or orange, one-half tablespoonful of grated orange peel. Sweeten to taste, pour over a little chopped ice and fill the glass with iced water.

Many times—in fact, invariably—the mental attitude we take toward anything of an unkindly nature that enters our lives determines its actual effect upon us.—Trine.

A FEW CREAM SOUPS.

A cream soup is sufficiently nourishing to serve as the main dish at a luncheon. One of the most common is potato, but the following is not common.

Cream of Potatoes.—Boil ten large potatoes and mash with a cupful of cream; season with salt and grated onion. Blend together two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter; add two cupfuls of cold milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add four cupfuls of boiling veal stock, the mashed potato, and bring to boil. Serve at once.

Veal and Celery Soup.—Cut up three pounds of veal; break the bones; cover with four quarts of cold water and simmer for four hours; strain and return to the fire. Add two bunches of celery, add two chopped onions; simmer until the vegetables are done. Press through a fine sieve; thicken with two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch mixed with two cupfuls of milk; add two tablespoonfuls of butter in small bits; reheat and serve with dice of fried bread.

Cream Veal Soup.—Chop fine three pounds of lean veal and one large onion. Cover with two quarts of cold water; simmer three hours; strain, cool and skim. Thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour blended with a little cold milk beaten with three eggs and two cupfuls of milk. Season with salt, pepper, minced parsley, and a grating of nutmeg.

Egg Soup.—Butter six slices of stale bread; sprinkle with sugar and brown in the oven. Reheat two cupfuls of real stock and two cupfuls of milk beaten with the yolks of three eggs. Add a tablespoonful of butter; season with salt, pepper, minced parsley, and a grating of nutmeg. Pour over the toast; cover for ten minutes and serve.

Sweetbread Soup.—Reheat one quart of veal stock and add two cupfuls of cream which has been beaten with the yolks of two eggs. Take from the fire, season to taste, and add one cupful of parboiled sweetbreads cut in bits. Garnish with one cupful of whipped cream and a bit of minced parsley.

He who has the quest of the good in his heart relates himself thereby with all the higher powers and forces of the universe and they aid him at every turn.

FAVORITE DISHES.

The old-fashioned milk toast which our grandmothers made, with plenty of butter and flour mixed together, making a rich white sauce, is not much like the soupy mass usually served when asking for milk toast. Prepare the flour and butter, using two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour for each cupful of milk. When the butter is bubbling hot, add the flour; then when well blended add the milk. Cook until smooth, add salt, and turn over well-buttered toast, the edges of which have been softened by dipping them into hot milk or water. Some like a generous sprinkling of cheese; as this makes a more nourishing dish, it is especially good for a luncheon dish.

Fruit Souffle With Cornstarch.—Mix three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one-third of a cupful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of salt; stir into one and one-half cupfuls of scalded milk; stir until it thickens, then add three-fourths of a cupful of raisins or cherries cut in halves; cover and let cook ten minutes. Add one tablespoonful of butter and fold in the whites of three eggs beaten very light. Butter six individual molds, dredge the butter with sugar and fill the molds with the cooked preparation. Set the molds on several folds of cloth or paper in a baking pan, pour boiling water to half the height of the molds and cook about 12 minutes. Serve unmolded with cream or a custard made with the egg yolks.

Honey Frosting.—Roll half a cupful of strained honey and a tablespoonful of corn syrup to 240 degrees Fahrenheit. Pour in a fine stream the beaten white of one egg. Beat until cool before spreading on the cake.

Quick Potato Rolls.—Boil potatoes and press through a ricer. To one cupful of potato and water add half a cupful of scalded milk, three tablespoonfuls of shortening, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar; and when lukewarm, stir in one cake of compressed yeast mixed with one-fourth of a cupful of lukewarm milk; add two and a half cupfuls of flour; cut and work the dough into a loaf and let stand to raise, cut it down once, then let raise again and make into smooth balls. Cover and let stand until light. Shape for finger rolls and when again light, bake.

Success is the inevitable result of good management, just as failure is the natural outcome of ignorance, carelessness and idleness.

SEASONABLE FOODS.

There is no waste in tripe. It is all edible and easily digested, and reasonable in price. Take care to select tender pickled tripe, wash in cold water and cut in uniform pieces. Dry in a cloth, then pat in sifted corn meal. Have ready two or three spoonfuls of hot fat in a frying pan. Set in the tripe and let cook until lightly browned on one side, then turn and brown on the other. Have ready small onions, boiled tender and seasoned with salt and butter. Serve the tripe and onions on the same dish.

Apricot Sponge.—Soften a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of water and dissolve in one cupful of apricot pulp and juice, heated hot. Add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and stir until dissolved, then when the mixture begins to become firm, beat in the whites of two eggs, beaten very light. Serve in glass cups with cream, sweetened and beaten very light. Prunes may be used in the same way. Care should be taken to use no more gelatin than needed as it is best when not quite firm enough to keep its shape.

Potato Puree.—Some potatoes are better if a little cold water is added occasionally to check the boiling. Test with a fork and when tender, drain and dry off in the saucepan; add butter, salt and a little milk, using more than for mashed potato. Rub the saucepan with the cut side of a clove of garlic. Soup stock may be used instead of milk. The puree is used as a vegetable with meat or fish.

Ginger Cream.—Make a custard of the yolks of four eggs and the whites of two, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of the sirup from the preserved ginger and one pint of milk. Just before the custard is done add gelatin, using enough for a pint of liquid. Allow plenty of time for the gelatin to become completely dissolved in the hot custard. As soon as the custard coats the spoon, stand the dish in a disk of cold water to check the cooking and then turn into the custard molds. Sprinkle each mold with chopped preserved ginger.

SHORT COATS HAVE MANY VOTARIES

As pelts are becoming more and more precious, and even those that are considered ordinary and plentiful, continue to advance in price, the owner of a fur coat looks upon it as an investment that increases constantly in value. It is hard to predict anything about the future prices of furs, but people who are well informed say there is no chance of their falling for some time to come; the chances are that they will continue to go up. In view of this, short fur coats have advantages over all others because they cost less, are very smart and present a chance to remodel partly-worn long coats into something that is stylish and new.

Some furs are difficult to make up or to remodel because the skins must be "matched," that is put together so that the joining is hardly perceptible on the fur side. These require a professional furrier's services when coats are to be changed or remodeled. Other furs that do not require "matching" can be handled by the average dressmaker or good needlewoman quite successfully. The furrier's tools are few and simple. They include a short, very sharp knife for cutting the fur on the skin side, special triangular needles for sewing, chalk for marking and strong thread. Home dressmakers use razor blades for cutting and buy needles and thread of the right sort.

When the fur is to be cut, it is marked with chalk on the skin side and cut with the razor blade along this marking. Pieces are joined by holding the edges together evenly and sewing them by overcasting the thread and drawing it tight so that the edges are firmly held.

Before making a fur coat one should cut and fit an interlining, if one is to be used, or take a cheap cambric and cut and fit it by the pattern selected, making any alterations necessary. The fur is to be cut by this lining so as to avoid waste and alterations. Experimenting must be done in the lining and not in precious furs. For the silk lining, crepe-de-chine, certain taffetas, and Japanese silks prove very durable.

A short coat of striped fur and one of scale-like are shown in the picture, as good models to copy in making over furs. Squirrel, either natural or dyed, kolinsky, mink or muskrat might be made in this fashion. The coat has a wide collar with dark stripes vertical and is finished at the bottom in front with a wide border of skins running horizontally. The coat at the right might be of beaver, moleskin and other short-haired furs with collar of marten or skunk or of the same pelts as the coat. It has a narrow belt that matches it, but that is not essential; there are as many beltless coats as others.

Valedictory of Winter Millinery

There is some midwinter millinery that says "hail and farewell" almost in the same breath—appearing as the last development of winter styles and disappearing to make way for the demiseason hats that precede those for spring. The different types of millinery are represented in these last exponents of the season's ideas, as street hats, dress hats and picture hats.

A hat that will prove equal to almost any sort of wear appears in the very elegant street model at the top of the group pictured above. It has a stiff, smoothly covered crown of tan satin and an uneven brim, turned sharply up at the left side, faced with black velvet. There are folds of satin forming a band about the crown, and jet motifs applied at the front and sides. The shape and colors used in this last proclaim it a street model made of materials that will place it in the ranks of dressier hats and allow it to be very useful.

The soft hat of crepe georgette, with extended brim facing of velvet, can be developed in any good combination of two colors. It is a background for a splendid rose and beautiful foliage, or any other gorgeous flower that may be used as the star performer in the production of a distinguished dressy hat. It is a bit of fine art in millinery that will pass under the most critical of eyes and compel their approval—and more.

The wide-brimmed hat at the right betrays the fancy of its designer, unhampered by any thought of utility, disporting itself with airy and fine fabrics, to make a thing whose mission is simply to be lovely. Its crown is of narrow moire ribbon, placed row after row. The brim is made of layers of malines, and between these appear silk applique clusters of grapes and foliage.

LIKE DYED LACES

Vogue for Color in Every Type of Feminine Garment.

Decoration Is Being Generously Used for the High Lights of the Costume.

It may sound at first like painting the lily to talk about dyed lace, but in the tremendous vogue for brilliant color in every type of feminine garment it is not a bit surprising. After the first shock it is pleasant, in fact, to see a georgette blouse, for instance, in what is called "new" blue veiling, an underblouse of tomato red fillet lace allowed to show in the front in fillet fashion.

Lace is being used extensively for the high lights of the costume. It appears, for example, in silver to lighten up a frock of navy blue georgette. The stiff silver lace encircles the hips, giving the fashionable outstanding line, and is veiled by just one layer of the soft georgette. It edges the neck and short sleeves of the same frock.

Cafe au lait Lyons lace is used as a foil in a blouse which is lined with black chiffon and has a girdle of black net tying in a bow at the back. One of the loveliest of evening gowns is entirely of gray lace with the inevitable bright color touch in the orange ostrich pompon at one side.

Perhaps fillet lace lends itself best to dyeing, but all the fine laces are no exception to the new ruling. Sometimes several laces are combined on one blouse. Fillet lace dyed a bright orange, for example, makes flounces over the shoulders of a shadow lace blouse dyed brown with sleeves of net in the same dark brown.

To lighten up the darker laces, the navy blue, black and brown tinsel ribbons are used. Little folded flowers of it, tiny bows and narrow twisted girdles, all serve to add to the dressiness of the dyed lace blouse or frock. Beads, too, are being used to bring out the richness of dyed lace. Often they contrast with the lace, repeating the deep color of the chiffon lining or they work out the pattern of the lace itself. Metal threads are also used to bring out the lace pattern from its dusky background. Where a whole blouse of lace would be too thin and delicate to top the suit skirt, jumper blouses are made of velvet on silk duvetyn to bring the dyed laciness down to earth.

WOOL CAP AND SCARF OUTFIT

Quite the thing this season, this wool scarf with cap to match. This one is white and strongly appeals to the majority of girls.

USE DOILIES FOR COLLARS

Vogue for Biblike Neck Decorations and Draping Cuffs Finds Place for Old Pieces.

With the present vogue for flat, bib-like collars, round or square, and odd-shaped, drooping cuffs, comes a chance to utilize old-fashioned lace doilies.

Two doilies of equal size are required for cuffs. The linen centers should be carefully ripped out and the edge of the lace basted to the edge of the sleeve, from which it will fall in graceful rippling folds.

The collar doily should be somewhat larger than those used for the cuffs. After the linen center is removed decide whether you wish the collar to fasten on the shoulder or in the back. If the doily is round all you have to do is to cut it in one place and hem the raw edges, and it is ready to be worn open either at the side or the back.

But if it is square and the opening is to be on one shoulder one side will have to be cut and faced or hemmed after being fitted and a tuck taken in the opposite side to make the collar fit smoothly.

Of course the doily is quite large and the neck line rather low the lace need not be cut but just worn slip-over fashion, basted or pinned in place.

Tam-Shaped Turbans.
Tam turbans, many with fitted tips or visors, have come to us from France. Some of these smart, youthful hats have crown bands of such fur as kolinsky, squirrel or seal.

RARE FUR-TRIMMED GARMENT

An out-of-the-ordinary dress of gold tissue embroidered with yellow worsted in a plaid design trimmed with kolinsky tails, producing a stunning effect. The exquisite paradise is gold-shaded and puts a charming finishing touch on this unusual creation.

SKIRTS SHORTER FOR 1920

Seven to Nine Inches From Floor, Decree of Style Committee of National Association.

The style committee of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' association in session recently at Cleveland, Ohio, recommended skirts from three to four inches shorter than at present for the 1920 season in its report.

The committee decreed that skirts next season will be from seven to nine inches from the floor for women and about ten inches for misses, as compared with four to six inches for women and six to eight inches for misses at present.

Skirts, the style makers say, will be "frankly short," but without abbreviation. One thing to be avoided if one wishes to be stylish, is the extreme. Tunic and plaited skirts will be worn.

Fullness at the hips will be a feature of many of the smart spring suits. Sleeves will fit snugly.

Sport suits for spring and summer wear are recommended. Novel belts of leather and metal, and a new type of collar—long, slender and rolling—will be a detail of the suits. The Lord Byron and Peter Pan designs will be popular.

The newest wrap for women is not unlike the old Roman toga, a graceful, enveloping garment that can be tucked up and pulled together.

"Prices of coats, suits and skirts will stay up," said Michael Printz of Cleveland, chairman of the style committee.

FOR THE WINDOWS AND BEDS

Simple Curtains and Quilts Add to the Beauty and Cheerfulness of the Home.

Unbleached cotton makes pretty curtains and bedspreads.

Two widths of the fabric can be used for a double-size bedspread, and one-half for valance. This may be made plain or gathered. Bards may be sewed on the lower edge of valance, and also on the seams. Pillow shams trimmed to match are attractive.

There is nothing very new in plain white scrim curtains, but trim them with pink, blue, green or yellow block gingham, and you will have unusually pretty draperies.

The same idea carried out in bureau scarfs is very good.

Linen-colored crash banded with chambray make very pretty dining-room draperies.

When hemming curtains pull several threads, just as is done for hemstitching. This will make it easier to cut and hem them evenly.

It must be borne in mind that in order to obtain artistic and restful rooms plain colored or bordered curtains should be used with figured wallpaper (especially large) designs. On the other hand large-figured draperies can be used very effectively with plain wall covering.

Soft Vs. Stiff Collars.

The movement started at a university to promote the use of soft collars as a means of fighting the high prices demanded by laundries will not exert, it was stated, any harmful effect on the collar trade. The same profit and a little more, it was explained, applies to soft as to stiff collars. The element of competition, however, is one that big concerns do not particularly like. Soft collars and soft shirts, it seems, have always been easier to manufacture, and consequently encourage competition from small firms.

Weymouth Girl Reports Legion Convention

One of the six delegates to the Special State Convention of Massachusetts Department American Legion at Faneuil Hall, Boston, Saturday, Jan. 3, was Kathryn Bowles Howley, who has kindly allowed the Gazette the use of her report for our readers. The other Weymouth delegates were Commander Coleman, Comrades Thomas McCarthy, Russell Riley, Cornelius Condric and Ambrose Montleth.

Dept. Commander Edward L. Logan opened the meeting by reading the Preamble of the National Constitution. Invocation by Rev. M. J. O'Conner, State Chaplain. Commander Logan then introduced his Excellency Gov. Calvin Coolidge who in part said:

"Your preamble to the Constitution as read by Col. Logan expresses so well the aspirations of Americans that it ought to be a credit, not only to those who have worn the uniform of their country, but to all those who love, honor and revere America. Massachusetts has been foremost in organizing this great body of returned service men and service women. You have history, remembrances and principles which bind you together and make for the welfare of the nation. Now those principles and that spirit that carried us through the war must be relied upon to maintain us in peace. We Americans live under a constitution and under laws that emanate from the full body of the people. It seems a strange thing that after a success of 140 years those principles and that constitution should now be questioned! We must remember that the constitution, noble as it is, is written on parchment, as are our laws, and has, with those laws, no vigor and no power unless they mean the minds and the aspirations and the souls of the American people.

After all, I think America is more a state of mind than anything else and its associations, such as you have, that are bent on the determination of maintaining a loyal state of mind that will maintain our constitution and our laws. They emanate from the people and if they change there are two avenues into which they can be changed: one is despotism and the other is anarchy, and those who are advocating changes mean to plunge us into one or the other of those two things.

The American people are coming to understand the forces at work and they are rousing themselves to resist anything of that kind; and for the spirit of that great movement they look especially to the American Legion."

Gov. Coolidge closed with: "Let all tyrants and all haters of our American institutions look into your eyes and tremble."

His Honor Andrew J. Peters was then introduced and spoke as follows: "No place could be more fitting for you to meet than in this hall, dedicated to liberty, this hall whose name is associated with freedom and with American institutions wherever the American flag is known," said the Mayor. "You came to the front at the time when the fundamental institutions of our country were challenged and now that that challenge was successfully met, thanks to your hardihood, we can well consider what further public service awaits a body of such patriotic citizens. The very words of your constitution which forbids you to engage in active politics as a body will help you as an order. Your presence as a body, your vigor, your manhood, will be a steady influence in the life of the community. I congratulate you on your constitution which binds you as it does to keep the institutions of our country on the same basis on which they are today. You have returned to peace from war and are now of the civil population but there is still a great duty before you and one in which you will render the highest service. Our democracy was accomplished only by centuries of struggle and maintained by fighting on the field of battle, but though now there is no open warfare your patriotic support is needed to combat the influences at work."

With the words, "A man we love for the friends he has made and the friendship he has shown; a soldier we love and esteem because he exemplifies the type under whom we hope to serve if war comes again; a citizen of New England; Gen. Edwards, Commander of New Eng. Dept. and of famous 26th Div." After a prolonged hand clapping reception the general said:

"Com. Logan and fellow Yanks, You good people make me feel just as humble as I felt when I had 40,000 men in critical battle line and when I was responsible for their lives and well-being; and I humbly thank you for your confidence, for your loyalty and for your endorsement. If there are earthly compensations you have given them to me and mine.

"When I heard today your constitution read in this Faneuil Hall I could think that a new Magna Charter had been given our people in a critical time in their lives. You have accomplished more than I, who believe in you, dared to believe you could do by your unselfish, unstinted patriotism. You have put aside petty things and you have done so much better than the heroes of the Civil War did in the inception of the G. A. R. that I can say to you that I tremble for the power that you are going to exercise in the future. Let this same spirit guide you and I can continue to say what I have said every day and 'most every night since I came back.' You are the hope of this country. Think what it would be if in our Senate and our Congress every man had had your experience. You men know that the army is the noblest profession in the world.

"The things that menace us today don't scare me—not regular fellows like us—regular fellows like our relatives and ourselves. They are nothing but police matters. Collar them, turn them over to the police; and if the police want our bare-fisted support they can have it—from the curbstone or anywhere else. God pity the gang that tempts us! If you continue to do half as well as you have done our ideals and our country will be saved."

The State Commander then read his report and activities of the State Branch since the Worcester meeting.

Comrade James of Brookline Post was chosen chairman of Norfolk District delegation, with Comrade Longley of Braintree as secretary.

The districts delegates on committees; on constitution, resolutions and credentials were comrades Hodgdon of Dedham, Bates of Quincy and Coleman of Weymouth, respectively.

Recess at 1.15 P. M. until 2.30 was followed by reports of committees and addresses by R. G. Cholmeley Jones, head of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, and Dr. V. W. Lamkin of Vocational Training Board who told of the work, accomplishments under difficulties and wishes of these Bureaus to be of help to all former service men.

After these interesting and instructive talks, a hearty vote of thanks was given these men for their attendance at the Convention. Adoption of resolutions and debate on constitution kept the attention of the convention till adjournment at 7.30 P. M., to meet in February.

Children's Banks.

An example of a successful public school savings-bank system is to be found in Nottingham, England, where the institutions are conducted as far as possible in the same manner as ordinary banks, thus not only adding to their educational value, but creating in the minds of the youthful depositors a feeling that their financial houses are of as much importance as those patronized by their elders. Books in which are kept records of deposits, amounts withdrawn, and balances due are used by the children. Deposits are placed in local banks, and the accounts are audited quarterly. Once each week deposits are received and withdrawal orders paid, teachers acting as tellers. Sums as low as 2 cents are accepted. There are 104 of the banks in Nottingham, with 15,234 depositors, and with aggregate deposits of $19,128.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Building City for Employees.

On the outbreak of the war the Westinghouse company found itself compelled to abandon a rather extensive house-building program which had been started, but this has been resumed, and 48 houses for its employees are now under way. These homes form only a part of a general building plan for the development of a large tract. It is estimated this tract will furnish homes for 600 families. Sidewalks and paving will be laid, and gas, water and electricity will be provided for. The houses, which are modern in construction, will be of brick with hollow tile backing, with concrete cellars and cement porches. They will consist mainly of five, six and seven-room houses, designed to meet the needs and the pocketbooks of the man in moderate circumstances, and will be sold at cost on easy terms to the employees of the company. A number of the dwellings will be for rent.

It seems curious that a country so reputedly rich in timber as New Zealand should be importing such material, but during the last five months America has sent over some 45,000 feet of redwood, yellow pine, shingles and laths, chiefly from Oregon.

Lively Movement of Freight Cars.

The world's record for car movement is claimed by Columbia, Pa., where 9,531 cars passed in a single day. In one month 250,000 freight cars passed Columbia, or an average of six cars per minute.

A BEAU FOR KITTY-CAT

By MARTHA WILLIAMS

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"That! I knowed we'd better shoo that old rooster clean away. Now he's done crowed right at the door, somebody's shore ter come—and ketch us right in the thick o' peach-dryin'." Mrs. Beech said plaintively to her daughter Catherine. They were under the big oaks in the back yard, peeling for dear life and cutting off the sweet, yellow peach-flesh in deep, thick "cups."

Thus it dried richly flavored. Other neighbors might slice their fruit, or cut it any way—Mrs. Beech always stuck to cups. She likewise refused to dry aught but the big yellow clingstone fruit, as sweet as sugar, especially when one waited until it was dead ripe on the trees.

"I ain't skeered over company," Catherine said smiling. "Everybody in hollerin' distance has been and been and been. And the circuit rider's down 'tother end o' the county—then it's a full month too early for candidates to be ridin'."

"Don't keer if it is—somebody'll come. I never knowed it fall—the rooster sign," Mrs. Beech said doggedly. Her son Tug, who came from the orchard with a fresh basket of fruit, added teasingly as he set it down:

"It'll be some o' your beaus, Kitty-Cat—you got sesh a terrible many o' 'em I don't hardly see how we-all ever git anything done."

Catherine flushed deeply, but tried to laugh—she was nineteen and had never had a beau. Yet she was not ugly, nor awkward, nor a shrew.

Penny and Jincy, the cousins she came between in age, were both married, and even Ellen-Lou, Uncle Ben's girl, only rising fifteen, engaged. It was hard to be set down almost before she came to herself a full-blown old maid. But that seemed inevitable—already people talked of her when a likely widower developed as one who would make a mighty good stepmother. More than that, she had twice been sent for to help bake wedding cake. Her mother said with a sigh if it happened again Catherine's fate was sealed—she'd never know the sign to fall—bake cake for three wedding's, you'd never go to your own.

"Somebody's Shore Ter Come."

"Maybe you will see somebody pass," Tug added magnanimously, again shouldering his basket. "Up high in the tree I seen er whole passel o' men yan side the parster—no they ain't ridin'—jest hoppin' 'erbout and stickin' down sticks and doublin' over like they was a lookin' fer pins and needles."

"I hope they ain't up to no meaness—conjurin' ner nothin'." Mrs. Beech said anxiously. "But ef it ain't that, what in the name o' peace can it be?"

She was soon to find out. The surveyors, out locating tentatively a new railway cut-off, came upon her around eleven o'clock, begging and praying for dinner. Five men, young and hungry, were rather formidable—still Mrs. Beech never let any hungry soul get away.

She whirled in and, with Catherine's help, set out such a meal by twelve o'clock as made those who ate it her bond slaves. After a camp breakfast, ham, fried chicken, black-eyed peas, roasted ears, crisp cucumbers and squash mashed in butter and cream were beyond nectar and ambrosia.

Top these off with peach cobbler, very crisp as to crust, very rich and sweet as to filling, and gorging was inevitable. After the gorging the men lay at ease in the shade, smoking, saying little, but looking gratefully at their hostesses.

Thus lying, embarrassment fell upon them. They had meant to pay well for what they got; now the longer they talked or listened to the two women the more impossible became the offer of money. The Beeches were so simply, so joyously hospitable, so eagerly kind, their guests felt instinctively the offer of money would hurt them.

But to go away without making some return was equally impossible. Once Acton, the head surveyor, thought of suggesting that the cut-off, almost sure to come through the out-pasture, might mean a round price to the Beeches for its right of way. But that seemed rather low—as if he hinted at payment through favors to come. Whispers went about from one to another, behind the backs of hands, or under the pretense of filling pipes from a common pouch. They established the fact that all five agreed—a money offer was out of the question, yet something had to be done.

At last Acton had a brilliant idea—namely, to take Tug along when they left upon plea of needing guidance, and send back by his hand either an honorarium fitting the case or an intimation that the Beeches would get a little later, something more substantial than thanks. The rest agreed, still in whispers, that it was a way out. They were young fellows all, and gentlemen all, therefore they stared at Catherine only when she was looking the other way.

She was not strictly pretty, but there was classic grace in her lengths, her poses, the turn of her head, with its crown of heavy plaits, even in the simple lines of her blue-checkedingham frock. Anderson looked at her least of all—he was the youngest of them, just twenty-one and out of school. After each look he turned away his head and puffed hard, as though trying to settle a perplexing problem.

All things end—even after-dinner rests. By three o'clock the party was away, Tug walking proudly with it at Acton's elbow. Acton drew him out adroitly. Inside of ten minutes he knew there was no pinch of poverty in the Beech homestead, neither any great plenty of ready money. He gathered also that Tug owned in full the family feeling of hospitality.

Boy that he was, he said gayly all of them must come again—come to stay, if the railroad were built that way, and run in whiles if it went five miles off. "All you'll get'll be good beds and enough to eat—such as it is." He added: "But mammy cooks right good—"

"Indeed she does," came in chorus from the gang. Tug smiled. "You oughter eat with us when she has er chance to show what she can do," he said. "Today she jest hustled up not much more'n a snack for you-all."

Further questions elicited that Tug had already a gun, a watch—helioons both from granddad—a saddle and saddle horse; also that he "didn't keer fer frecklers and sech—mammy was so pizen 'fraid o' 'em." Any personal benefaction being thus estopped, in despair Acton burst out: "Say, Tug, what does your mammy want the very worst? We are not trying to pay—but she saved our lives—almost—we were hungry enough to eat each other—and now we shan't be hungry for a week. We're grateful; we want to send her something. Tell us—there's a good fellow—just what she had rather have?"

Tug stared, flushed, turned away his head and shifted on his feet. After a minute he said, very low, almost as though crushed by the saying: "Wish ter patience ye hadn't asked me—but mammy says I must always tell the truth. She don't r'alely want but one thing in the world—that's a beau, a business beau, fer Kitty-Cat—and I don't reckon you could send her that."

His tone was wistful—so wistful nobody laughed. Instead, all eyes went significantly to young Anderson. After a long look at him Acton said, pressing Tug's hand: "Yes, we can—but you mustn't say a word about it—not till after the wedding."

"I won't," Tug promised. And, truly, he never did.

Test for Tearing Force.

A paper-testing machine has been invented by a member of the staff of the forests products laboratory at Madison, Wis. It is expected to render valuable service to the paper industry by supplying data regarding the strength of paper—data that has not been easy to obtain heretofore. The difficulty in testing the tearing strength of paper has always been in securing a constant force of value. Irregularities in the paper structure due to its fibrous nature make the reading of the force required to tear the paper very uncertain. The machine now nearing completion overcomes this difficulty by yielding an average force for the entire tear. It simply measures the work done in tearing the strip. Dividing the work done by the length of the tear gives the average tearing force. The length of the tear is the same in all cases, so that the machines can be calibrated to read the average tearing force.

Triumphant Furnishings.

There has already appeared in the market Victory wallpaper, but it was reserved for Bridgenorth in Shropshire, England, to weave a Victory carpet. This is now displayed in a window in London. The need for a plethora of symbolism would have destroyed (one would have thought) any chance of achieving artistic success. But this has not proved to be the case. The carpet in question, although a maze of doves and olive branches, arms and flags, roses, thistles and shamrocks, is really beautiful in color and design, and a not too observant person could walk across it without so much as being reminded of the war.—San Francisco Argonaut.

See You Soon.

The other night a girl was asked to leave a dance floor because she was unchaperoned and under eighteen years old, says the Indianapolis News. "She was seventeen years and fifty weeks old, to be exact," says the manager of the floor.

The girl left good-naturedly. "But I'll be back in two weeks," she cried as she took the elevator to the street.

THE JAZZ GIRL

By WILL T. AMES

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Gladys Kimball was not, to tell the truth, having quite as good a time as she had anticipated. When a girl has the satisfaction of feeling herself and her family to be the distinct superiors of everybody in a fifty-cottage summer colony; when she has the finest clothes and the most expensive canoe in the place, and when her fiancé has come to visit her and is both good-looking and very well-to-do, the stage would appear to be set for happiness. Jim had arrived in the forenoon, buoyant, flatteringly glad to be with her again, and they had had quite a wonderful day on the water, and in it.

Yet now, as they sat on the wide veranda of the Kimball cottage, with the wide cove stretching far off into the starlight night and the whippoor-wills hammering away at their everlasting vocal carpet beating, Gladys was conscious of being a bit bored rather than exultantly blissful. The rhythmic cadences of an orchestra from the pavilion a furlong away added to her restlessness.

"Don't you think this is dreadfully—slow?" she said. "Just sitting still and looking at nothing?"

Jim Carruthers, after an early morning start, a considerable railroad trip and his outdoor day, hadn't thought of the occasion as being "slow." In the least. He would have been content to sit there with Gladys a very long time. But he was good-tempered, was Jim, and not a little used to a certain degree of wisely restrained petulance in his fiancée's makeup. So he only said in reply:

"Well, what do you want to fly at next?"

"There's a place over there where they dance—some of the less particular of the Vale people and a crowd of all sorts that come out here from town

Were Sitting Together.

In the evening. We wouldn't care to mingle with them, of course, but we could go over there and have an ice and look on. The music isn't so bad."

"All right," assented Jim; "let's go." He was too tired to dance, anyhow, so he made no comment on Gladys' exclusiveness, though he grinned a bit under cover of the darkness.

The pavilion was broad and airy and flooded with soft light. Jim thought the "all sorts" who patronized it seemed to be a pretty decent sort, on the whole. Any way, they made a mighty interesting picture, full of color and graceful movement. Gladys chose a table from which there was a perfect view of the floor and presently, over their sundae, both were lost in the fascination of the scene.

The music changed. The tremulous, curving throb of a classic waltz gave place to a "jazz with all the wool on," as Jim exclaimed, mostly to himself. From a settee just in front of Jim and Gladys a man and a girl arose, swung lightly into each other's arms and floated away into the crowd.

To speak of jazzers "floating" may be, ordinarily, a fantastic use of language—but not when applied to jazzers such as these. A leaf, caught in the current of a rippling, gurgling, jolly little rapid never swam more lightly with all its tremors and rockings and quiverings.

And it was as a single leaf, thrilling with the joy of its adventure, that they danced. Jim found himself suddenly very wide-awake as he watched them, almost breathless in his admiration of the superb performance.

He turned suddenly to Gladys. "Did you notice that couple who were sitting in front of us? Did you ever see anything like their dancing?"

"You mean that creature in black with the bobbed blond hair?" Gladys inquired in turn. "That's the trouble with all such public places as this. They never seem to be able, somehow, to keep them out. A really nice girl can't—" Gladys let her sentence trail off into nothing.

Jim had a reply on his lips when there suddenly descended upon Gladys three extraordinarily gushing young buds named Burton, who had arrived at their place in the Vale only that day. The Burtons shared with the Kimballs the distinction of being the "very nicest" of the Vale colonists.

Jim thought the girls rather rude in the manner of their carrying Gladys off to see their mother, who was "outside in the limousine, you know." If he had been less easy tempered he might have resented the offhand way in which Gladys, flinging him a command to "stay here, Jimmie," disappeared in the direction of the big doorway. But he didn't appear to mind.

Twenty minutes later Gladys, returning, found another party at the table and Jim nowhere in sight. The slight indignation she felt at her fiancé's failure to "stay put" flared into wrath when, searching the pavilion with her eyes she beheld Jimmy, her own especial property, jazzing, actually jazzing, and with no one in the world but the sinuous, bob-haired girl with the astonishing black gown that showed glimpses of half hose and the girl's own white legs as she danced. Gladys stared angrily for an instant, then turned and hurried to the door in time to get a lift home in the Burtons' car.

"But I knew the girl," insisted Jimmy next morning, "and she's really quite a superior young woman. She's a professional dancer, and the man with her is her partner. They are employed by the pavilion management. The partner is married and his wife and their kids are here with him. The girl has an interesting history. Let me tell you about her."

"I shall do nothing of the kind. No decent woman would be in such a business nor dress as she does. You have mortified me beyond forgiveness publicly associating in a place like this with such an impossible creature. I'm afraid you do not appreciate the obligations of the class to which I belong. Perhaps we have made a mistake in becoming engaged."

This was a sheer bluff on Gladys' part, but she felt sure of her ground with Jimmy. She was tremendously surprised, therefore, when Carruthers, with an unwonted seriousness in his countenance, answered, after a moment's silence.

"I rather think you are right, Gladys. I'll be getting my things and going."

An hour later Jim and the jazz girl were sitting together on a shaded rock at the edge of the cove. "But," protested the girl, "I hadn't the faintest idea, when I told you all about myself in town last winter that you ever knew Gladys."

"You don't suppose, do you, that if I'd known how things stood between you and her I'd have told you all that story about her father's treatment of mother—about the property and all? Nor that last night I would have pointed her out to you as the snob cousin I'd told you about?"

"No, Edith," responded Jimmy. "I don't. A girl who gave up college to support a whole family, the way you've done, and did it all with a laugh when she'd have given her heart's blood, almost, to go on with her painting, isn't the kind to make mischief. But on the other hand, when a girl like Gladys, whose only thought is to make a front with the money you ought to have—that's rightfully yours—pretends not to know her own cousin, and not only that but affects to despise her as a person not even respectable, why, Jimmy Carruthers, if he's going to become a relative of that girl, would a whole lot rather be her cousin by marriage than her husband."

"Nonsense, Jimmie!"

"Why nonsense?"

And to save her life Edith couldn't tell him why.

Pons Sublicius.

The first bridge built over the Tiber at Rome was the famous Pons Sublicius. It was a wooden bridge, as its name implies, erected on piles and disappeared long ages ago, but modern Rome has erected another at the same place between the Transtevere and Testaccio quarters. This bridge was begun in 1914 and continued building through the years of war. In the year of the peace and on the day, April 21, 1919, on which the anniversary of the foundation of Rome was celebrated, the Pons Sublicius of the modern world was declared open. As befits the dignity of its name and its ancient traditions the new bridge is severe style with no ornamentation but a single wall with the arms of Rome on the crown of the central arch. That it should have taken as much as five years to build is due to war conditions and the uncertain temper of the ancient stream which it spans.

His Own Medicine.

A physician stepped into a barber shop next door to his office and while waiting for his turn picked up a newspaper and started reading. After reading five minutes or more he threw the paper down and exclaimed, "Why, that paper is more than three weeks old!"

The fellow sitting next to the doctor laughed loud and loudly. The doctor turned to him and said, "Well, I don't see anything funny about reading a newspaper three weeks old."

"Yes! But it's funny to see you take some of your own medicine," was the reply. "I found myself reading a magazine, two years old, in your office the other night."

Cows Do Go Dry.

Yeast—I understand your neighbor has a good stock of bottled goods in his cellar!

Crimsonbeak—Yes, he has.

"But I always thought he was a prohibitionist!"

"Well, he is."

"Why the cellar full, then?"

"He says he doesn't want to take a chance on his cow going dry next summer."

KEEPING FASHIONABLE

By R. RAY BAKER

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Eliza Correll believed in clothes. "Clothes make the man—and they also make the girl," she told her sister repeatedly. "Some day you'll learn that you ought to dress up more and keep fashionable."

Certainly Eliza kept fashionable. Eight dollars constituted her weekly stipend, earned by mixing tempting potions at Silverworth's drug store. Eliza was one of a half-dozen girls who presided within the circular formation of marble at which "airplane" sodas were served, and the high cost of living, the fate of the League of Nations, the future of Jugo-Slavia and the salaries of the film stars discussed.

But the eight dollars—to return to the subject. Of the eight dollars, two went for board and room and the remaining six were expended to adorn Eliza with fashion's latest creations. Board and room for two dollars a week? Yes, you see Eliza lived at home, as did her sister Isabel.

Isabel clerked in Flemmel's dry goods store, and her share of the world's goods every week was seven dollars. Of this seven two went for board and room, 15 cents purchased cinema thrills at the Palace theater, an average of 68 cents was used for wearing apparel, and $3.14 was deposited in the bank.

Contrasted with Eliza's extensive and expensive wardrobe, Isabel's adornment was like a minnow unto a goldfish; yet the latter seemed satisfied with her lot in life and never complained about her rather drab, nevertheless neat, attire.

Nor was there reason to complain; for Isabel could have afforded more attractive garb as well as her younger sister—could better afford it, in fact, because she had several hundred dollars in safe keeping.

With the situation as it was regarding clothes, the two girls should have changed positions. Silk at a soda fountain was as out of place as cotton behind the silk counters, where Isabel presided. Yet each of the girls was an expert in her particular line of endeavor.

Eliza had a secret. She was in love.

Every afternoon there came into Silverworth's drug store a fascinating, neatly dressed young man, who had the ginger-ale habit. The sun might forget to shine, the clock might stop, the river might run dry, but always at 2 p. m. John Hendricks settled himself at his favorite place at the marble counter (unless some one else got there first) and ordered ginger ale.

Then he would plunge into the depths of a newspaper and remain absorbed in it until his beverage arrived, when he would fold the paper, thrust it into a pocket and sip of the cooling concoction, while his eyes roved abstractedly and looked at nothing in particular, although seeming to take in everybody and everything in his range of vision.

Yes, Eliza Correll loved John Hendricks. She did not know his name, she had no knowledge of his vocation, she had never spoken a word to him or been addressed by him except on a matter of business. She waited on his order; but John Hendricks noticed her not at all.

Being in love with some one she did not know, Eliza felt that it behooved her to interest him if it lay in her power; so she paid even more attention to her clothes and deprived herself of all forms of amusement so that she might make herself what she styled "presentable" before the "ginger-ale fiend." Be it said to her credit that she did not purchase her raiment on credit.

"There's one hopeful thing about it," she told herself. "He's a brunette and I'm a blonde; and they say that's the way it ought to be."

It seemed fine to be in love, even if it was unrequited, Eliza thought, and then she got to wondering if her sister ever had experienced the exhilaration attendant on being paid attention by the little winged god with bows and arrows. One day Eliza observed:

"Isabel, it's about time you got married. But there's no chance in the world for you, with those plain clothes you wear."

To which Isabel replied merely with a smile, and went her way. "She's a deep one," Eliza mused. "That's the way with brunettes. The ginger-ale fiend must be a deep one, too."

Eliza was a good-looking girl and Hendricks continued to order his ginger ale, read his paper, sip his drink and hurry out of the store.

One morning, as she lay in bed snatching a few extra minutes of semi-slumber, a startling fact crept into Eliza's brain. She had no clean clothes! She had been working harder than usual of late and had allowed her soiled garments to accumulate. She had intended to wash out a waist and skirt the night before, but had forgotten to do it.

She leaped from bed, on the verge of a panic. Horrors! Go behind the soda fountain with soiled clothes? Impossible! What was to be done? There was nothing that could be done unless—oh, she couldn't do that, and yet—well, it was the only course.

She shook her sister, who was not due at the clothing store until Eliza had been mixing drinks for an hour. "Isabel!" cried Eliza. "Wake up! Can you let me wear a waist and skirt of yours today? I hate to ask you, but mine aren't fit."

Isabel sat up and rubbed her eyes, and yawned, then glared at Eliza as though debating whether to rend her limb from limb.

"You want—to—borrow—a—waist—and—skirt?" she said, as though she could not believe her ears. "You—you queen of fashion—you want to wear my plain clothes?"

Eliza felt somewhat abashed. "Well, no, I really don't want to," she replied; "but there's nothing else to do."

So it was that Eliza Correll, fashionable plate of Silverworth's soda emporium, appeared that morning in plain attire—startlingly plain; so plain that her fellow workers were awe-stricken and talked in undertones.

While she worked Eliza became filled with apprehension.

"What will the ginger-ale fiend think?" she wondered, and resolved to keep out of sight at two o'clock. But this proved impossible, for at 1:45 a rush began and every available hand was needed.

"Maybe he won't come today," Eliza thought, but she realized she might as well hope to halt time itself in its flight. Sure enough, at two o'clock in walked John Hendricks. He sensed himself and waited for his order to be taken. Contrary to her ordinary course of procedure, Eliza tried to keep in the background, but all the other girls were busy, and "service" was a byword at Silverworth's.

"Well, here goes. All is lost," she murmured, and approached John Hendricks. For the first time in history he smiled at her.

"Hello!" he said pleasantly; "I'd like a ginger ale. You're new at this job, aren't you?"

Eliza's power of speech was paralyzed momentarily, but she managed to get it in working order long enough to stammer:

"No—oh, no; that is, not especially new. I've been here off and on."

"Never noticed you before," said the ginger-ale fiend. "Must be you had different hours."

Eliza declined no reply. She busied herself with the ginger ale, while John plunged into his newspaper, laying it down to smile at her again as she returned with his favorite drink. And it was a friendly smile, a sincere smile; "nothing fresh about it," as Eliza remarked afterward.

When she gave him his check, instead of leaving, he said:

"I've asked Miss Joyce to introduce us. I need some one to help me use a couple of tickets at the Temple theater tonight."

Miss Joyce, another soda fountain worker, thereupon formally made them acquainted, and arrangements were made for the theater party.

When Isabel went home that afternoon she found Eliza enthusiastically busy at the washtub. The news was too good to keep, and Isabel was informed of the big event of the day at the soda counter. After hearing her sister's story, she said:

"Eliza, you made a hit with that young man because you wore plain clothes—my clothes. Take my advice and leave off the gaudy stuff tonight. You can have my best dress."

Eliza completed her work at the tub, but when John Hendricks called for her she was attired in her sister's Sunday garments.

One week later Eliza announced to her sister that she was going to marry John Hendricks, the real estate man.

"Congratulations!" said Isabel. "As long as you've confided in me, I might as well tell you that I'm to become Mrs. Welding—the wife of the assistant manager of our store."

"Congratulations, yourself," returned Eliza. "You certainly did have the right idea about clothes, Isabel. John told me last night, when he proposed, that he had been looking for a girl who didn't overdress. After all, clothes don't make the girl. They help a lot—but they must not be overdone."

"Do you know anyone who wants to buy a second-hand wardrobe—one that's guaranteed against Cupid's arrows?"

"The Undying Fire" will be Mr.

Whipple's subject on Sunday. This church opens its doors to all who seek to find the elements of truth and righteousness. It seeks to help in the solving of both spiritual and material problems. Our service is at 2.30 P. M. with music by our choir under Miss Deane's direction.

Church school meets at 1.15 P. M.

Each pupil and teacher is urged to better the record of the past year.

Excel yourself in attendance. By each one trying to better his or her record we shall all be trying to better the record of the school. Mrs. E.

R. Sampson, superintendent. The school begins the year with a record of 92. Our aim is to exceed 100 regular attendants within the present month.

Bartlett Spooner will conclude his travel talks on Sunday evening with lantern talk on "Brest and some Towns of France." This will be at 7 o'clock and under direction of the Y. P. C. U. A silver collection will be taken at this meeting.

The Old Colony Association is coming here Jan. 20.

Five young people and Mr. Whipple attended the big mass meeting of young people which filled the West

Somerville church, Sunday evening.

Those attending the Ferry Beach reunion banquet on Wednesday evening included Mrs. E. R. Sampson,

Miss Lillian Gay, Miss Mabel Sampson, Miss Louisa Kittredge, Miss Elizabeth Holbrook, Miss Mary Ford, Miss

Ina Leinonen and Mr. Whipple. These were some of those present at Ferry

Beach during the past summer.

UNION CONGREGATIONAL

Weymouth and Braintree

In this new age many of the old lines of cleavage in religious belief have broken down and sectarianism has largely lost its meaning. This is perhaps because men have seen a new light—that Faith (instead of being the mere assent of the intellect alone to a particular form of words) is a matter of the soul; the will, the life. We have re-discovered in the message of Jesus that the essentials are good-will and service to our fellows, and that thus we show our love to God. The liberal faith today is not the matter of a claim but a deed, and this is the new orthodoxy.

Under the subject of "The Highest Good" Mr. Justice, Sunday morning at 10.30 will discuss some of the currents of religious thought of the present hour and endeavor to find the faith that endures.

Young Men's Forum at 12. Church School at same hour. Young People's meeting at 6 to be followed by a social half hour at 6.40. The brand-new People's evening service will be held at 7.15, subject: "Getting thru the Line: Harvard-Oregon." Everyone will find a cordial welcome.

THE WHITE CHURCH

(Congregational)

Rev. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor.

By the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, National Prohibition becomes the established polity of the nation. Every opposing interest has done its utmost to thwart the will of the people. Every expendent of law or of subterfuge has been utilized to nullify or to minimize the plain intent of legislation which has been enacted. But by the recent decision of the highest court of the land, these efforts have failed. Without people like it or deplore it, "Prohibition" has become our settled American policy. But we would be simple minded indeed, should we now settle down to a comfortable inactivity in the fond hope that this disturbing issue in American life has been definitely disposed of. What then? Come and hear the pastor's sermon concerning this matter, on Sunday morning. Worship and sermon at 10.30: Pastor's sermon topic,

"After the Supreme Court Decision,

What?"

Church Bible school at noon; all departments.

Sunday night service at 7 o'clock.

An hour with the lantern; interesting pictures; a helpful message. A good way to spend the early Sunday Evening.

Always a cordial welcome at the

"White Church."

Golden Wedding Couple At East Weymouth

EDWARD FLANNERY
Friends and relatives joined with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flannery on Friday Jan. 2, in celebration of the couple's golden wedding anniversary in their home in East Weymouth. Among the many gifts they received was a purse of gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Flannery were both born in Ireland and have been residents of Weymouth for 55 years. Mr. Flannery was formerly engaged in the shoe business. They have had seven children: the Rev. James H. Flannery, pastor of St. John's Church, Hopkinton; Joseph, Edward, John, Sarah, Mrs. Esther Hinckley and Mrs. Edward Clough, who died recently. They were married at Weymouth, Jan. 2, 1870, by the Rev. Hugh P. Smith. The above portraits were kindly loaned by the Boston Post.

OLD COLONY COUNCIL

Two years of organized Scouting in Weymouth has just been completed. To hundreds of Boys it has meant two years of ideals of the highest type. It has meant guidance by a vital motto "Be Prepared" and the formation of worth while habits in the daily "Good Turn."

As a force in war activities, the Scouts of Weymouth have played an important part. They sold over $84,700.00 in the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th Liberty Loans. War Savings Sales amount to approximately $500. They have acted as government dispatch bearers, have helped in the Red Cross, Salvation Army, American Legion and War Community Campaigns. They have collected peach stones for gas masks and have performed valuable war garden work.

At the beginning of the war, most of our junior officers enlisted with the colors, which made our second year a critical one on account of lack of adequate leadership. At the present time we have in Weymouth over 70 Scouts and about 8 commissioned officers. The troops are situated as follows: Troop 1 meets at Weymouth Landing in the Union School, Troop 2 at East Weymouth, Troop 5 meets at the Torrey school, South Weymouth and Troop 6 meets at Pilgrim church, North Weymouth.

The following gentlemen are members of the Troop Committees of Weymouth who believe that Scouting is the ideal method of influencing boys to do their duty to God and to their country and so combat among our future citizens the insidious growth of false ideals: C. E. Parsons, M. S. Meigs, R. Jenkins, J. Chase, F. V. Garey, Rev. E. T. Ford, Josiah B. Reed, Charles F. Brown, J. W. Lindblow, W. T. Seabury and Henry O'Day.

Scouting is an out-of-door program. A Scout likes to "hike" and to camp, in short, he loves the out of doors.

It has been estimated that there are some three thousand hours of a boy's time in the course of a year, which are not claimed by home, school or church. The Scout program furnishes him with direction during these unoccupied hours. Through his books, his Scout Master and other instructors, the boy is introduced to nature. He comes to know the birds, the flowers, trees and animals. Then to swim as a Scout does the trick is worth while. The breast, the crawl and side are all required. No boy can become a First Class Scout who can not swim fifty yards. Then the art of First Aid, life saving, a knowledge of the compass, and in fact everything a soldier knows, except the manual of arms and to shoot to kill, is open to the Scout.

The main plan is to further extend and develop the wonderful idea of Scouting so that every home where there is a boy may have the blessing of seeing their boy helped to exercise his own powers of the highest possible manly development. Last summer, we had over 120 Scouts who camped from one to two weeks at the Council Camp, OLCOCO, on Oldham Pond, Pembroke, Mass.

During the last year our total expense throughout the eight towns in the Old Colony district was $3,000.00. We believe this amount is inadequate to carry on the work and hope to raise this year at least $4,000.00 of which Weymouth's quota is $1,000.00. The secretary and treasurer of this Campaign Committee in Weymouth is Josiah B. Reed, who will be glad to receive contributions from those who are interested.

Please direct all mail for the Gazette or the Times to—"Gazette, Weymouth, Mass." No street address or box is necessary, and no name.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Mrs. J. Christman Proved That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Remedy for this Trouble.

Binghamton, N. Y.—"I was in a very nervous condition for over a year, my mind was gloomy, could see no light on anything, could not work and could not have anyone to see me. Doctor's medicine did not help me and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended. I took it and am now well. I recommend it to all afflicted with nervous prostration."—Mrs. J. CHRISTMAN, 193 Oak Street, Binghamton, New York.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

If there are any complications about which you need advice write in confidence to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

HEARTBURN

Caused by Acid-Stomach

That bitter heartburn, belching, food-repeating, indigestion, bloating, eating—all are caused by acid-stomach. ## A W. OF REPLEVIN

By MAX HART

(Copyright.)

For instance, there was the wonderful silk—blue silk—gown, with Irish point-lace and a sash made from the wing of an angel; there was the two-wheeled bicycle running on pneumatic tires which the family refused you, until life seemed drab and useless; there was the seventy-horsepower touring car, with its French driver; or perhaps it was a country home on a Maine hill, a diamond sunburst, a clockwork horse in pale pink with a stiff tail—a first suit of evening clothes, a Daghestan rug, new heels on your old shoes, a check from responsible sources, the encouraging smile of a strange woman whom you had discreetly admired, the new crystal in your injured watch—it might simmer on indefinitely.

This is the point, and it permits of no dissension, it allows no argument, it is unto itself an all-incontrovertible fact: That which we have, we are quietly pleased with, when it is good; but the keen and biting edge of our appreciation becomes dulled from the first moment of possession—the wire-fine edge of the joyous, shocking thrill of novelty slides rapidly away, despite our best efforts to hold it, and some of us become numb—very numb.

The "this-suits-me-fine" of the second day loses one-half a tone, and there can be no better way of illustrating than to wander idly into the home of Mr. James Brainard, on Morningside Park.

Mrs. Brainard—Aline, of course—is sitting on a green couch in the morning-room. Her eyes are fastened upon a naphtha launch that scurries along the surface of the Hudson a mile away. It is a delightfully busy launch, and for a long time Mrs. Brainard watches it circle and line, until the water-spout on the building next door blots it out.

Around her is wealth—profuse, restrained wealth, and the culture that follows it. There are servants at the end of each thin bell-wire. The floors are inch deep with expensive rugs. Paintings fill the bare spaces, and bits of statuary are scattered through the larger rooms.

Wherever she looks, Mrs. Brainard sees possessions—those things that she owns, she and Jim Brainard, who, at the moment of our impertinence, is puzzling over a legal problem in Broad street.

James is very rich, very successful, very much sought after, and very close to the ragged edge of a smash-up, not financial, not moral, not domestic, not romantic—just a plain smash-up, for which no defining expression is yet within the language.

And now to draw back the curtain. Aline and James married in Dubuque, Iowa, and came to New York city on the first two hundred dollars. For a long time after their arrival, James operated upon a flimsy basis, without office, without practice, and frequently without food.

He did little tasks around police courts, and Aline was captain and general manager of the little apartment on East Ninety-third street, which cleaved away from their tiny sinking-fund the sum of sixteen dollars per month. It was a genuine sinking-fund, living strictly to its name.

On East Ninety-third street the landlords run to furnished flats, and the Brainards occupied one. It was small beyond the jokes in comic papers.

Aline promptly discovered how it should be used, even if it were intended for something else; and, as the ring hung almost beside the door leading into the hall, it was her thoughtful custom to greet James upon his return from downtown with a wifely kiss, which she delivered through the leather ring.

Not a bit of sense to it, of course; but Aline liked it, and the ring just covered her eyes. So, sometimes, Jim couldn't tell that she had been crying.

When the little launch drifted out of her sight the little flat drifted in, and for a long time she sat in silence, recalling one familiar object after another, and wondering what had happened to her and to Jim in the years that had crept between.

Not so very many years, she mused. He was a bit younger then, to be sure. So was she.

But in those happy, poverty-stricken months, life had held something for each of them that it no longer possessed. At least, if it still held it for her, in a measure, it seemed not to for Jim.

It was appreciation, she decided. Of course, Jim was comparatively happy. He realized that his life was flowing in smooth waters. He was pleased with his beautiful home and with his wife, but always in a dull, inert way.

He had somehow reached tomorrow, and had found it commonplace and, worst of all, he was drifting away from Aline; not through desire of his and not because he was weary of having her, but because something inside him was becoming atrophied. The world was getting Jim, and Aline was losing him.

"And I can remember," she said aloud, "the time the plumbers came and piped our first flat and put in the gas jets to replace the oil lamp. Jim and I nearly died of joy—sat up and read the whole night through just because we could."

"I wish Jim could like things now as he liked those foolish gas jets. At least, I'm not like him. I love him minute just as I loved him on sty-third street, and Heaven knows how often we agreed that nobody had ever loved like that before. But Jim!" She laughed mirthlessly. "Jim's a big man now. If he were to come home tonight and find that they had cut a hole in the wall and built a covered bridge to heaven for our particular use, he'd only say, 'Humph! Quite an improvement,' and forget it."

When the Hon. Mr. Brainard returned to his Broad street offices late in the afternoon, he was deeply vexed and snappy in manner.

The directors' meeting which he had attended had shown a thorough dislike for several of his pet projects, and it had become necessary for his fellow members to curb his enthusiasm with a number of stinging rebukes.

At his office he found a request that demanded his attention. For ten minutes he puzzled over the yellow telephone message, frowning and strongly tempted to tear it into bits and leave for home.

The element of curiosity crept into his meditation. The call was a demand for his services in a personal affair, and it was a long time since he had dabbled in personalities.

"Who was this?" he asked the office manager.

"I know nothing about it beyond what you read. I think it's a separation case—something that somebody wants done about her husband. Possibly it's a non-support case."

"If you hear anything further, simply say that I can't bother with it."

He tossed the slip upon his desk and drew on his coat. Before leaving the office he stepped over curiously and picked up the message. Without any particular thought, he dropped it into an inside pocket.

The Brainard touring car could do sixty miles an hour without touching the last speed, and the diligent chauffeur was closely approaching that mark on the uptown ride, when Brainard learned forward and spoke to him. The car slowed down at once, and, instead of taking the usual course up the Drive, it honked its way to the opposite side of the city.

"Very odd," reflected the chauffeur. "Very odd, indeed."

Through unfamiliar streets, packed with traffic and cluttered with children, the big car threaded a cautious way, and finally the driver brought it to a stop, with a rasp of brakes and a growling of cylinders.

"This is the number, sir," he said, and Mr. Brainard stepped out.

Before him were dirty stone steps, a railing that sagged in rusted dilapidation, and a greasy door, with a still greasier entrance hall beyond.

For an instant the lawyer paused. He plucked the telephone memorandum from his pocket and studied it. Then he walked slowly up the steps and began to scan the letter slips above the push-buttons.

"This is it," he muttered. "I must be losing my senses to do a thing like this."

A faint clicking in the lock put an end to his musings, and he pushed the door open and started up the stairway. At the top of the first flight he knocked loudly at a door that was wholly hidden in the darkness of the landing, and it opened at once.

A frightened, white-faced woman stood directly before him, swaying slightly—the woman whom he had kissed good by at eight o'clock that morning as he left for the office.

He stared at her in silence, closing the door behind him. Her heavy brown hair was parted smoothly over her forehead, and she was clad in a faded blue wrapper—a wrapper that had once glided in a wealth of red half-moons.

It was the wrapper that shocked him into the first realization of where he stood—the wrapper and a leather ring that hung from the ceiling and which Aline suddenly lifted in the long-forgotten manner.

He stepped forward and kissed her. A thousand times he had done that. His first wave of feeling—astonishment, anger—dropped away from him. He stood fingering the frayed table-cover.

Aline had sunk upon the couch, and was crying. He knelt down beside her. "Aline," he began, and there was a tone in his voice that she had not heard in years, "for an instant I didn't understand all this. Now I do."

He kissed her tear-stained cheek, and went on.

"I didn't know where I was. Why, it's the same old place. Not a blessed thing changed, not even the ring gone. It's going to take some time for me to comprehend everything, but this does me good."

Aline sat up and placed her hands on his shoulders.

"Do you love me, Jim?" she asked quietly.

He nodded without speaking. There was a tenderness in his gray eyes that needed no words. For several moments he knelt there, holding her face between his hands.

Finally he said: "I believe the little old place has done its duty fully and completely. We'd better go, Aline, hadn't we? The car is outside."

She rose, and swiftly removed the faded wrapper of bygone days.

"I'm going to keep it," she said, smiling. "And something else, too. Let me have your knife. I will be a flat-ropper to this extent at least."

The leather circle that hung from the ceiling came away at the touch of the blade.

"For luck," said Aline. "Come on, Jim."

He kissed her again. Then he walked over to the poor little bed and slipped a yellow bill beneath the covers.

"For the next two," he laughed. "For luck."

A HOUSEKEEPER

By GRACE E. RILEY.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Hester Blynn started the trouble. Hester had lived with Melissa for 14 years. Now she was married and Melissa was left alone.

"I believe I'm lonesome," Melissa gurgled to herself. Gurgled describes it. Her conversation always seemed on the ragged edge of a laugh.

Fifteen years before, the heart of Ned Coffin, Melissa's sweetheart since her childhood days, had been captured by a summer boarder—a pretty girl and gay, who, when urged by Ned, had given up her school in Boston and married him in late September.

Their wedding day gave birth to Melissa's gurgling laugh, a disguise for her aching heart; and to all intents and purposes Melissa had bought a farm in New York state, where, with her cousin Hester Blynn, she had lived and had gained a name for herself, both for her excellent cooking and for her fine friendliness to the world in general.

"Yes, I'm lonesome," she reiterated. "When a woman gets to pitying herself, she'd better look elsewhere for an outlet for her thoughts," and, lighting the lamp, she settled down to devour her farm paper. Everything from the president's illness to the want ads fell under her appraising eye. Then an ejaculation escaped from her lips. Someone in Nantucket wanted a housekeeper. She'd love to answer it! She was a good cook, and was alone in the world. What was to prevent? She read again:

"A widower on Nantucket Island has a place for a housekeeper with prospects. Address N-24, Farmers' Home."

"Seems like writing to a white post or some equally inhuman thing. Maybe he's that sort. Well, we'll see. Guess I'll send him a jar of my plums as a wedge to his approval," said Melissa, snuffing action to word by making a raid on her choicest preserves. With great care she packed the jar, and, as with the letter, signed "Melissa Crosby," her mother's name, and addressed it, too, to N-24.

"Melissa, you're an old fool, but, as the saying goes, 'no fool like an old fool.'" So saying, she bolted the door, put out the lamp, banked the kitchen fire and mounted the stairs to her cozy bedroom.

The next day, Ben, man of all work, carried her letter and package to town, and for a week Melissa was as near to nerves as a healthy woman can be. Then came a letter from N-24, expressing his desire that Melissa Crosby come on Oct. 1, to Boston, where he would meet her. He signed himself "Faithfully yours, N-24."

To say Melissa was in a state of excitement would little describe her perturbation. "Now, Melissa, what have you let yourself in for? Probably he's 70 years old and feeble. No, he can't be feeble, else he couldn't come to Boston," she argued as her laugh filled the room.

She wrote again to N-24, telling him to come to the Y. W. C. A., Boston, on Oct. 1, and ask for her. Then followed the busiest two weeks of Melissa's life. In the midst of packing preparatory to closing the house, Hester and her husband unexpectedly returned.

"Oh, Melissa, we're in awful trouble," said Hester.

"This is the place to come, then, Hester. What's wrong?"

"You know we were planning to buy the Hiram Brown place, had the papers already to sign, when Hiram got one of his tantrums on, and refused to sell. Now we ain't got any place to go."

"The Lord will provide," read Melissa from an old sampler hanging over the kitchen door. "You surely came to the right place, Hester; you can rent my farm."

"But I don't understand, Melissa." "Course you don't, so I'll tell you. I'm going to Nantucket for a spell, and will be only too glad to rent the farm if you and John will take it."

After a discussion of terms and conditions, the matter was satisfactorily settled, and in a week Melissa was on her way to Boston. October 1 found N-24 at the desk of the Y. W. C. A., inquiring for Miss Crosby. "She's sitting in that telephone room over there," the attendant told him. He crossed the hall, then stopped suddenly, but not before Melissa's glance had fallen on him.

"Ned Coffin, what are you doing here?"

Ned took in the situation at once. "So you, Melissa, are Miss Crosby? I am N-24, Melissa. So you're going to be my housekeeper?"

A hot flush stained her cheeks. "Now, Melissa," she scolded herself. "don't be silly."

"Guess I am, Ned."

He chuckled. The chuckle increased until it became a hearty laugh.

"What are you laughing at, Ned—why do you look so wise?"

"I was thinking 'bout my ad, Melissa."

"What about it?" The writing of the ad had quite gone from her memory.

"A housekeeper with prospects," he quoted.

She raised her eyes to meet his, her cheeks growing pinker and pinker as he said in lowered tone: "Meliss, how about the prospect materializing before we leave Boston?"

Melissa's gurgling laugh was cut short as Ned Coffin, reading acquiescence in her eyes, followed the lead of man since time immemorial.

RHEUMATISM

Mustarine Subdues the Inflammation and Eases the Soreness Quicker Than Anything Else on Earth.

Try only 30 cents and get a big box of Begg's Mustarine, which is the original mustard plaster and is made of strong, real, yellow mustard—no substitutes are used.

It's known as the quickest pain killer on earth, for in hundreds of instances it stops headache, neuralgia, toothache, earache and backache in 5 minutes.

It's a sure, speedy remedy—none better for bronchitis, pleurisy, lumbago, and to draw the inflammation from your sore feet there is nothing so good. You get real action with Mustarine—it goes after the pain and kills it right off the reel. Yes, it burns, but it won't blister—it doesn't give agonizing pain a slap on the wrist. It does give it a good healthy punch in the jaw—it kills pain. Ask for and get Mustarine always in the yellow box.

S. C. Wells & Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

STOPS PAIN MUSTARINE CANNOT BLISTER

Remarkable Apple Tree.

A strange apple tree is to be seen in a garden at Portchar, Glamorgan-shire, England. It was planted last spring. Two months later it flowered and bore a crop of good apples. When the first crop was gathered it blossomed and had two large apples, different in size and color from the first. Now it is blossoming for the third time in a year.

ARMISTICE!

Constipation, Headache, Colds, Biliousness, Sufferer to "Cascarets"

Bring back peace! Enjoy life! Your system is filled with liver and bowel poison which keeps your skin sallow, your stomach upset, your head dull and aching. Your meals are turning into poison gases and acids. You can not feel right. Don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without gripping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or nasty, harsh pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep.—Adv.

Protecting His Guard.

A huge, burly soldier was arrested for drunkenness and confined to the guardhouse. His constant attendant for the next few days was a little, timid guard, who pattered around after him like a child. One morning they were late to mess, whereat the cook assailed the guard.

"Can't you come on time! This ain't no hotel!" he shouted. The guard shrank away, and the cook, emboldened, struck him. Instantly the big prisoner intervened with a well-aimed blow at the cook.

"Hey, you!" he roared, "you leave my guard alone! I ain't going to have anyone at all abusing him!"—American Legion Weekly.

SHE THOUGHT DRESS WOULD LOOK DYED

But "Diamond Dyes" Turned Her Faded, Old, Shabby Apparel Into New.

Don't worry about perfect results. Use "Diamond Dyes," guaranteed to give a new, rich, fadeless color to any fabric, whether it be wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods—dresses, blouses, stockings, skirts, children's coats, feathers, draperies, coverings—everything!

The Direction Book with each package tells how to diamond dye over any color.

To match any material, have dealer show you "Diamond Dye" Color Card.—Adv.

His Christmas Wish.

Billy Brake hasn't seen three full summers yet. But he is as interested in Santa Claus as any child dare be.

"What do you want Santa to bring you?" he was asked.

"I want an alligator," he replied, his eyes sparkling.

"An alligator! What in the world do you want with an alligator?" queried his astonished friend.

Watch Your Kidneys!

That "bad back" is probably due to weak kidneys. It shows in a dull, throbbing backache, or sharp twinges when stooping. You have headaches, too, dizzy spells, a tired nervous feeling and irregular kidney action. Don't neglect it—there is danger of dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands have saved themselves more serious ailments by the timely use of Doan's. Ask Your Neighbor!

A Maine Case

C. C. Adams, Brondway, Farmington, Me., says: "I had kidney trouble for years and felt all tired out. I suffered severely from my back and also had a great deal of trouble with the kidney secretions, which passed altogether too frequently. I finally got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief at once. I gladly recommend Doan's for I think well of them. The cure they gave me has been lasting."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

The Brands of the Bar.

Familiar Face (sipping a glass of non-alcoholic beverage)—What do your customers call this new would-be beer, Tom?

Obsolete Bartender—Well, sir, I haven't heard the customers call it anything but the names they call us as have to serve the stuff to 'em couldn't be repeated.

ASPIRIN FOR HEADACHE

Name "Bayer" is on Genuine Aspirin—say Bayer

Insist on "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in a "Bayer package," containing proper directions for Headache, Colds, Pain, Neuralgia, Lumbago, and Rheumatism. Name "Bayer" means genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Aspirin is trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Mono-aceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

A Symbol.

W. B. Trites, a novelist, who is tall and lean, said at a dinner in Philadelphia:

"Bernard Shaw is a rich man now, but there was once a time when he was very poor. I met him during that time, and I ventured to say to him: 'How excessively tall and lean you are!'"

"All artists," he answered, "are excessively tall and lean—a symbol of lofty aims and narrow means."

Garfield Tea, by purifying the blood, eradicates rheumatism, dyspepsia and many chronic ailments.—Adv.

Music's Magic.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER.

Constipation invites other troubles which come speedily unless quickly checked and overcome by Green's August Flower which is a gentle laxative, regulates digestion both in stomach and intestines, cleans and sweetens the stomach and alimentary canal, stimulates the liver to secrete the bile and impurities from the blood. It is a sovereign remedy used in many thousands of households all over the civilized world for more than half a century by those who have suffered with indigestion, nervous dyspepsia, sluggish liver, coming up of food, palpitation, constipation and other intestinal troubles. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Try a bottle, take no substitute.—Adv.

Straight actions do not spring from crooked thoughts.

POP GEERS IS GREATEST OF REINSMEN AND HAS HAD LONG AND INTERESTING CAREER

Veteran Driver and One of His Pets.

Edward Franklin Geers, more popularly known as "Pop," was born three miles from Lebanon, Tenn., January 25, 1851. He has appeared in races before more people than any man who ever sat in a sulky, the number at Charter Oak Park, Hartford, alone being over a million. He has also won more races than any man who ever followed the profession in which his name will always be a leader.

Won by Merit.

For all time Geers' name will be linked with that of Budd Doble and Charles Marvin. Each of them earned their laurels by following the hard and narrow path that bears the old-fashioned label of integrity. By merit and fair dealing they made their way to the front and remained there as fixtures during the balance of their careers.

While time performances were the stepping stones upon which both Doble and Marvin mounted the pedestal of fame, Geers made himself near and dear to the race-going public by gathering his laurels in stubbornly contested races, many of which were in doubt to the last stride of the last heat. He also had his champions in Hal Pointer, Robert J. The Abbot, and The Harvester, while the triple team record of 2:14 which he made with Belle Hamlin, Globe and Justina at Cleveland in 1891 will in all probability remain unchallenged forever.

Fame Is Assured.

There are others on the way, but if Geers should never draw a rein over another horse his fame is secure. The pegs were driven home by Mattie Hunter, Brown Hal, Star Pointer, Hal Pointer, Hal Dillard, Fantasy, Robert J. Hamlin's Nightingale, Joe Patchen, Lady of the Manor, Lord Derby, The Abbot, Heir at Law, Billy Buck, Direct Hal, Anvil, Etawah, Doodle Archdale, The Harvester, Napoleon Direct, St. Frisco, Single G., Goldie Todd and this year's babies, Molly Knight and Duddette.

INTERESTING SPORT PARAGRAPHS

Toronto has no building suitable to hold indoor track meets.

Amherst has recognized soccer and hockey as active sports.

Pay of Pacific Coast league umpires has been raised from $250 to $300 per month.

How many can recall right offhand who was the great hero in that world series?

Charley Mullen has been succeeded by Clyde Wares as manager of the Seaside club of the Coast league.

Wellington Brothers '21 has been elected captain of the University of Wisconsin varsity cross-country team for 1920.

George Burns, the Giant outfielder, is on an automobile tour of the middle West with "Slim" Salee, the Reds' left-hander.

Foster Sanford, Rutgers coach, is one of the rumored successors to Fred Dawson, Columbia football coach, who has resigned.

Polo will be recognized and adopted as the official army sport, according to the announcement of General March, chief of staff.

Elected by unanimous choice of the 17 football "T" men, Elliot Ritsley, giant lineman of the varsity football team, will pilot the Indiana eleven next season.

It won't be long now until the hold-out crop begins to bear fruit. Most of the clubs are preparing their new contracts, to be mailed out the latter part of next month.

Nebraska football team has offered to go to Annapolis next year for a game with the Naval academy team. Penn and Princeton are also mentioned as probable opponents for Annapolis.

If John McGraw really wants to trade, he won't have any trouble in getting rid of Benny Kauff. Benny and Jawn, so reports have it, have about reached the parting of the ways.

Arthur Callahan, brother of John Callahan, captain of the Yale 1919 football team, and Capt. Harry Callahan of the Princeton eleven, has been elected captain of next year's football team at the Lawrence high school.

Bill Carrigan, former manager of the Red Sox, may become part owner of that club if a plan now in the making goes through. Several Boston men want to buy the club from Harry Frazee and have interested Carrigan in the deal.

BAKER DETERMINED TO QUIT

Manager Huggins Expresses Belief That "Home-Run" Star Is Sincere in Declaration.

RECORD FOR MAJOR LEAGUES

Washington American Team Believed to Have Set Mark for Consecutive Playing in 1919.

What is believed to constitute a record for major leagues has been established by the Washington club in the matter of uninterrupted playing. The calling off of the final game in the recent Cleveland series, because of rain was the first postponement since May 23. After that date, which was just one month after the season opened, the Griffins participated in every scheduled contest and a number of games postponed prior to that date as well, including two tie games at the Polo grounds. In eighty-three days Washington averaged one game a day, exceeding half of the schedule of 140 games by thirteen.

Chronic Constipation is as dangerous as disagreeable. Garfield Tea cures it.—Adv.

Latest Nervous Diseases.

"Fellophobia," or a groundless fear and dislike of a fellow man, is said to be the latest nervous disease. Investigators have found it to be remarkably prevalent at the present time. This complaint appears to affect at least five out of every ten men who have seen war service. "It is quite true," writes a medical man, "that shell shock and nervous patients do take extraordinary dislikes to quite harmless people. They also have a horror of meeting these people for no apparent reason. The doctor's verdict is corroborated by ex-army men who were interviewed on the subject."

Army Gas Mask Saved Lives.

When a pipe in the ammonia plant at a creamery in Livingston, Mont., blew up and filled the whole building with deadly gas so that the workmen generally lost their heads and ran about in circles, not knowing what to do, John Larson, an overseas veteran, ran at top speed to his home and came back wearing an army gas mask, protected by which he boldly approached the ammonia cylinders which were pouring out their noxious fumes, shut off the ammonia and mended the pipe.

That Was the Trouble.

Pedestrian—You say your wife is starving. Can't you get work?
Beggar—Yes, sir; but she can't.

Holland's Great Wall.

The gigantic wall which the Dutch are building across the entrance to the Zuyder Zee will be 18 miles long and 230 feet wide at sea level.

Don't wait until it begins to sprinkle before starting to lay in something for a rainy day.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

RARE DOUBLES TO MONARCHS

Resemblances, Fancied and Real, Have Given Rise to Some Highly Imaginative Stories.

Most monarchs possess at least one double, but so far the double of the present shah of Persia has not been discovered. His grandfather, Nasr-ed-Din, had a famous double in the person of Edmund Yates. The resemblance between these two was so striking that Yates' photographs were sold in Brussels as the shah's when Nasr-ed-Din visited that city. However, he never suffered through the possession of a double as another monarch did, if we may credit a theory of Andrew Lang's. According to that ingenious historian, Queen Elizabeth and Darnley were doubles. The second husband of Mary Queen of Scots was not, as is generally supposed, blown up in the explosion of Kirk o' Field, but escaped into England. He then somehow got Elizabeth at his mercy and ultimately secured her throne, posing as the queen to the end of his days. Thanks to the amazing resemblance between the two, the imposture was not discovered until after Darnley's death.—Manchester Guardian.

YOUR NEWSPAPER

Your newspaper publisher cannot be expected to print more pages than he believes he can sell. The scarcity of paper and the Government's request to reduce our consumption hardly permits any surpluses.

To make sure of your Gazette each week, why not subscribe? The publisher will be glad to welcome you within his rapidly growing family of readers.

Further he welcomes reports from any readers who do encounter difficulty in getting the Gazette, regularly each week.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

There will be an important meeting of the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, January 15, at the Hotel Westminster in Boston. The meeting will start at 11 A. M., with a legislative conference under the leadership of Elias B. Bishop and the Legislative Advisory Board. This will be followed at 1 P. M., by a luncheon and an afternoon session commencing at 2 P. M., at which Mr. A. W. McKeand of Terre Haute, Indiana, will speak on the subject "Making the State Chamber of Commerce a Success."

AFTER FREE COAL

Last Saturday Weymouth Heights had a "coal rush." It was precipitated by the rapid spread of news that several cars of the South Shore regular freight, leaving South Braintree at 7.10 A. M., for Nantasket Junction, left the tracks near the Weymouth Heights station, New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and that hard coal was strewn all over the roadbed. The wreck occurred about 9 o'clock. Within an hour many persons had arrived at the scene, some carrying utensils in which to bear the "treasure."

As quick as the Weymouth Heights folk were, Detective A. C. McCagg of the railroad was quicker. He was guarding the coal when the first "rushers" arrived, and he kept on the job until the wreck was cleaned up just before darkness.

Derailment of the cars, some of which were filled with automobiles, caused 30 yards of track to be torn up. Wrecking crews from Boston and South Braintree worked all day repairing the break. All trains running over the route were forced to go "single track" between Weymouth and East Weymouth.

No one was hurt in the accident, caused by the giving away of the forward trucks of a gondola coal car.

JONAS PERKINS ASSOCIATION

The regular meeting of the Jonas Perkins School Association met in the Abraham Lincoln school hall on Monday with a large attendance. Mrs. Jasper E. Hamblin, second vice president conducted the meeting. The president, Mrs. L. R. Mosher, was present but was unable to conduct the meeting on account of laryngitis. After a short business meeting, the Fore River Glee Club, under the able direction of James Calderwood, gave some splendid selections. Solos were rendered by Harold Hayden, W. T. Smith and Franz Monroe. The speaker was Victor T. Noonan, director of safety at the Fore River works and Victory Plant of Squantum. He gave a most interesting talk on "Prevention of Accidents." Ice cream and cake were then served, after which an impromptu dance was enjoyed, Henry M. Cleary presiding at the piano.

Are You Contributing To the YD Fund?

All the mothers, sisters and friends of the YD men have been working for the "Memorial Club House Fund" this week. They want to send in from Weymouth just as long a list as possible, to show the YD boys that their friends are standing by them and haven't forgotten what they did for the "stay at homes" in 1917-18. A list is being made of the women who will put their names down for $1 to go on record in the new club house. The men are asked to contribute any sum possible.

On Saturday a YD Tag Day will be held. Please drop something in the boxes. Can we measure our appreciation of the sacrifices of our Weymouth boys of Co. K in a few dollars and cents?

Surely Weymouth should fill her quota in memory of William Johnson and Waldo Ducca, who gave their lives in the war; to show we remember the year and half of suffering that Thomas Terry has spent in the hospitals in France and in the U.S.A., and the months more he will still spend; that we remember the five operations on Francis Nugent's arm--another serious one to come--and the year and some months he has been in the Army hospitals.

Send your dollars or any sum you wish to give to Miss Willa Coleman, 43 Bridge street, North Weymouth; Mrs. George Dowd, 272 Washington street, Weymouth; or Mrs. George W. Perry, 28 Station avenue, East Weymouth.

The YD committee also will receive contributions: Thomas McDonald, Francis Hannapin, Ernest Davidson and Eugene Smith.

GROCERS BANQUET

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealer's Association at its annual meeting in Braintree on Wednesday elected Byron Gupitt of Rockland president, Walter W. Pratt of Weymouth and F. M. Bryant of Weymouth vice presidents, Henry W. Mansfield of South Braintree clerk, Oakes A. Bridgman of South Braintree treasurer, C. L. Keon of North Abington, C. H. Cleft of Whitman, Mansfield Belyea of Braintree, F. Sylvester of East Weymouth and Edward Hunt of Weymouth executive committee.

Addresses were made at the evening dinner by Representatives Woodsum of Braintree, Tirrell of Weymouth and Shuebruk of Cohasset. Professional talent from Boston, assisted by George Abell of South Braintree, and community singing led by Howard B. Blewett, provided the musical program.

MENS CLUB BANQUET

The speaker on Wednesday, Jan. 21, at the Men's Club of the Clapp Memorial Association will be William H. Gallagher, recently returned from Japan, who will speak on "Japan of today." The regular banquet will be served at 6.45.

TOWN BRIEFS

The Weymouth High basketball team won last Friday from Stoughton High 35 to 15.

Clapp Memorial won last Friday from the Ainos five 26 to 25.

Read, "The Man Nobody Knew" in the Gazette next week. Also the first of a series of "Problems Facing a Stricken World."

CHARACTER PARTY

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxillary connected with the Pond Plain Improvement Association was held Tuesday evening at Pond Plain hall.

Abundant supper of cold turkey, salads, rolls, fancy ples and coffee, was served at 7.15 by the hostess committee, Mrs. Wilfred Dunn and assistants.

The affair was in the nature of a character party and it was extremely interesting. There were many varied characters portrayed, such as Charlie Chaplin, Mrs. Tague also Mrs. William Taylor; Mother Hubbard, Mrs. F.E. Hosmer; Massah Johnson, Winchenbach; Missus Johnson, Miss Staples; Red Riding Hood, Mrs. Martin; Sailor Boys, Miss Ruth Dunn, Miss Thompson; Highland Scotch Laddie, Miss Mary Lindsay, (who brought down the house with laughter); The Witch, Mrs. Guy Hart; Milkmaid, Mrs. Allen Hosmer; Massa Johnson, Mrs. Winchenbach; Missus Johnson, Miss Staples; girls of about seven summers and nurse, Mrs. Whiting, Mrs. Sparrow, Mrs. Flowers, Mrs. Swain and Mrs. Tisdale; Farmerette, Mrs. Pollard.

Other characters in quaint costumes, all of which made the affair a success and full of fun. Every member responded to the roll call in some manner and there were jokes, songs and dances affording much amusement.

The election of officers followed, with Mrs. William Taylor surrendering the chair and gavel to Mrs. Ralph P. Burrell, president for 1920. With an able corps of assistants, the Ladies Auxillary is sure to be in the foreground the coming year. Mrs. Whiting of Thicket street, presided at the piano and dancing followed until 11 P. M. All agreed it the most enjoyable party ever given by the Ladies Auxillary.

JITNEY LICENSES

To date, the Selectmen have not granted any so-called jitney licenses, but at every meeting more Class A licenses are granted to owners of autos who are willing to help out their neighbors. Thus far 18 of these licenses have been granted as follows:

G. Russell Niles of Rockland, from South Weymouth to Alden Walker & Wilde factory.

Frank I. Buffum of North Hanover to Clapp factory.

Theodore E. Connor of North Hanover, to Clapp factory.

Carl H. Burnett of South Weymouth to shipyard.

Joseph H. Franks of South Weymouth to Clapp factory.

F. W. Rea of East Weymouth to South Weymouth depot and Abington.

Burton B. Wright of South Weymouth to shipyard.

Samuel J. Ross of North Abington to Stetson factory.

Charles B. Mowry of South Weymouth to Clapp factory.

Joseph Zudat of Brockton to Stetson factory.

Olive R. Freeman of South Weymouth to shipyard.

Elmer B. Bates of Hingham to Clapp factory.

Ronald MacDonald of South Weymouth to shipyard.

Carl F. Anderson of Weymouth to shipyard.

Charles F. Tisdale of Rockland to shipyard.

William D. Blanchard of South Weymouth to Clapp factory.

Frederick J. Blanchard of North Weymouth to Stetson and Clapp factories.

Walter E. Cutter of Norwell to Stetson factory.

C. M. A. NOTES

The C. M. A. basketball team battles with the North Cohasset A. C. tomorrow night at the North Cohasset hall. A game with Tufts College will take place at the "gym" tonight. The banner game of the season will come next week in the form of a rubber game with the fast North Easton quintet. The game is to be played at Brockton, the date to be announced later.

The C. M. A. team has been playing in hard luck for the past week, and a change is due to take effect when they go out against the North Easton Legion team. The game will be played on a neutral floor and each side will have an equal chance to come out the victor. A referee will be appointed by a joint committee from the North Easton and from the Weymouth end. This will do away with any unsatisfactory decisions such as have been current in the recent games that the Association has played.

The North Easton fracas of a week ago was entirely due to the arrangement of the hall and is without a precedent in the history of the club. The fans backed the home team to the limit, and it is hoped that a large crowd will be on hand for the Brockton game to see the home team score a victory.

The C. M. A. second team defeated the Aino five last week at the gym. Although the Aino five was scheduled to play the first team, a change was made at the last minute and the second team sent in to play. This gave the first squad a much needed rest, after their game with the North Easton team the night before.

Two members of the C. M. A. first team are sporting discolorations of their eyes as a result of the North Easton game, but we are able to state that it was not due to any fracas.

With the basket ball team going at full speed, it has been practically impossible for any other entertainment but a boxing and wrestling bout will be scheduled for the latter part of the month.

Although the dance last week which was held after the game was handicapped by the failure of the orchestra to put in their appearance, there will be a followup dance tonight after the game and one of the best orchestras in the state will be on hand to furnish the music.

The latest report has the C. M. A. team travelling to the wilds of Maine next Easter Monday, to play another game with the Rumford Mechanics Institute. The local boys defeated the Rumford quintet a few days ago, after they had been riding for twelve hours. The Rumford men are confident that their own Galvarisky who was outplayed by Warren of the Weymouth team will come back and show up "the champion wrestler of Massachusetts," as one of the Rumford newspapers stated after the game.

Every one is asked to patronize the basketball games and dance to be held tonight at the gym.

POST OFFICE NUMBERS

Numbers have been given to all the post offices in the Boston postal district, with the expectation that delivery of letters and papers will be expedited. Let us hope so. The numbers for the Weymouth post offices are:

Weymouth, 88, Mass.
East Weymouth, 89, Mass.
South Weymouth, 90, Mass.
North Weymouth, 91, Mass.
The numbers should be located as printed above.

AGRICULTURAL MEETING

A union agricultural meeting is to be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, January 20, 21, 22 and 23. Sixteen Agricultural Organizations are co-operating with the Department of Agriculture in this meeting. Lectures, moving pictures, demonstrations and exhibits. Admission free and everyone welcome. Exhibits of fruits, flowers, shrubs, trees, etc., vegetables, bee products, dairy products and poultry products. Hall open from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M.

Miss Marion Ward Sawyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sewall M. Rich, of 331 Medford street, Somerville, and Arthur R. Wolfe, of Weymouth, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. William Henry Pettus, rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Somerville. Miss Elma G. Wiley, of Somerville, acted as bridesmaid, and Warren W. Webber of Whitman as best man. The couple will reside at 26 Preston road, Somerville.

President Wilson and Bryan Split on Ratification of the Peace Treaty.

LATTER ADVISES COMPROMISE

Chief Executive Urges Issue Be Submitted to People and Nebraskan Opposes—San Francisco Captures Democratic National Convention—Developments in War on Reds.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Predictions of a great split in the Democratic party, with William Jennings Bryan leading the revolt against President Wilson's policies, came to the verge of fulfillment at the big Jackson day dinner in Washington Thursday evening. Sensational developments had been expected, and they came. The president sent a letter in which he reiterated his demand for ratification of the peace treaty without changes that would alter its meaning, strongly condemned the Lodge reservations and urged that the entire issue be referred to the people at the coming presidential election.

Mr. Bryan, addressing the huge gathering of leaders, challenged Mr. Wilson's treaty policy and his utterances gave assurance that he and his followers will fight the matter to the finish in the Democratic convention if necessary. He condemned the action of the Republican majority in the senate while conceding its right to dictate the senate's course, and continued: "Our plan has been rejected and we must face the situation as it is. We must either secure such compromises as may be possible or present the issue to the country. The latter course would mean a delay of at least fourteen months and then success only in the case of our securing a two-thirds majority of the senate." The party, said Mr. Bryan, cannot afford to share with the Republicans responsibility for further delay, and cannot go before the country on the issue that such an appeal would present. He even went so far as to repudiate article X and to uphold the Lodge reservation on that article, saying: "If we do not intend to impair the right of congress to decide the question of peace or war when the time for action arises, how can we insist upon a moral obligation to go to war which can have no force or value except as it does impair the independence of congress?"

It remains to be seen whether Mr. Bryan can secure enough of a following to bring about a real split in the party. He himself is a potential candidate for the nomination, now more than ever, and it may be President Wilson will be compelled again to accept the place of standard bearer. His letter made no reference to this whatever.

San Francisco captured the Democratic national convention after a warm contest with Chicago and Kansas City. The Pacific coast metropolis pledged $125,000 and free use of the Municipal auditorium, which seats some 15,000 persons. This is the highest price ever paid for a convention. The date for the convention was set for Monday, June 28, three weeks after the Republican convention meets in Chicago.

The national committee backed up President Wilson by adopting resolutions endorsing the treaty of Versailles and denouncing as unpatriotic the attitude of senators who are trying to defeat it or to qualify it by nullifying reservations.

The Republicans also had an important gathering, earlier in the week, when the party leaders of the 14 mid-western states held a two-days' pow-wow in Chicago. General Wood, Governor Lowden, both candidates for the presidential nomination, and National Chairman Hays were chief speakers at a big dinner, and it was taken for granted that their utterances, or at least those of Mr. Hays, gave a definite indication of the platform on which the next Republican nominee for the presidency would stand. Assuming that this is true, the main planks of that platform will deal with labor and industrial relations and with the radicals who seek to overthrow the government. A fair summary of the propositions with which the party may be expected to go before the people this year is:

Fair representation for labor in all the councils of the nation.

Development of closer relations between capital and labor with justice to both and also to the third side of the triangle, the public.

Sympathetic help for business, not antagonistic curtailment, as part of the economic readjustment.

Strong repressive measures against I. W. W.-ism and other forms of extremism which advocate overthrow of the present form of government.

Efficient and honest administration. No taxes which kill initiative. Adequate taxes, but none for extravagance.

A plan for spreading payment of the war debt over a long period of years. No undue federalization of industries and activities, such as railroads; strong federal regulation, but not government ownership.

No toleration of attempts to array group against group, section against section or sect against sect.

Back to the Constitution in times of peace.

General Wood handled the reds without gloves, as might have been expected. His hearers vigorously applauded such epigrammatic sentences as these:

"The big issue today is, first and foremost, maintenance of law and order, respect for constituted authority, and maintenance of a government under the Constitution.

"Give labor American leadership. Don't allow it to drift into the hands of anarchistic, red leaders.

"As for the reds, let's stamp them out. They grow only in communities where government is timid and slack. They are a cowardly lot, assassins and murderers often, cowards always. With them go the I. W. W.; their brand is treason.

"We've got to follow up our immigration more closely. Why not instruct the newcomers in Americanism? When they get over the gangplank the literature of the reds is placed in their hands. Let's meet them with the literature of Americanism.

"It is very fine to picture America as the refuge of the oppressed of the world, but there is danger in making America the dumping ground for the degenerates of the world. We've got to watch our immigration more closely."

The government evidently has accepted with alacrity the challenge of the reds and the war on them is extending to lengths which they probably did not anticipate. If their cause needs martyrs, they will soon have thousands who may be so classed by their sympathizers. Since the year opened the agents of the department of justice have been making daily and nightly raids on the headquarters, resorts and homes of the radical leaders, and as fast as they can be examined by immigration commissioners the prisoners are being sent to the Atlantic coast for deportation. Ellis Island could not begin to accommodate all of them, so one of the army camps is used for that purpose. At the time of writing Martens, self-styled ambassador from the soviet government of Russia, was still at large, though the authorities were searching for him, believing him to be the real head of the revolutionary communists in America. His "chief of staff," Gregory Weinstein, who is rated as Trotsky's best friend in the United States, was captured. He has been in control of the distribution of bolshevist money and propaganda.

The Chicago Federation of Labor doesn't yet see the light. At a recent meeting it adopted a resolution denouncing the raids on the reds as a plot to kill labor unions in America, and also called on congress to give to Victor L. Berger "the seat to which he is entitled." Then the delegates of the painters' union were applauded when they announced that plans were being formed to oust from their union every member who belonged to the American Legion. Of course such silly action cannot hurt the legion in the least, for, as Commander in Chief D'Olier has made clear, the purposes of loyal organized labor and of the legion are in full accord. How much longer will union labor of Chicago permit the reds to lead it about by the nose?

As for Berger of Wisconsin, he delayed presenting himself for a seat in congress, and issued the boast that if he were again excluded he would be elected governor of Wisconsin and then go to Washington as senator. There seemed small likelihood that the house of representatives would seat him, though Representative Mann of Illinois caused some surprise by declaring that he would oppose summary proceedings for the exclusion of the convicted Socialist.

New York's legislature started its session by denying their seats to five Socialists. A resolution was passed questioning whether they could be loyal to their oaths of office while bound to act subject to the instructions of the Socialist party, and the speaker ordered them brought before the bar of the house. They now prove their fitness to occupy their seats before a special tribunal convened in assembly. Only six of them voted in their favor.

Though the reds are having a difficult time in America, they cannot be said concerning them. Over there they are sweeping the way that is most dislikable to their antagonists. The soviet hordes have smashed their way through the armies of Denikine and the army of the Sea of Azov at Taganrog and are pushing ahead both east and west, with a prospect of soon being in full control of all of southern Russia. Already they are threatening Odessa and reports from Moscow say the people of Odessa are fleeing, though other dispatches assert they are preparing to defend their city. In their progress eastward the bolsheviks are said to have taken the important railroad town of Krasnovodsk on the Caspian, and this, if true, will open to them the way to north Persia. In London the fear is expressed that the reds will be able to overcome the small British forces in Persia and the poorly organized native troops and seize Teheran, after which they might obtain control of the entire country. It is considered likely, also, that the bolsheviks will capture Baku on the Caspian, the great oil center.

The one setback which the soviet armies sustained was in the west. The Letts, evidently not caring to participate in the armistice arranged by the Estonians, joined forces with the Poles and drove the bolsheviks out of Dvinsk and eastward in Letgalia, a district which Letvia claims.

The supreme council in Paris decided the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of Versailles should take place on Saturday, January 10, in the French foreign office, but at this time there is indication that the Germans have dug up some additional excuses for delay in the assertion that the several states in their "republic" must be consulted. However, the patience of the entente allies probably will not last much longer.

The full extent of the damage done by the terrible earthquake in southern Mexico probably never will be known. It is certain that many thousands of lives were lost, and numerous small towns were wiped out. The disturbance was centered about Orizaba, an occasionally active volcano.

Again the United States government has been compelled to call the attention of President Carranza to the murder of American citizens. Three recent murders have come to the notice of Washington, and Mexico is asked to use every means of bringing the slayers to justice. There is not the slightest reason to expect any result from this protest and appeal. Already the Jenkins case seems to be forgotten, together with the vigorous language it called forth in Washington.

Classes in painting and decorating as a part of the practical arts courses in the public schools and establishment of trade schools for all branches of the building trades were advocated by speakers at the 29th annual convention of the Society of Master House Painters and Decorators of Massachusetts at Boston.

A perfectly good "full pint of best stout" did damage to the extent of $180 when hurled through a large plate glass window of the Lawrence Market, Lawrence, Mass. The bottle, it is said, as thrown from a passing motor truck loaded with a celebrating crowd of men. The bottle's neck was broken, but only a few drops of the fluid was lost.

Announcement is made that the Right Rev. Thomas F. Davies, Episcopal bishop of Western Massachusetts, is to be sent abroad by the House of Bishops for a visitation of the Episcopal churches in France, Germany and Italy that are under control of the American Episcopal Church. He takes the place of the American Episcopal bishop in Europe, who is in ill-health. He expects to be abroad until midsummer. Bishop Davies did war work overseas and is familiar with the territory to be visited.

Chief of Police Smith of New Haven, Ct., revoked the permit for the Leonard-Dundee bout there Jan. 16.

Henry M. Canfield, 79, one-time United States consul-general at Athens, Greece, and a participant in several episodes of an international character, died at his home, Southbridge, Ct., from injuries received some days ago when thrown out of his carriage.

The Rev. Rufus B. Tobey, founder of the Boston Floating Hospital and former pastor of Berkeley Temple, died at Middleboro, Mass., at the age of 71. He was identified for years with charitable and philanthropic enterprises. The Rev. Mr. Tobey was born in New Bedford May 6, 1849.

Robert Beyer, first adult German to enter Boston from Europe since the war, arrived at Commonwealth pier on the White Star liner Cretic. He is on his way to Chicago, where, he declares, he has been given a well paying position by the International Harvester Company.

An equipment for making subsidiary silver coins was found by Lieut. W. N. Keiser of the fire department, while investigating a house fire in Bridgeport, Ct. Nicholas Camarra, the tenant, was held for the federal authorities and the materials turned over to federal officers.

An injunction to restrain federal officials in Rhode Island from interfering, under the national prohibition amendment, with "the manufacture and sale of non-intoxicating malt beverages" was asked in three bills of complaint filed in the United States district court of Providence.

Slowly suffocating to death because of an elastic garter tightly bound around her neck, Bela Vigue, 60 years old, was frustrated in her attempt at suicide at the city prison, Boston, by the discovery of her nearly unconscious form by Miss Genevieve Beretta, assistant matron of the prison.

Ex-Judge Charles D. Burnes of 31 Maple St., Springfield, Mass., ex-Secretary of State of Connecticut and Justice of the Police Court of Greenwich for 16 years, pleaded guilty in Police Court to the charge of larceny by the use of forged checks. Judge W. R. Heady placed him on probation for two years.

Members of the Worcester, Mass., post of the American Legion have started a fight to block an attempt, which it is rumored is under way, to hold up the new civil service list of men who took the examination for Worcester's fire department appointments, and to have the appointments made from the old civil service list.

Apparently the hopes of many persons in Portland and vicinity that they would fall into a "soft snap" by securing obs as prohibition enforcement officers went a glimmering when they learned the requirements demanded for the position by Uncle Sam, for of the 50 applicants only half a dozen appeared for examination.

While his older sisters were playing in another part of the house and his mother had stepped out to a neighbor's house, William Pollock, 14-month-old son of Mrs. Evelyn Pollock, of Providence, pulled himself up over the side of a wash tub and fell into six inches of water. When his mother found him five minutes later he had drowned.

Following an unsuccessful attempt to include yeowomen in the bill, the Rhode Island House passed the soldiers' bonus act on a roll call vote, 90 to 0. The House immediately afterward passed the resolution authorizing a special election to be held Feb. 10 for the purpose of submitting to the electors the $2,500,000 soldier bonus bond issue.

A thousand barrels of Kentucky whiskey formed part cargo of the Leyland liner freighter Nitonian which sailed from Boston for Liverpool, the liquor having been in bond while transferred to Hoosac docks. Included in the cargo were 150 tons of hops for English brewers, 140,000 bushels of wheat, 700 tons of provisions, 600 tons of rolled oats and 100 tons of lumber.

The cost of remodeling the state farm at Bridgewater, Mass., so that it could be used as a state prison, with consequent abandonment of the penitentiary at Charlestown, would be $982,000, according to an estimate made by the special investigating commission named by the last Legislature. The commission does not recommend that the work be done; it only reports as to cost.

After going to New York to meet his wife and children whom he had not seen for seven years, Israel Mirsky of Boston arrived at the steamship pier to find that his wife, a passenger on the La Touraine, was dying. She lived only half an hour after the ship docked, passing away soon after seeing her husband, who had spent practically every cent he had to bring her and the children to America from Poland.

The loss of the schooner Eleanor A. Percy, recently reported as having foundered in mid-ocean on Christmas day, reduces to three the fleet of 10 six-masted schooners engaged in the coal carrying trade from southern ports to Boston and Portland before the war. Construction of the fleet at Bath was begun 20 years ago and the Percy was the first of the schooners put into commission. The three six-masted of the fleet still afloat are the Edward J. Lawrence, the Wyoming and the Ruth E. Merrill.

Record-Breaking Pension Payment; Smallest Number of Pensioners

A record-breaking sum in pensions was paid by the federal government during the last fiscal year despite the fact that the number of pensioners was the smallest of any year since 1890.

This was revealed by the annual report of the commissioner of pensions, who said that $222,129,292.70 was paid to 624,427 persons during the year as compared with $179,835,328.75 to 646,895 pensioners the year before. The largest number of persons ever on the pension roll was 999,446, in 1902, and they received a total of $137,502,267.99.

Total pensions paid to date on account of the Civil war, the commissioner said, was $6,299,858,509.39, and the total for all wars reached $5,617,520,402.30 including $65,211,665.71 on account of the Spanish-American war.

Last year 3,747 pensioners were scattered through sixty-three foreign countries, including one on the island of St. Helena. They received a total of $1,188,188.45.

The net reduction in the pension roll during the year was 22,468, the number of names removed being 32,149 and the number added 9,681.

Ohio led the states with the largest roll, there being 60,902 pensioners drawing $21,582,330.04. Pennsylvania was second with 59,072 pensioners drawing $20,630,813.44; New York third with 53,736, receiving $19,631,090.72; Illinois fourth with 43,976, receiving $15,965,335.52, and Indiana fifth with 37,647, receiving $13,703,084.94.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

When two fall out, the third wins.—General Proverb.

False in one thing, false in all.—Legal Maxim.

To invent false charges is never difficult.

A goodly apple rotten at the heart.

O what a goodly outside falsehood hath.

—Shakespeare.

Every clown can find fault, though it would puzzle him to do better.—German Proverb.

It is with feelings as with waters: The shallow murmur, but the deep are dumb.—Raleigh.

UNGUARDED GATES

Wide open and unguarded stand our gates,
Names of the four winds, North, South,
East and West;

Portals that lead to an enchanted land
Of cities, forests, fields of living gold,
Vast prairies, lordly summits touched
With snow,

Majestic rivers sweeping proudly past
The Arab's date palm and the Norseman's pine—

A realm wherein are fruits of every zone,
Airs of all climes, for, lo! throughout the year

The red rose blossoms somewhere—a rich land,
A later Eden planted in the wilds,

With not an inch of earth within its bound
But if a slave's foot press it sets him free.

Here it is written, Toll shall have its wage,
And Honor honor, and the humblest man

Stand level with the highest in the law.
Of such a land have men in dungeons dreamed,

And with the vision brightening in their eyes
Gone smiling to the faggot and the sword.

Wide open and unguarded stand our gates,
And through them presses a wild motley throng—

Men from the Volga and the Tartar steppes, Featureless figures of the Hoang-Ho,

Malayan, Scythian, Teuton, Kelt and Slav,
Flinging the old world's poverty and scorn;

These bringing with them unknown gods and rites—
Those, tiger passions, here to stretch their claws.

In street and alley what strange tongues are loud
Accents of menace alien to our air,

Voices that once the Tower of Babel knew!

O Liberty, white goddess! is it well
To leave the gates unguarded? On thy breast

Fold sorrow's children, soothe the hurts of fate,
Lift the downtrodden, but with hand of steel

Stay those who to thy sacred portals come To waste the gifts of freedom. Have a care lest from thy brow the clustered stars be torn And trampled in the dust. For so of old

The thronging Goth and Vandal trampled Rome,
And where the temples of the Caesars stood

The lean wolf unmoiled made her lair.
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Politeness Well Defined
By Three Eminent Persons

Many definitions of politeness have been given by learned and able men and are to be found scattered through literature. Here are three short ones, each from an eminent man: Sidney

Smith says that "politeness is good nature regulated by good sense." Macaulay writes: "Politeness has been well defined as benevolence in small things." He did not originate this definition, but he gives it his approval.

Chesterfield claims that politeness "simply consists in treating others just as you love to be treated yourself." As to the practice of politeness, the philosopher, Bacon, wrote: "The wise are polite all the world over; fools are polite only at home."

Daily Thought

Every heart that has beat strong and cheerfully has left a hopeful influence behind it in the world, and bettered the tradition of mankind.

Gorilla Families Live in Nest Homes Built High in Trees of Tropical Forests

Gorillas live in family groups—husband, wife and one or two babies. The mother carries her offspring on her hip, just as does the native African woman.

Food is always plentiful, consisting of fruit and nuts supplied bounteously by the tropical forest. Home is a sort of nest built in a tree, a few branches being bent together so as to form a platform, over which leafy twigs are distributed.

It is alleged that the father of the family spends the night customarily at the foot of the tree, against which he places his back while keeping guard against possible attack by enemies. In a stand-up fight there is only one foe that he has reason to fear, and that is the leopard.

The males often fight each other with dire ferocity, the prize of combat being usually a lady gorilla, who views the strife with flattered interest, cheerfully accepting the victor's claim of ownership.

JUST TO LAUGH

Hubby, Come Across.

Wife—Before we were married you said that I would always look the same to you as the years rolled away!

Husband—Yes, and I meant it.

Wife—Oh, I believe it. I haven't had a new hat or gown since the ceremony.

Ignorance Enlightened.

He—It was easy to tell that the entertainer was English; he didn't sound his h's when he sang.

She—That shows how little you know about music; the scale doesn't run above G.

He Has His Own Uplift.

"Does your husband offer any encouragement to you in your uplift work?"

"None, except every time I mention it he goes up in the air."

Thankful for Something.

"There's one thing I'm glad of anyhow," said the patriarch.

"What's that, father?" asked the prodigal son.

"You didn't get into politics and make your wastefulness so conspicuous as to call for a congressional investigation!"

Of Course Not.

"It's queer how proud some parents are of a pestiferous brat."

"Oh, I don't know. Anyhow, you wouldn't want the kid to go through life utterly friendless."

Very Highly Accomplished.

"What about that niece of yours who is just back from college?"

"She kin do nothing in the most finished way I ever had the pleasure of witnessing," responded an old Uncle Heck.

Something Fine.

"The lady candidates have cast their hats into the ring."

"What do the lady voters say to that?"

"They are busy studying the display of millinery."

First M. D. Degree

The first degree of doctor of medicine was conferred by the college at Asti, Italy, in 1329.

SCRAPS OF HUMOR

DISREGARD.

"Why do you insist that the farmer is not properly considered? Everybody is talking about the importance of agricultural production."

"Maybe it's something like professional jealousy," replied Farmer Corn-tassel. "We go to the county fair expectin' to have all kinds of a fuss over the prize pigs and pumpkins and find that the whole crowd has rushed off to the trottin' races and the movin' pictures."

LUCKY GIRL.

"I say, old chap, I hear you are engaged to Miss Sweet. Is that true?"

"Quite true, old top. Isn't she the lucky girl?"

The Real Reason.

Some reasons landlords raise their rents are sad and some are funny; but few in truth have said it is because they want the money.

Economies.

"Are you studying to be a political economist?"

"No," replied the patient citizen.

"The world doesn't need so many political economists now. What it demands now is personal economists."

The Tempestuous Telephone.

"You never scold over the telephone."

"No. The operator has to use the machine all day long. If she can keep her temper, I guess I can."

Indefinite.

She—Always the same answer when I want to do a little shopping! How long do you expect to be without money to give me?

He—As long as I'm short.

The Imitative Juvenile.

"You used some very rough language to your playmates, Bobbie."

"Yes'm," admitted Bobbie. "We've got a new game. We're playin' politics."

Boldness of the Amateur.

"What makes you think our friend knows very little about running a railroad?"

"The fact," replied Mr. Dustin Stax "that he is so willing to try it."

His Preference.

"That lawyer is a great dog fancier."

"I should think his fancy would run to cats—something more in the feline species."

Inquiry.

"Which came first, the chicken or the egg?" inquired the quizzical person.

"Please don't start that!" protested Senator Sorghum. "We already have enough investigating committees figuring on questions that'll never be answered."

STRENUOUS WORK.

Bug—My that Alpine climbing is dangerous.

A Forgotten Adage.

Where is that maxim's warning thrill which in our youth we knew:

"Old Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do!"

Try, Try Again.

"Has your wife a sense of humor?"

"I don't think so," replied Mr. Pyrhed. "I have told her the same joke over and over and I don't believe she has laughed at it more than twice in her whole life."

A Puzzle.

"This gambling in stocks by trusted employees reminds me of the old beheading puzzles."

"How so?"

"Behead speculation and what remains?"

Poor Fuel is Partly to Blame

When your motor heats up, do you blame the lubricating system, tight piston rings, the spark too much retarded, poor water circulation in the cooling system? Poor fuel often has a lot to do with it.

Low-grade gasoline burns slowly and incompletely, producing high heat—deposits carbon on the piston heads and in the combustion chamber which retains the heat and prevents quick radiation.

The remedy? High quality, quick-burning gasoline that is uniform in its vaporizing and ignition characteristics, that burns up completely and delivers maximum power in all weathers—SOCONY Motor Gasoline.

Standardize on SOCONY and you will avoid lots of engine trouble and secure big mileage per gallon of gasoline.

At filling time look for the red, white and blue SOCONY Sign.

Every gallon the same.

Best Fruits of Romance.

A speaker was taken aback during a Sunday school session. He had been commenting on the blessings of matrimony, and just to see whether or not the class was really paying attention, asked one girl what she considered to be the best fruits of romance. The girl pondered a moment and then answered: "I should say the wedding date and the bridal pair."

She Wanted Progress.

"No, sah. Ah doan't neber ride on dem things," said an old colored lady looking in on the merry-go-round. "Why, de other day I seen dat Rastus Johnson git on an' ride as much as a dollah's worth an' git off at the very same place he got on at, an' I sez to him: 'Rastus, I sez, 'yo' spent yo' money, but whar yo' been?'"—Boston Transcript.

About the Carat.

The "carat," the unit of weight peculiar to jewelry, was introduced from India. Man sought to record the weight of small objects by using tiny seeds. The barley grain was used in Europe. In the East the seeds of a vetch were in use, and it is from the Greek word for vetch (keration) that the now familiar term "carat" is derived.

—Let's go' deep for the Y. D.

—Lady bookkeeper wanted at Gazette office.

—Calvin C. Jordan, one of the town's best known citizens, died at his home, 202 Washington street, on Saturday. He had been in poor health for the past two years. Mr. Jordan had been for some years a manufacturer of floor oils. He was born in South Boston 63 years ago, but had lived the greater part of his life in Braintree and Weymouth. He was the youngest of a family of thirteen children, but one of whom survive him, a brother James Jordan of Brockton. Besides his widow, he leaves two sons, Walter S. and Arthur C. Jordan. The funeral took place from his late residence Tuesday afternoon, the service was conducted by Rev. C. W. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist church. There were many beautiful floral offerings. Interment was at Ashwood cemetery.

—A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Bates of Kensington road, and daughters were born the same day to Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Donovan of Sterling street and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Malnate of Bryant avenue.

—Rev. Elbert W. Whipple, for the past two years pastor of the First and Third Universalist churches, on Sunday tendered his resignation to take effect Feb. 1.

—Edwin Hoffess, who was appointed a member of the Boston police force a short time ago, is traffic officer at Upham's Corner, Dorchester.

—Mrs. Nellie T. Cushing, a former resident of this town, died at the City hospital, Boston, of pneumonia last week. She was widow of Charles She leaves a son, Perley Cushing of East Boston. The body was brought here and services held at the Chapel in Village cemetery.

—Morris Gurney, a well known citizen of East Braintree and prominent in patriotic work, died at his home on Bowditch street Monday. He was a veteran of the Civil War and served in Co. F 16th Massachusetts Infantry for three years. He was a member of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post, 87, G. A. R., of which he has been junior vice commander for many years. His wife died a few weeks ago. He is survived by a daughter and three sons. The funeral took place Wednesday morning from the church of the Sacred Heart. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

—A moving picture show was given Monday evening at Jonas Perkins school hall under the direction of Troop 7, Boy Scouts.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

—The Men's class of the Baptist church will hold a meeting in vestry of the church Monday evening, Jan. 19, at 7.45. There will be a speaker. The subject to be discussed will be "The duties and privileges of a physician." All men are invited.

—The Christian Endeavor of the Baptist Church will hold an indoor track meet in the vestry of the church this evening at 7.45. The proceeds will be given to the Armenian relief fund.

—The pupils of the eighth and ninth grades of the Hunt grammar school went on a sleighing party Tuesday evening.

—The Emerson Coal & Grain Co. is advertising plenty of coal, all sizes.

—John Streifert of Quincy avenue celebrated his 79th birthday Jan. 12, surrounded by relatives and friends. He is enjoying good health. He arrived in this country in 1863 and saw the close of the Civil War, and has now seen the close of this great World war.

Scout Executive Duncan MacKellar spoke before the Men's Bible Class of the Baptist Church, Weymouth Landing, Sunday afternoon using as his subject, Scouting. The address proved to be very interesting.

—Morris Bloom advises the public not to buy sugar that is being advertised for $19.50 per 100 lb. weight. He guarantees to supply everybody with sugar at a much lower price. He advertises an anniversary sale in this issue at prices that cannot easily be duplicated.

—Miss Lyon returned to her duties at the post-office on Wednesday after being absent four weeks. Her mother who has been ill is improving.

—Phillip F. Haviland, salesman for the G. H. Bicknell Co., left Wednesday on a business trip through the South and West.

—Warren Nadell has purchased the building 106-108 Washington street of Arthur S. Evans. Mr. Nadell has occupied the ground floor for several years as a general store.

EAST WEYMOUTH
and WEYMOUTH CENTER

—Let's go' deep for the Y. D.

—Lady bookkeeper wanted at Gazette office.

—Mrs. Wilfred Hayden entertained a party of shopmates from the Alden Walker and Wilde shoe factory at her home, 15 Canterbury street, Friday evening. The hours were passed very pleasantly with games and music. A collation was served by Mr. and Mrs. Hayden. Mrs. Hayden was presented a cut glass vase and a large box of chocolates. Miss Kathryn Furlong made the presentation speech. Miss Charlotte Lonergan and Miss Annie Kearns presided at the piano. Solos were rendered by Miss Elizabeth Bondreau and recitations by Mrs. Martha McPartland. Miss Beatrice Raymond played the ukelele.

—A very important meeting of the East Weymouth Ladies Cemetery Circle will be held Monday evening, Jan. 13, at the home of Mrs. Dora L. Cushing, Broad street. A large attendance is desired.

—The officers of Old Colony Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Hingham were installed Jan. 9, in Odd Fellow's hall by District Deputy Grand Master Henry C. Pratt and suite of East Weymouth.

—The Searchlight Club connected with East Weymouth Congregational Church has elected Ernest A. Smith, president; Frank E. Briggs, vice president; Edward F. Brigham, secretary-treasurer; Rev. Edward T. Ford, chaplain; Dana A. Hollis, Frederick H. Langhorst and Abraham Horsley, committee on by-laws; the first three officers and two club members will be the executive committee.

—Mrs. Mary J. Reamy died Jan. 9, at her home, 11 Cedar street, following a lingering illness. She has been a member of the East Weymouth Congregational Church since April 30, 1864. Mrs. Reamy leaves a daughter, Miss Clara Reamy, and a son, William M. Reamy. Funeral services were held at the home Monday afternoon at 2.30.

—Tonight the local members of the Y. D. hold their second ball at the Hingham Armory. This is the big week of the Y. D. drive. Tom MacDonal of East Weymouth is working hard in the interest of the proposed club house that will be erected in Boston.

—Friends of L. Francis Nugent, better known as Pat, have arranged a testimonial dance to be given for him at the K. of C. hall on Friday, Jan. 30. Pat is still at the hospital on Staten Island, New York.

—John J. Yurrell has moved to Brockton where he is engaged in the restaurant business.

—Last week's heavy snow and sleet storm brought down electric light, telephone and trolley wires in all sections of the town. Telephone service suffered the most, and at one time the shoe shops were without power for an hour and a half.

—On Tuesday, Jan. 13, Wompatuck Encampment, No. 18, I. O. O. F., held installation of officers. The ceremony was performed by District Deputy Grand Patriarch Charles H. Wood and suite.

—Another Zane Grey adaption will be shown Saturday at Odd Fellows hall. The Last of the Duanees with William Farnum is expected to draw well.

—Dixie Voyles, although a resident of Brockton, manages to spend Saturday and Sunday of each week in East Weymouth visiting his many friends.

—Mrs. John A. Raymond has returned to her residence on Putnam street after a two months visit with her sons in New York and Connecticut.

—Putnam street from Chard to Broad has been set aside for the use of youthful coasters.

—Albert Ahearn started Wednesday on a business trip to Webster.

—Charles Phillips will preside at a meeting of the Norfolk County Fish and Game Association tonight at Odd Fellows hall, South Braintree.

—In former years at a time like the present, all the horse shoers in town would be worked overtime in calking shoes. But sleighing is a thing of the past. Auto trucks can get over the ground quicker than horses. Mike Reidy, the only East Weymouth horse shoer left, is no busier than usual.

—The installation of a billiard table at the new K. of C. hall has attracted many members to the building lately. Tom White is fast getting back into the fine form he was in when actively engaged in the business at his old place in Central Square.

—According to a letter received by Bennie Litchfield from friends in France, they are not having such a violent winter there as we are. But then hard winters would not have the same effect on people unhampered by constitutional ailments.

—The Emerson Coal & Grain Co. is advertising plenty of coal, all sizes.

—D. J. Toomey and family are finally installed at 1044 Commercial street after waiting to move into a tenement that was vacated last October. Repairs, frozen water pipes, and the painter's misfortune to have received a fractured wrist caused by a fall from a ladder caused mid-winter moving.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

—Let's go' deep for the Y. D.

—Lady bookkeeper wanted at Gazette office.

—At the annual meeting and dinner of the Newspaper Club, held at the Boston Yacht Club, William H. Holden of 21 Westusset road, North Weymouth, was elected editor-in-chief for the present year. It is his second term in that position within ten years. The membership of the club is limited to forty active Boston newspaper men, and among its charter members, nearly thirty-five years ago, was William D. Sullivan, still an active member and city editor of the Globe. Mr. Holden was in charge of the entertainment which followed the annual dinner and consisted mainly of an "editorial council for the first issue of the Boston Bolshevik Bazaar."

—Arthur Liebers celebrated his ninth birthday at the home of Simeon Edelson on North street last Wednesday evening by entertaining a few of his classmates. Among those present were Mildred and Sylvia Lipshez, Myers and David Edelson, Helen Jackman, Charles and Ruth Blanchard, Clarence Parker and Dorothy and Harry Caldwell.

—The S. A. S. A. P. of Ward One held its regular meeting on Jan. 8. It was voted to give $50 to the Wendell House, Boston, for use in work among discharged service men. There was sent to the Red Cross rooms in Boston, 1 quilt, 1 sweater, 5 mufflers, 10 pairs stockings and 9 layettes. The next meeting will be held at Engine hall on Feb. 5, from 2.30 to 4.00.

—Miss Genevieve Perkins of Bridge street was the guest of relatives in Roxbury over the week end.

—Mrs. Edward Parker of King Cove beach is suffering from the effects of a slight shock.

—The Ladies Sewing Circle connected with the Third Universalist church held an all-day meeting in the church parlors last Wednesday. A lunch was served at noon. The ladies are preparing for the annual sale to be held in February.

—The annual banquet and election of officers of the King Cove Boat club took place on Saturday evening at the club house. The following officers were elected:

President, Andrew McCulloch
Vice president, George Adamson
Secretary, John Wolfe
Treasurer, Lester Cully

Executive committee, Edgar Hayden, Lyman Pratt and Edward Cully
Membership committee, Ray Leach, Henry Miller and Ezra Walker
Caretaker, Charles Abbott

A roast pork supper was served in charge of Clarence McCulloch.

—Mrs. John Wolfe of Birchbrow avenue is quite ill with influenza.

—The last of a series of illustrated travel talks was given by Bartlett Spooner at the Universalist church on Sunday evening under the auspices of the Young Peoples Christian Union.

—Miss Louise McCullough of the office staff of the Fore River Ship Building company has resigned her position and taken a similar one with the American Agricultural Company at North Weymouth.

—The Pilgrim Aide held their regular monthly supper and social in the church vestry last Wednesday evening in charge of the following committee: Mrs. Abbie Beals, chairman; and Mesdames Cushing, Collyer, Carter and Dunbar. A musical program followed the supper with vocal solos and selections by a boys orchestra.

—The Sewing Circle connected with the First Universalist church held an all-day circle on Wednesday. The dinner at noon was in charge of Mrs. Jennie Keene, Mrs. Abbie Jordan and Mrs. Frank Kittredge.

—Adrianna Caldwell of Pearl street spent the week end in Dorchester, the guest of friends.

—Mr. and Mrs. Myles Keene of Green street had as guests on Sunday Miss Alice Kelly of West Quincy, Mrs. Mabel Redway, Mabel Redway and Rome Redway of Cambridge, Miss Annie Elliott and Mr. Dudley Taylor of Dedham.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzpatrick of Crescent road have been entertaining Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Fitzpatrick of Somerville the past week.

—Miss Margaret Dingwall is reported to be resting comfortably at the Deaconess Hospital, where she has recently undergone a surgical operation on her throat.

—Mrs. Anthony J. Smith of Bridge street submitted to a surgical operation at the Homeopathic Hospital on Tuesday.

For the Busy Farmer Who Raises Chickens

THIS YEAR, don't bother with troublesome oil lamps to raise your chicks. Get your birds out early and brood 300 to 500 in our flock with one Candee Colony Brooder, and you will have to tend only one heater—buy coal for but one fire—save labor and fuel and have more poultry profit at the end of the year.

Attention once or twice a day is all the Candee needs because it is self-regulating and gives the chicks a correct heat all the time, and because its coal magazine feeds the fuel to the fire evenly and continuously.

And you want real value for your brooder money. The Candee is built on honor to last a lifetime. Its heater is all cast iron and it is a stove for business.

Its guaranteed all-woolen-wool felt curtain keeps the heat under the hover, where it belongs, so that the stove is not required to heat the whole room to keep the chicks warm, which saves much fuel.

A safe size 12-inch grate—a special safety grate shutter and sealed base that prevent hot coals falling into the litter—and a swinging hover section that makes it easy to get at the heater to attend the fire and clean up—are other features that make the Candee your one best investment.

Drive over to my place and see this up-to-the-minute method of raising more chicks at less expense and greater profit. I will be glad to show you my Candee Colony Brooder and how it works.

CLUB and SOCIAL

Colonel and Mrs. F. K. Bauer are expected to arrive at their home on Pleasant street the latter part of this month, having left for America from France, where Colonel Bauer has been connected with the American Expeditionary Force since 1918.

Rev. Minot O. Simons, of the Extension Department of the American Unitarian Association, who preached on Sunday at the First Parish church at Quincy, accompanied by Mrs. Simons, were the dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Day of Evans road, North Weymouth. Mr. and Mrs. Day were parishioners of Rev. Mr. Simons, when he was the pastor of a church at Cleveland, Ohio. Mrs. Simons is the daughter of Rev. Minot Savage, a former pastor of the Unity, Boston.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the King Cove Boat club will be entertained on Saturday evening by their newly elected president, Mrs. Agnes Abbott of East Weymouth.

For the benefit of the Pilgrim church parsonage building fund, Mrs. Abbie E. Beals gave a silver tea Wednesday afternoon at her home on Sea street. About fifty were present. Tea was served by the hostess, Miss Wilt of the Emerson school of oratory of Boston entertained with readings.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erstene Clapp of Hingham are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Charles Erstene Clapp, Jr., born Sunday, Jan. 4.

Extensive preparations are being made in Hingham and on the South Shore for a Y D ball this evening in the Hingham State Armory. It will be managed by Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons and James A. Cresswell. The proceeds will go towards the Y D Memorial Club.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Knight of Union street have arrived at Port Antonio, Jamaica, where they are to spend the remainder of the cold season.

Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., is planning quite a gala afternoon one week from next Monday, Jan. 26. They are to have an open meeting in Pythian hall on that day, and the public is invited at 2.30 o'clock. A member of the Salvation Army who has been overseas will speak of his work, and a Salvation lassie will sing. It is hoped many will avail themselves of this invitation to be present.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Harriet Taylor of Main street to Mr. C. P. Steeves of East Weymouth.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the King Cove Boat club was held at the home of Mrs. Edgar Hayden on Bridge street last Friday evening. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

President, Agnes Abbott
Vice president, Alice Horton
Secretary, Bertha Leach
Treasurer, Bertha Bailey
Executive committee, Grace Walker, Agnes Abbott and Ethel Hayden.

Mrs. William C. Earle entertained 15 members of the Inasmuch Circle of King's Daughters Jan. 8, at her home, 60 High street. At the business meeting the following were elected: Mrs. Martin E. Bell, president; Mrs. James Ford and Mrs. George M. Hoyt, vice presidents; Mrs. Henry L. Lovell, treasurer; Mrs. C. Will Bailey, secretary. The sum of $114 has been spent in charitable work the past year and there is a cash balance on hand of $31.2. The total receipts have been $145. There are 26 names on the membership roll.

CATHOLIC CLUB

A regular meeting of the Weymouth Catholic Club was held Monday evening in the assembly hall of the Sacred Heart church.

The president, Mrs. Rose McDonald outlined a most attractive program for the remainder of the club year.

"Civic Problems" as they interest and affect women in their home and community activities, in their industrial or professional occupations; and in all that pertains to good citizenship was discussed by Miss Annie G. Scollard, president Boston Teachers Club, in her usual clear, convincing, and scholarly manner. Miss Scollard was the first president of the Weymouth Catholic Club, and has given most generously of her time and talents in the organizing and successful carrying on of club activities.

A very pleasing addition to the evening's entertainment was the musical program by Cleary's Orchestra, piano, Henry Cleary; violin, Lawrence Corridan; traps, John Coyle; banjo, Morris Bloom.

During the social hour, refreshments were served by the hospitality committee: Mrs. P. A. Conathan, chairman; Mrs. Seeley, Ford, Fraher, Wall, Dorrity, Spillane, Sullivan, Miss Kathryn Melville, Mrs. Teresa Kelley and Mrs. Margaret Kelley.

The club contributed fifty dollars to the Y D building fund.

OLD COLONY CLUB

A joint conference of the civics and public health departments of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs was held Jan. 15, at the Second Universalist Church, South Weymouth at the invitation of the Old Colony club. Mrs. Hanson, president of the club presided.

Mrs. Mitchell of Scituate, addressed the members on "Civics". She was followed by Mrs. Irving Palmer, who spoke on "Thrift". We have heard so much about thrift during the past years that there was fear of its becoming monotonous. Not so from Mrs. Palmer. She held her listeners and gave forth new suggestions to all. She mentioned the orgy of spending as a reaction from the sacrifices necessitated by war while really thrift is as necessary now as then. "It is a sense of value, every penny spent must be worth while. From simpler living comes saner standards." Conditions of today demand a frugal people and we must realize that education is the only remedy at hand. Stand behind the schools, they have been our salvation, keep them up to the highest standing possible.

She suggests making "Thrift" a habit not a duty. Instill it and the growing generation will be the gainers, the country saved. "Don't waste" she says "Make the journey of life with just baggage enough. To have all we want is riches, to do without is power." Her aim is to lead our women in habits of "Thrift" along every line in buying, saving and living, whether it is in the home or in a broader field.

Mrs. Sumner Coolidge, who comes from the Lakeville State Sanatorium, gave a talk on "Public Health." She said as we already know there are problems to work out everywhere, and as far as possible she was willing to help us solve ours. She asked for questions from the floor, but Mrs. Hanson had already attended to that part of it, and placed a question box at the entrance, into which she had previously bidden her members to drop any questions they wished answered.

Varied questions came from that box as "Shall a teacher with a cold be allowed to remain in her class?" "Shall ice be harvested from the pond from which our drinking water comes and others.

Mrs. Coolidge's talk in the Health Crusade was good. It is a system of health that could be introduced into more elementary schools to advantage. Many schools already have their children pleasantly initiated. There is strength in numbers and there are hopes more schools will follow. Its purpose is the formation of health habits, simple but vital, and with whom is this more essential than with the children.

"Prevention" begun with small children, means healthier citizens later on. Books and pamphlets, helpful for the young can be gotten at 1149 Little building, Boston. The little book on Rhymes for health crusaders might save the mother's daily questions, "Have you washed your hands, cleaned your teeth, etc. A child of six could read this book himself.

She told us the school doctor's work must be followed up by a trained worker who can gain the confidences of parents in the home. Dry hygiene to the child can be made an interesting play by books, simple enough for a child's conception or some simple reward as a pin or button. Then the child feels he is a part of something and sallies forth with more vigor.

The draft revealed to us an astonishing prevalence of tubercular trouble and Mrs. Coolidge represents a people striving for a preventive work which of course, must start with the young. It is a hard work with little apparent gratitude but she well quoted John Sterling:

"'Tis worth a wise man's best of life,
'Tis worth a thousand years of strife
If thou canst lessen but by one
The countless ills beneath the sun."

Mrs. Lucy Allen spoke for the blind. She thought it best not to separate them, but should a case occur let him remain where the ones more fortunate in sight could lend assistance. Reading by any who can give the time would be welcomed at places for the blind.

Americanization was developed in Charles Kingsley's lecture.

Gilbert Harwood, the boy violinist, with the sweetest tone quality instrument, brightened the afternoon of serious thought and made one wish for more. It was a meeting long to be remembered and more could have enjoyed it with profit.

The economic chairman announced a meeting at the Nevins School, Jan. 15, at 2.30 P. M. subject, "Efficiency in Sewing" by Mrs. Reed. Well worth every member's time to come and hear Mrs. Reed.

Wednesday, Jan. 21, at 8 P. M. at Opera House will be "Guest night." Kate Ridgeway in character sketches will entertain. Singing and dancing will follow a reception. Mrs. Marion Cate, hostess. Tickets may be obtained from different members.

THE MONDAY CLUB

The program for the open meeting on Monday, Jan. 19, at 2.30 o'clock, in the Masonic Temple will be the lecture of "The Spirit of the Women in France," by Mrs. Margaret Deland, and soprano solos by Miss Ruth Benson.

Mrs. Henry W. Dyer is chairman of the food sale which is to be held at this meeting, and it is hoped it will be a financial success. The senior shorthand class of the High School will take notes.

"Let's go" deep for the Y D.
—Lady bookkeeper wanted at Gazette office.

Alvin C. Thayer of Hollis street is suffering from a severe injury to his left eye, resulting from a piece of steel lodging in the eye, partially destroying the sight.

William C. Whiting of North Haven deserves honorable mention for a humane act of kindness to a dog which had been run over by the auto that Mr. Whiting was operating last Thursday afternoon. The animal was suffering intense pain as the result of a broken leg, and Mr. Whiting, unable to find an owner, notified officer Charles H. Holbrook, who, acting upon instructions from the Chief of Police, shot the dog. The canine was without a collar and no one in the vicinity of the accident claimed it. How many autoists would have gone several miles out of their way for a similar cause, when they could have so easily speeded away and left the animal in a helpless condition?

Paul Clarke of Union street has purchased the house recently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Burhoe and family on May terrace.

Leo Horgan and Henry Gabrielle have accepted employment with the Boyd Manufacturing Co., on Curtis avenue.

O. B. Stackpole of Randolph street is able to be out again after his recent illness.

Clifford Stone and family have moved from Union street to East Braintree.

Miss Irene Bernhart is confined to her home on Thicket street with an attack of tonsillitis.

George Marshall is out again, having recovered from his recent illness.

Clifton A. Orcutt of 201 Randolph street has gone to New York city, having resigned his position as manager of the Marine Insurance Department of the United Fruit Co., Boston, and accepted a position with the firm of Parsons & Eggert, 80 Maiden Lane, New York city.

Mrs. Werner of Milton is seriously ill at the home of her daughter on Pond street.

Nelson Case of Randolph street is able to be out again, having recovered from his recent attack of diphtheria.

Hazel Belcher is under quarantine at her home on Randolph street with scarlet fever.

Owing to the illness of Rev. J. S. Peardon of the Second Universalist church, who is confined to his home in Southboro, Mr. Walker of Tufts College has charge of the service Sunday morning.

Elizabeth Clapp of Hollis street who has been confined to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kohler with an attack of pneumonia, has improved enough to return to her home.

Roy Sherman has resigned his position as foreman of the shipping room at the Clapp Shoe Co., to accept a position with the Stetson Shoe Co. In appreciation of his services, members of his department have presented him with a purse of money. Mr. Sherman is at present in Toledo, Ohio, appearing as a witness for the Clapp Shoe Co., in connection with a case involving the theft of shoes nearly two years ago, having been summoned by the Federal authorities. He is the official representative for the concern with whom he has recently been connected.

Mrs. Rose Howe is confined to her home on Randolph street with an attack of bronchitis.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Cook who passed away Thursday evening after a brief illness of pneumonia, were held at her late home, 128 Central street, Sunday, at 2 P. M. Rev. Ora A. Price of the Old South Union Church officiating. Interment was in the Lake View Cemetery on Pond Plain. She is survived by two sons, Waldo and Frank, and one daughter, Florence.

The Jane T. Clarke Mission Circle met with Mrs. Fred Barnes at her home on Tower avenue Wednesday at 2.30 P. M.

Several former service men, in appreciation of the many cheery and interesting letters written to them while "over there," have given their foster mother, Mrs. S. M. Orcutt, a beautiful table lamp and a piece of cut glass ware, as a holiday remembrance.

The annual reunion and banquet of the Old South Union Congregational Church was held in the chapel Jan. 8 with plates laid for 225 persons. The supper was in charge of Mrs. David M. Crawford and a corps of women. The pastor, Rev. Ora A. Price made his annual report and then retired in order that there might be a free discussion in regard to his pastorate. A vote of confidence in Rev. Mr. Price and his pastoral work was carried and he will continue his work as pastor of the united churches.

Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

PUMPKIN PIE IS DELICIOUS, BUT DON'T PUT ALL THE PUMPKIN IN PASTRY SHELLS

Pumpkin Bread Pudding, Corn Bread and Timbales Are All Good Pumpkin Possibilities.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If you regard pumpkins as a source of a valuable winter vegetable that can add much variety to the too often monotonous winter meals. So this year, if you have raised pumpkins on your farm, select a number of the best and put them away in a cool, dry corner of the cellar for various uses or if you live in a town buy a number while they are cheap. Pumpkin and squash have many possibilities other than the familiar and popular pie. Here is a pumpkin dessert quite as good as the pie that you may like for a change.

Pumpkin Bread Pudding.

1 cupful stale bread crumbs.
1/4 cupful sweet milk.
1 cup mashed pumpkin (boiled or steamed and put through a colander.)
1-3 cupful sugar.
1/4 teaspoonful salt.
1 teaspoonful vanilla.
2 egg yolks.
1 tablespoonful butter (melted.)

Pour the milk over the bread and allow to stand until the crumbs soften. Add pumpkin that has been cooked and put through a colander, before measuring. Beat well. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until the center is firm. Remove from the oven, spread the top with a tart jelly, pile meringue lightly on top and return to oven long enough to brown the meringue. Serve cold with cream. If preferred, the jelly can be omitted and the pudding is good even if you do not serve cream with it.

Meringue.

Two egg whites beaten very stiff.
1/2 tablespoonful sugar, a pinch of salt and one-teaspoonful vanilla.

Pumpkin Corn Bread.

(An old-fashioned favorite.)
1 cupful mashed pumpkin.
1 cupful milk.
1 cupful cornmeal.
1 cupful flour.
1 egg.
1/2 teaspoonful baking powder.
1/2 teaspoonful salt.
1/2 cupful melted fat.

Mix in order given. Pour in greased baking pan and bake 40 minutes in a hot oven. Cut in squares, and serve hot.

Recipes for a number of dishes in which pumpkin is prepared as a winter vegetable follow:

To prepare the pumpkin, cut open, remove seeds and stringy portion, and cut into pieces of convenient size for cooking. One of the most satisfactory methods of cooking pumpkin is by steaming. Remove the skin, place in a steamer over boiling water, and steam until the pieces are tender. Pumpkin prepared in this way is less watery than the boiled pumpkin.

Mashed Pumpkin.

Force the steamed pumpkin through a colander. Season with salt, pepper, and butter. Serve hot.

Pumpkin Timbales.

Very good served with ham or cold meat of any kind.

1/4 teaspoonful pepper, 1 pint mashed pumpkin.
1/4 teaspoonful cinnamon, 1/4 cupful milk.
1 egg.
1 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 teaspoonful mace.

Mix together and put in buttered custard cups. Stand in a pan of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. When the mixture is firm turn carefully from the cups and send to the table. This same mixture may be baked in a shallow dish with cheese grated over the top. In this case omit the cinnamon and mace.

Individual pumpkin custards may be prepared in the same way. Use the usual pumpkin pie custard mixture and bake in custard cups instead of in a pastry crust.

Cream of Pumpkin Soup.

1/4 cupful butter, 1/4 cupful mashed pumpkin.
1/2 cupful milk, 1/2 teaspoonful salt.
1/2 cupful onion juice, 1/2 cupful pepper.
1/2 cupful milk.

Melt butter in saucepan and stir in flour. Add onion juice, salt and pepper and mashed pumpkin and blend together. Add the milk and bring to the boiling point. Serve hot.

Creamed Pumpkin.

Cut the pumpkin in small pieces. Boil in salted water until tender or steam if preferred. Drain and serve with a white sauce.

Glazed Pumpkin.

Cut the pumpkin meat into strips about half an inch thick. Steam or boil until partially tender. Place strips in baking dish and coat each piece with a sirup made by boiling together:

1/4 cupful sugar, 1/4 cupful water.
1 tablespoonful butter.

Corn sirup may be used in place of sugar. Place in the oven and cook until brown.

Diced Pumpkin in Casserole.

Cut the raw pumpkin into small pieces; place in a glass casserole dish, or any baking dish with a cover. Sprinkle with salt and a little pepper. Allow to each cupful of diced pumpkin a half cupful of boiling water and a tablespoonful of butter. Cover closely, and cook in oven until pumpkin is tender and the water absorbed. Serve hot in the dish in which it was baked.

Baked Pumpkin.

The very simplest method of preparing squash or pumpkin is to cut into 8-inch squares without removing the rind, placing the rind side down in a baking pan and baking until soft in a moderate oven. Served with salt, pepper and butter this makes a delicious dish.

LESS WASTE IN VEGETABLES

Thin Paring of Potatoes is an Economy That is Worth While to Practice in Kitchen.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In preparing vegetables for the table there is almost always a loss due to inedible matter, such as skins, roots and seeds. There is also a waste of good material which is caused by careless preparation. The amount of refuse varies greatly in different vegetables.

In string beans 7 per cent is lost in preparing them; in onions, cabbage, leeks, lettuce and cucumbers, 10 to 15 per cent is lost, while beans in the pod, pumpkins and squash lose 50 per cent. With tubers such as potatoes, the average amount of refuse is 20 per cent, and with roots like turnips, 30 per cent.

In preparing vegetables for the table the careful cook will remove all inedible portions and will see to it that the total amount of refuse is as small as is consistent with thorough preparation. Thin paring of potatoes and other vegetables is an economy that is worth while to practice and is an easy way to decrease loss.

USEFUL HOUSEHOLD DEVICES

Instruction Given to Rural Women by Home-Demonstration Agents Helps Incomes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many rural women have been in need of simple instructions in the making of household conveniences, labor-saving devices, and making of small articles for sale, in order to increase the family income. The instructions in rug making, making of baskets, brooms, etc., given to the girls by the home-demonstration agents have also, at many places, been given to the women, resulting in the promotion of home industries and increased earnings. This added income has mainly been used to improve the home or to assist the Red Cross. In several instances the women, who have saved enough from such earnings to purchase the needed furniture, have instead given it to the Red Cross.

PROLONG WEAR OF GARMENTS

Re-Enforce Parts Which Are Subject to Hard Usage—Put Few Threads in Stocking.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When making undergarments, re-enforce the parts which are subject to hard wear. Sew buttons on children's garments through several thicknesses of cloth to prevent tearing out. Run a few threads back and forth in the heel and toe of a new stocking.

All Around the House

For filling pincushions dried coffee grounds are excellent.

One teaspoonful of sugar is the equivalent of one lump.

Olive oil rubbed into the scalp is an excellent hair tonic.

To clean zinc, use hot soapy water, then polish with kerosene.

When sprinkling clothes use hot water; it dampens them more evenly.

Damp salt will remove the discoloration of cups and saucers caused by tea.

Discolored eggspoons rubbed with a little common salt when washing up will lose their stains.

The KITCHEN CABINET

SEASONABLE FOODS.

To each man is given a day, and his work for the day.
And once, and no more, he is given to travel this way.
And woe if he flies from the task, whatever the odds;
For the task is appointed to him on the scroll of the gods.
—Edwin Markham.

For those who enjoy kidneys the following dish will prove worth a trial:

Beefsteak and Kidney Pie.—For an ordinary pie use one pound of round steak and four or five lamb's kidneys. Cut the steak into pieces an inch and a half long and wide. Cut the kidneys through the center. Put the kidneys into cold, slightly salted water and allow this to come slowly to the boiling point. As soon as the boiling point is reached, draw off the water, add cold, salted water and boil again. Then drain, rinse well and add the kidneys to the steak.

In the meantime, roll the pieces of steak in seasoned flour, and brown nicely in a frying pan. Cover with water; add a pinch of marjoram, summer savory, and a few grains of nutmeg. Simmer until the meat is tender. Add any further seasoning needed. Thicken the gravy with flour and butter. Pour the meat into a pie dish with gravy enough to cover and then add the pastry top. Serve either hot or cold.

Pastry for Meat Pies.—Cream together one and one-half tablespoonfuls each of lard and butter. Put this into one cupful of flour which has been mixed with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Add enough cold milk to make the particles stick together. Roll and cover to the edge of the dish. Leave an opening for the steam to escape. Serve from the dish after baking a golden brown.

Lemon Honey.—Cream one cupful of butter, add one-half cupful of sugar and mix until well blended. Beat in two-thirds of a cupful of honey and heat in a double boiler, beating until well blended. Beat four egg yolks until thick, add the rind of a lemon, turn into the mixture and cook until thick. Add the juice of two lemons and stir until the mixture is like thick cream. This will keep if put into covered jelly glasses. Is very nice for cake or sandwich filling.

Company Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of softened (not melted) butter substitute with one cupful of sugar, add the yolk of one egg and one whole egg and cream until well mixed. Save the egg white for the frosting. Add one teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Mix well and add one cupful of canned berries, juice and all. Sift one teaspoonful of soda with two cupfuls of flour and add the first mixture; beat well and pour into a well greased loaf tin. Bake in a moderate oven. Cover with boiled frosting, using the egg white, one cupful of sugar and one-third of a cupful of water boiled together until it hairs, then pour over the stiffly beaten egg white.

Chocolate Sauce for Ice Cream.—Melt two squares of chocolate in one cupful of hot water, add two tablespoonfuls of flour to one cupful of sugar; when well mixed add to the chocolate and water, with a pinch of salt; cook until, smooth, remove from the heat and add a teaspoonful of vanilla.

WAYS OF SERVING POPCORN.

Happiness is the natural and the normal; it is one of the concomitants of righteousness, which means living in right relations with the laws of our being and the laws of the universe about us. No clear-thinking man or woman can be an apostle of despair.

First pop the corn. Corn should be popped over a hot fire, but care should be taken not to scorch the grains. If a wire popper is used, hold it far enough from the heat to prevent burning. The right degree of heat should make good corn pop in about a minute and a half. Too strong heat will cause some of the kernels to pop sooner, but many will not pop at all. If corn pops well the bulk should be increased 20 times. Do not throw away the "old bachelors" (those that won't pop), but put them through the coffee mill or meat grinder and serve as a breakfast food; they give variety and are far superior to many breakfast foods.

Sugared popcorn is another nice confection. Make a sirup by boiling together two cupfuls of sugar and one of water until the sirup hairs or hardens in cold water. Pour this sirup over six quarts of popped corn and stir until the grains are well coated.

A handful of fluffy white kernels of well popped corn will add to many desserts or entrees.

Serve a few kernels on the sherbet glass of junket or on the boiled custard over a soufflé just before taking to the table.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Life, or rather life in a continually expanding form, is after all a business, and they who are the most in earnest get from it the most and in turn give the most back to the world again.

Experiments show that cooked rhubarb added to such fruits as strawberries and raspberries makes a preserve of fine quality. Rhubarb being common and cheap, while the berries are not always so, it is a suggestion worth noting. This mixture may take place after the fruits are cooked, but of course the results will be better if both are cooked together when fresh. Use one part of the berries to two parts of rhubarb.

Save all juices from canned fruit, if but a tablespoonful in the jar; mixed with two or three of some other flavor, one will have enough to flavor a pudding sauce, lemonade or baked apples.

Put the last few spoonfuls of horseradish left in the glass into the pickle jar to keep the vinegar in good flavor.

Sprinkle dried bread crumbs over string beans cooked for the table, then add paprika and celery salt for seasoning.

When half an onion has been used, turn the cut side down on a small plate, and it will keep fresh for days. A bunch of parsley, if washed and put into a mason jar, sealed airtight, will keep fresh and crisp for two weeks. Leave enough water clinging to the leaves to keep them moist.

Apple juice and pulp combines well with many fruits and berries, extending the delicate flavor of choice fruit and reducing the cost which might otherwise be prohibitive.

A slice of pineapple will flavor a large dish of milder fruit; so will quinces and oranges combine with apples for marmalade.

Apple juice with peach or cherry, strawberry or other fruits which are hard to thicken, makes very good jelly which would otherwise be strupy.

Cranberry juice is another good fruit extender; added to fresh strawberries it makes a beautiful and tasty preserve. Strawberries, when canned, often lose their color, but with cranberries this is overcome.

Quinces cooked with cranberries makes a fine mixture; use one-third cranberries to two-thirds quinces, then proceed as for any jelly.

FOOD FOR THE CHILD.

So make it your intention With proper comprehension To see the world from every point of view.

Smile on if you're defeated, Or smile if you think you're cheated; Smile on and soon the world will smile on you!

—Caroline Sumner.

Children are far more restricted in their diet than are grownups, and they are more dependent upon special foods. We all need a diet so balanced that it will produce the highest efficiency, but the food for a growing child must do more than that. The growing child is building new flesh and bone. For this reason the child should have a larger proportion of body-building foods than adults. Milk is the most important; eggs, butter and well-cooked cereals, with top milk, are very important in the diet of the child.

We are told repeatedly by those who have made a study of the diet of the child that no mother should buy a pound of meat until she has purchased a quart of milk for each child in her family.

Milk is the ideal food for the child. It contains the elements needed to promote growth with the exception of iron. This element is given the child in such vegetables as spinach, beet greens and carrots.

As the child grows and becomes very active other foods are added, such as starchy foods, which supply energy. When milk is unpleasant to the child give it to him in cream soups, custards and cocoa. The older members of the family may be undernourished on milk, but never let the children want for it.

Dishes made chiefly of milk, meat, fish, poultry and egg, with meat substitutes, form the most important group in the well-balanced ration. Then come cereals and bread; then fats, of which the most important is butter. Do not give children fried foods which are hard to digest. Fruits and vegetables are next; then simple sweets such as dried fruits or pure candies. Candy should always be given at the end of the meal, never before.

Wheat taken from the granary, well washed, soaked over night, then cooked in the same water until well cracked and covered with gluten, is one of the most desirable of foods for growing children. Serve it with top milk.

FASHION'S EYES LINGER ON FINE COTTONS

The shop windows are full of beautiful new cotton materials that lead our thoughts to the coming of spring. When the holidays are over, fashion has turned her back upon winter—all her talk is of summery clothes and summer lands, and it is evident already that her fickle eyes linger longest on fine cottons. Unless all the signs fail, they are to have a great vogue—the exquisitely fine weaves forecast designing and workmanship keyed up to their level in all kinds of apparel. This means a return to needlework, embroidery and laces for decoration and that clothes are to be well made.

But the average woman is less interested just now in the sheer, fine cottons, than in the new ginghams, or chambrays, and other weaves that are to clothe her small fry when summer rolls around—she is captivated by these immediately. They are here, and along with them are the displays of children's frocks for school and for other wear, made of cotton fabrics. They are simply and unusually well designed; women who do their children's sewing can hardly do better than to copy them; for they are the product of trained specialists.

The "difficult" age—anywhere from nine to fifteen—is taken care of by these experts with wonderful skill; they know how to bring out the charms of the flapper and how to conceal her defects. In the picture a plaid gingham dress for a girl of twelve is an example of excellent designing that will prove becoming, even lending something of grace to an awkward child. It is nicely finished with pipings of white pique and there are several little points in its making that deserve consideration—its length, which is about six inches below the knees, the gathered panel set in at the front, being the most outstanding. Large pockets sloped at the top into points, three-quarter length sleeves and a belt that is a wide French fold made of bias strip of the gingham, are items that give it its chic character. The fastening on the shoulder with round pearl buttons is a little detail, but it is in keeping with the rest of the designing.

Colors are pleasing in the new ginghams, and any of them can be used with white pipings. Some of the new frocks have white cuffs and collars; there is a great variety in them.

PLEADING THE CAUSE OF FANS

There are some beautiful and more or less useless accessories of dress that fashion never frowns upon; although she treats them with considerable indifference for lengthy periods of time. Fans and long ear-rings are instances. About the time that we think they are forgotten, not to be recalled, they emerge and find a welcome as if they were something new. This season has seen the reappearance of fans—with fashion smiling upon those made of feathers, and certainly nothing ever pleaded the cause of fans more convincingly than these airy and smart luxuries.

The holidays developed the vogue of fans made of ostrich feathers, for they were bought more freely than others; but the ostrich feathers, however sumptuous, cannot outshine the fans made of the splendid feathers of the peacock. These are as wonderful as jewels. Fans of lace and of painted or spangled satin are among the things that are never out of date, and they have benefited by the vogue for feather fans.

In the group of three fans shown above two of ostrich feathers and one of peacock feathers are pictured. At the top small, flat plumes, uncurled and mounted on ivory or other kind of sticks, form the leaves of the fan. Fans of this kind are fairly large, and increase in size with the length of the feathers. They are made in many beautiful, gay colors. Cleopatra was never cooled by a fan more beautiful than that of peacock feathers shown at the center of the group. The incomparable markings and colorings of the natural feathers make them the most admired of the feathers used for fans. These are mounted on tortoise shell or other sticks, and are beautiful and unchanging.

Very long, curled ostrich plumes make the splendid fan at the bottom of the group. These are shown in many brilliant and many light colors, and carried as the most important item in the evening costume. They belong with the rich, metallic brocades and clothes that have held sway in the realm of evening gowns and coats. They are only at home in company of this kind.

The story of fans is too long to be so briefly told, but among the successful novelties are small palm leaf fans, painted in colors and bound about the edges with gold braid or faille ribbon. Small bouquets of silk flowers are mounted against the fans just above the handles, all wound with ribbon like that used for binding. A full bow of the same ribbon is tied over the stems of the flowers. This is something new in fans, revealing our old and useful friend, the palm leaf fan, all dressed up in fine attire.

Sports Materials.

In sports materials one will find the most attractive materials both in silks and wools. Camel's hair, while not necessarily a sports material, is the material selected for some very distinguished models in sports suits and utility wraps or coats. The colors are very new, among them a slate color, a heather mixture, a greenish gray and a soft shade of tan. None of these have been so far able to supersede in favor the conventional chambray color, however, which is seen both in suits and the large and comfortable coat that is worn over the riding habit or in the auto.

The Untrimmed Neck. The shallow, untrimmed necks require a wearer whose good looks are extreme.

Why Do You Read Newspapers?

Right away you say "to know what's going on everywhere, to be well informed."

You read the front page for the most important news.

There's at least one more page that you turn to regularly, probably several pages.

It may be the picture page, the woman's page, or the sporting page.

Perhaps it's the church page, or club and social page, or local news.

At any rate you want to have up-to-date information on whatever interests you.

Do you read the advertising columns regularly?

Do you know that they are one of the most important features of your newspaper?

You are interested in whatever will save you money, time and labor.

Read the advertisements to learn what is new—what you need—and where to find it.

The newspaper advertisements will tell you how to increase your knowledge and your income.

Read them faithfully.

THE WHITE CHURCH (Congregational)

Rev. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor. The newspaper reading public have recently been given a new thrill in the interesting report of an invention through which Professor Goddard of Clark University hopes to make valuable contributions to our present knowledge of the distant upper air spaces. Some of these reports go so far as to declare the inventor's belief that a projectile can now be perfected capable of registering a flash upon the moon's surface (250,000 miles away), and this flash can become visible to an earth observer by the aid of a powerful telescope. All this is interesting reading and it makes a quick appeal to the imagination. The story suggests the topic of the Sunday morning sermon at the White Church, "Dedicated Lives." Come and hear it. Morning worship and sermon at 10.30.

Church Bible school at noon; all departments.

Sunday evening service at 7 o'clock. A bright, brief and brotherly service; Pastor's message, "On a Man's trail." Special music will be provided.

Tuesday evening at 7.30, the mid-week service. "It will help you solve your problems if you give it the chance," topic, "Bible prayers" III—"The prayer of Moses" Remember, there's always a cordial welcome at the White Church.

—The members of the Epworth League spent a social evening last week Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bowdoin B. Smith. Games were played and refreshments were served.

—The Lovell's Corner Improvement Association will hold their monthly business meeting in the Hose house next Tuesday evening.

—Roland Smith is in the Bay State Hospital for a few days where he underwent a slight operation.

—Russell Poole has been confined to his home with illness.

—Frederick Leach of Quincy is making his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leach.

K. of P. NOTES

The third of a series of Pythian visitations was held at Old Colony lodge, Rockland, Jan. 8. The rank staff of Hingham lodge worked the third on a large class of candidates. There was a good representation of Delphi lodge on hand making the trip by autos.

Last night the rank of Page was worked at Castle hall, Weymouth. There were applications read, and it is expected that Old Colony lodge of Rockland will work on these applicants at the next visitation which is to be held in Pythian hall, Jan. 29.

The installation of officers is to take place Thursday evening, January 22. Deputy Grand Chancellor George Holbrook of Braintree will be the installing officer.

—At the annual parish meeting of the First Church the following were elected for the ensuing year:
Moderator, Elmer Lunt; Clerk, Fred Lunt; Treasurer, Rufus Bates.
Parish Committee, Alan C. Emery, E. E. Lunt, John Merrill.
Music Committee, Mrs. J. B. Jones, Mrs. Rufus Bates, Mrs. Alan C. Emery.

Finance Committee, Rufus Bates, Fred Lunt, Alan C. Emery, E. E. Lunt, John Merrill.

—Lady bookkeeper wanted at Gazette office.

—The Emerson Coal & Grain Co., is advertising plenty of coal, all sizes.

—Miss Jeanette Perrow of Commercial street met with an accident Saturday afternoon while walking with her father on Cemetery hill, North street. The sidewalk being drifted, they were walking in the car track when an auto driven by a Roxbury man came up in back of them at such a speed that they could not reach the sidewalk nor could the driver stop the car in time to avert an accident. Mr. Perrow escaped, but Miss Jeanette was thrown down, the car passing over her. She was taken to Dr. Drake's office. No bones were broken.

If there are no internal injuries, Miss Perrow will soon be about again, although badly scratched and bruised.

—George B. Bicknell was in New Hampshire over Saturday and Sunday.

—Miss Catherine French who has been making her home with Mrs. Helen Bicknell of King Oak hill, has now taken up her residence with Mrs. Shay of Essex street.

—Eleven members from the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Church accompanied by Mrs. P. T. Pearson, attended the Evangelistic service at Tremont Temple, Boston, last Friday evening.

—Miss Janet McVicar of Quincy, formerly of this place was a guest of Miss Ethel Whipple on Sunday.

—Mrs. Helen Bicknell was the guest of Miss Hazel Thompson of East Weymouth a few days this week.

—Mrs. Parker T. Pearson has been enjoying a short visit from her aunt, Mrs. Hogdon of Rockland, Maine.

—A most instructive and interesting stereopticon lecture was given in the First Church last Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Society.

DAUGHTERS OF THE NATION

Old Colony chapter, Daughters of the Nation, met at the Union Congregational church on Monday. There was a very large attendance.

The election of officers took place as follows: Regent, Mrs. Albert E. Avery; first vice regent, Mrs. C. P. Jones; second vice regent, Mrs. Louis F. Small; recording secretary, Mrs. Walter E. Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Morrison; standard bearer, Mrs. E. V. Warren.

After the business meeting Mrs. Helen Elsworth sang "One Fleeting Hour" and "There is no Death," accompanied on violin by Mrs. Emily Hagan, and on piano by Mrs. Mary L. Sisckovitch.

An address of welcome was given by the new pastor, Rev. Caleb Justice, followed by Thomas McCarthy of Weymouth Post, who gave a report on American Legion at Minneapolis. The Rev. Chester I. Underhill related his experiences at the front in France.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS

Regular meeting of Corps 102 will be held Thursday evening, Jan. 22, at 7.30. Business of importance is to be brought up at this meeting. President, Mrs. M. E. Brassil will announce her committees for the ensuing year.

At Christmas, 44 baskets were given by Corps 102 through its chairman and committee of relief to the shut-ins.

President M. E. Brassil has had many invitations to attend nearby installations and with Secretary May Barrows and the press correspondent attended the installation at Norwell last Saturday and that of Corps 99 of Stoughton on Wednesday evening.

NEW SCOUTMASTER

An important meeting of Troop 1, was held on Thursday evening, Jan. 8, in the vestry of the Baptist Church, Weymouth Landing. The Scout Executive presided at the meeting and outlined the re-organization plan. Rev. Mr. Allen, pastor of the Baptist church consented to accept a commission as Scoutmaster of Troop 1. Mr. Allen served with the Y. M. C. A. during the recent war and has had a large experience with boys and young men. He is a man who is endowed with splendid virility, and under his leadership Troop 1 of Weymouth is expected to make rapid progress in Scouting.

SARA E. CAIN

Mrs. Sara E. Cain, past president of Reynolds Relief Corps, No. 102, passed to the life immortal on Wednesday, Dec. 17.

The memory of the sturdy womanhood, sterling integrity and fearless devotion to truth, and principle of our ardent co-worker, will ever be enshrined in the hearts of her associates and stand as an everlasting tribute of her devotion to the cause of right and justice. The recollections of her noble character, expressing itself in those noble qualities relating to the uplifting of humanity, has been an inspiration to us on many occasions. The influence of such a life, is far-reaching and like the scattered seeds of the flower out borne, will return in flower again. And so, dear friend, we need not bid you "farewell," for in some brighter clime we'll bid you "good morning."

A long and faithful worker.
On life's broad beaten road,
Reaching the confine of a life eternal,

Lays down her load.
No more earth's fretting discord,
Disturbs the holy calm,
But angel choirs chant to the arisen spirit,
Their peaceful psalm.

Weymouth Pastor Would Deport the Reds

Vigorous protest was launched last Sunday evening by Rev. J. Caleb Justice at the Union Church, against any newspaper, lecturer or preacher who criticizes the government in its present policy of eradicating the "Red" propaganda in this country. The speaker said in part:

"During these re-constructive years our country must stand together in loyalty for our democratic institutions just as we stood loyally together in the Liberty drives when our boys were going over the top to wrest victory from the Germans in the Great War. One of the great dangers that we face today is from the insidious propaganda of the extreme Socialist group which is not only spreading ideas that contemplate the overthrow of our government but that has been viciously plotting and attempting here and there to carry out the destruction of our social and political institutions."

Mr. Justice outlined the ideas of Carl Marx, worshipped as the Christ by Radical Socialism, and said that Marx, driven out of autocratic Germany because of his rabid doctrines, found asylum and protection in free England where he published his works advocating the overthrow of capital and government.

"These Bolsheviks—a group of the most radical socialists—are as much opposed to democracy as they are to autocracy," continued the speaker. "They are plotting to bring about class war and the destruction by the most ignorant laborer of every other class of society. They stand for the nationalizing of women—the death-blow of the home, and the bringing up of children by appointees of the Soviet."

"The world has seen this experiment tried before: with the abolition of government, of capital, of the home, we have primitive savagery of prehistoric man and his philosophy of individualism, each man for himself and the Devil take the hindmost. By a hard and painful pathway, through the blood of martyrs, heroes and saints, man has struggled through the ages up toward our present civilization. It is not perfect by any means, but it is the best yet. And the way is not backward but forward to a yet higher social order. We must keep the best we have, not destroy the very foundations of that best."

The speaker concluded by pointing out two considerations that he said were frequently overlooked by the milk and water "liberal" who showed the white feather to the "Reds." "The capitalistic order of economic life is the only one that guarantees us against those periods of famine, privation and plague such as swept over medieval Europe and periodically yet sweeps over some interior sections of China and of India. When crops fail we depend on stored up wealth in the form of food stuffs and the means of transportation, and this stored up wealth is capital."

The second consideration is that these aliens have largely come into this country, even being received by open arms, because of oppression and lack of opportunity in the countries of their race and birth. They then plot to destroy their foster-mother. They come over here to sit under 'our vine and fig tree' planted and reared by the hardship and sacrifice of our forefathers, then these Bolsheviks plot to uproot that same 'vine and fig tree.' Bombs are planted, strikes are instigated, our loyal boys who have seen service across the seas for freedom are shot at from behind chimney pots in their home city, by these "Reds." Let them be deported—taken back to the land of their race.

Meanwhile we must offset their vicious propaganda by developing the true spirit of Americanism, of Christian democracy, of liberty—not license—of real brotherhood."

The service was the first of the Sunday evening meetings held at 7 o'clock in the Union Church. A chorus choir led the music. These meetings are planned to be of a community nature—popular songs, good social fellowship, and a message on some burning question of the hour of our American life.

American Legion To Organize Auxiliary

At the January meeting of Weymouth Post 79 of the American Legion held in G. A. R. hall a very busy and interesting evening was enjoyed by the members present.

A very thorough and instructive report of the delegates to the State Convention held in Faneuil Hall, was read by Mrs. Kathryn B. Howley. The Post accepted the report and gave Mrs. Howley a rising vote of thanks for her very efficient work.

There is to be a special meeting of the Post within the next two weeks to take action on the State Constitution and By-Laws as recommended by the convention.

At the meeting it was voted to hold the next regular meeting at some hall in South Weymouth. Members from that end of the town do not attend the meetings in large numbers owing to the fact that the car service is poor, and it was deemed advisable to go there and allow them to become acquainted with the officers and members. At this meeting lunch will be served and an entertainment consisting of boxing, wrestling and vaudeville have been arranged by the entertainment committee.

The Post is to organize a basketball team under the direction of Bassell Warren and some lively games are expected as challenges have been accepted from the Posts from Quincy and Hingham.

One of the largest projects yet undertaken by the Post was arranged and that is the formation of a Woman's Auxiliary. This has been advocated by the National and State Executive committees and it is hoped that Weymouth will be able to organize an auxiliary with even a larger membership than the Post itself. A committee of five, one from each ward was selected as follows, Post Commander Thomas F. Coleman; Adjutant Pasquale Santacrose; Vice Commander Robert Monteth; War Risk Insurance Officer Thomas T. McCarthy; and Chairman Executive Committee William C. White. The committee has planned to have a public meeting in Bates Opera House in the near future for the purpose of organizing. Membership in the auxiliary is limited in orders received from National headquarters to mothers, wives, sisters, and daughters of members of the American Legion, and to mothers, wives, sisters, and daughters of men who served in the army, navy, or marine corps between April 6th, 1917, to November 11, 1918, or died in line of duty.

ATHENS SCHOOL NOTES

Orelly Melville, Francis Bailey, Ruth White and Elaine Ross who have shown exceptional ability in their work this year have been promoted from the eighth to the ninth grade. Marie Kelley, who recently moved into this community, has entered the eighth grade.

Joseph Houghton of the fourth grade has moved to Roxbury.

New pupils who registered recently are Bertha and Jacob Ginsberg who came from the Daniel Webster school, Quincy, and Marie and Joseph Kelly from the Washington school in the same city.

George Lane who was quarantined recently on account of diphtheria has returned to school.

Three former members of the school: Addison Dingwall, Herbert Keene and George Rand were successful at the Boston Poultry Show which was held recently. Addison Dingwall secured a prize for his exhibit of poultry, and the others won third place as members of a judging team. Eleven teams competed for the laurels.

Leon Our has become a member of the Poultry Club.

Orelly Melville, Ruth White, Frances Bailey and Elaine Ross have been recommended to grade nine on account of their past record and excellent scholarship.

Miss Lucy Money is taking Miss Margaret Dingwall's place in grade three. Miss Dingwall left just before the vacation on account of ill health.

Mrs. Wallace, master's assistant, is back again after a severe attack of bronchitis.

The Home Economics Club met Jan. 7, after school with Miss Brassill in attendance.

GREAT DRY DOCK FORMALLY OPENED

As the prow of the battleship Virginia crossed the sill of the new Commonwealth dry dock, at Boston, it struck a floral wreath stretched across from wall to wall, and as the huge fighting craft moved forward the chain of flowers snapped, officially opening the largest dry dock of its kind in the world.

WAS FOILED BY A VULTURE

Lieut. Etienne Poulet, French flier, might have beaten Capt. Roos Smith in the race to Australia had it not been for a fight with a huge vulture while flying over the mountain peaks of Siam near the town of Moummain. The vulture circled for a time over the aircraft, which was making little speed because of weather conditions, then dived straight down, striking and shattering the right propeller. The lieutenant searched the mountain tops for over half an hour before finding a suitable place for landing. He had to abandon the race.

An Attentive Pupil.

Jack, aged five, and Henry, seven, had listened attentively while the rector explained to the church school the reason for the campaign for church expansion. On the way home Jack noticed for the first time the posters advertising the campaign.

"Who put up those posters?" piped Jack.

"God," said Henry, without a moment's hesitation.

"How do you know God did it?" Jack asked.

"Oh, didn't you hear Mr. Browne say all this church expansion is God's work?"

A Tolerant Attitude.

"Your intellectual friend enjoyed the movies?"

"She seemed to, and I must give her credit for one thing."

"What is that?"

"Although she knows considerably more about Latin and Greek than she does about making a pie, she refrained from calling attention to the grammatical mistakes in the subtitles."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

SCRAPS

An instrument has been invented to permit draftsmen to draw perfect ovals and to draw two or more of the same dimensions.

In France a process has been invented for treating gelatin or glue that produces a noninflammable substitute for celluloid.

Last year for the first time the United States exported more tin plates than Wales, heretofore the leader in the industry.

The Danish government is planning to erect a wireless station at Copenhagen for direct communication with the United States.

In Egypt cottonseed oil cake seems to be proving a satisfactory substitute for coal. The present value of the oil cake is less than a fifth the cost of coal.

The Brazilian government has decreed that products offered for sale as butter must contain at least 80 per cent of butterfat and not more than 15 per cent of acid content.

NAVAL HERO AND HIS WIFE

Lieut. E. V. M. Isaacs, photographed with his wife at the Washington navy yard, where he is now inspector of munitions. Secretary of the Navy Daniels has awarded to him the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award. Lieutenant Isaacs, according to the official citation, was captured by the German submarine U-90 when the U. S. S. President Lincoln was sunk and while a prisoner obtained extremely valuable information concerning German submarines. After an unsuccessful attempt, he escaped from a German prison and gave the information to the allies.

On Her Own Resources.

Louise, age four, was listening earnestly to a conversation between her mother and a relative. The relative, after telling at some length one of her experiences, ended with the remark:

"And so I was thrown upon my own resources."

Louise pondered for a moment in the silence that followed the story, and then said: "Well, auntie, you could take lots of rides, couldn't you?"

The aunt was puzzled and asked for an explanation.

"Well," said Louise, "you know you said you were thrown on your own race horses."

Peddlers Join in Singing.

The Breton onion seller, writes a correspondent, was, up till the war, a familiar figure in the Highlands of Scotland.

One day, in Calthness, I was playing some of Theodore Botrel's songs on the piano, when to my surprise a pair of lusty voices joined in.

Two onion sellers, hearing me from the road, had come up to the window to enjoy the melodies of their homeland.

We kept up a concert for over half an hour, to the extreme delight of all the small boys in the vicinity.

REJUVENATED JANE

By LILLIAN H. CROWLEY

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Jane Mathews was sitting on the veranda, chatting and laughing with one of the young men of her set when her mother joined them.

"Jane, darling, the evening is chilly; let me wrap you in this," she said, a heavy crocheted wool shawl of a dull, dismal aspect which immediately absorbed all of Jane's bright color and spirits. The young man frowned.

"You're not in a comfortable chair, dear, and you know you're dead-tired." Her mother, all solicitation, was hovering over her.

The young man, who had risen to his feet when Jane's mother came out, and had remained standing during this scene, at once offered Jane the chair he had occupied.

"Oh, yes," said Mrs. Mathews, "it is more comfortable. Do sit here, Jane." She pulled the protesting girl to the other chair.

"Mother, I'm very well—I like the chair I have and this shawl is too warm."

"No, it isn't!" answered Mrs. Mathews with decision. "Jane is so delicate," turning to the young man.

"I feel like a brute," said he, "and I'm sorry that I overlooked Jane's comfort."

"No, No!" said Jane.

Her mother silenced her with a loving look and went on to enumerate her daughter's weaknesses, mentioning the vegetables and fruits and other things that did not agree with her.

Jane's wretchedness was increased by the look of boredom on the face of the young man.

"Pardon me, Mrs. Mathews," he interrupted, "but I must be going. Good-by, Jane—see you tomorrow night at the dance."

"If she's feeling strong enough," answered Jane's mother for her.

Another night finds Jane seated on the veranda and in the same chair from which her solicitous mother had ousted her before. Another young man came along and seeing Jane decided to drop in. Jane, expecting him, smiled happily.

Raised His Hat and Passed By.

Mrs. Mathews nodded from the window and the young man raised his hat and bowed to them both—passed by. Jane looked puzzled and disappointed.

The young people feeling annoyed by Mrs. Mathews' care of Jane, decided to have Jane with them without going to her house. They telephoned her to come to the home of Penelope Jones, one summer evening, for an informal dance. One of the boys would go home with her.

Jane went and was having the time of her young life. Her eyes were sparkling, cheeks glowing, nimble feet flying, when her father arrived at ten o'clock, with a heavy, dust-colored cloak, to take her home. They begged that Jane might stay an hour longer.

"No, Jane isn't strong, you know, and her mother worries about her. She won't sleep a wink until Jane is in bed."

No one felt very gay after this and the party broke up.

Several years of this kind of thing passed by until nobody wanted to include Jane in the social affairs. It was too much bother and they always had to reckon with Mrs. Mathews in some way by apologizing for heat or cold, or the weather or the salad. They were bored to death—and out of patience with their old friend, too.

Jane had lost her bright color and her charming smile. She had become listless and lacked initiative and the men were not interested in her any more. A very few childhood friends remained faithful.

Some of the girls were married and some were engaged; some had lovers, but all had attention except Jane. One young man remarked:

"If I took a box of candy to Jane her mother would think I meant her to have ptomaine poisoning, and if I took flowers they would be expected to give her hay fever."

The worst of it was that Mrs. Mathews was always home, or if she went for a short trip, she took Jane with her. Jane never went anywhere alone.

At last Mrs. Mathews was called away by the serious illness of her sister. She could not take her daughter on this trip as she might have to stay a long time and Jane was to oversee the house and be company for her father. Mrs. Mathews' anxiety for her sister made her put Jane in a secondary place for the first time.

Mary Mapes and Bessie Longley, the two staunch friends of the girl, put their heads together.

"Now is the time for Jane to revive," said Bessie, "and I have a scheme. When Jim comes in August," (Jim was Bessie's fiancé) "he is going to bring his college chum, Grant Britton, here to meet me and to show him a good time for that month. Now let's make Jane leave off all that coddling."

"She's as strong as a horse!" exclaimed Mary.

"Of course she is," agreed Bessie, "but she's stood it wonderfully considering—I'd be dead by this time. Let's make her get busy on her clothes and be ready for the stunts we've planned for the boys."

"We'll go and see her now." So they went.

They found Jane wearing a warm dress in July seated with a dab of crocheting.

They told her their plans and Jane's listless figure began to straighten.

"I'll have to get some clothes and you know I don't care much for them," Jane looked worried.

"You're to get up a charming wardrobe for Bessie's sake," enthused Mary. "Because she wants to be proud of her friends and we've all got to look the best we can. Come on, let's look at your things, Jane, because we haven't much time."

Upstairs Bessie said: "Make all these skirts narrower and the evening gowns lower. Why, I'd smother in this high thing."

"Mother thinks my lungs are weak," replied Jane apologetically.

"Never mind if they are," said Mary, "forget them for one month because we've got to show Jim and his friend a good time. It's our duty to Bessie and we'll have to forget ourselves for once."

"I'll do anything I can to help," said Jane with a loving look toward Bessie.

"We're going to have swimming parties, too," announced Mary. "Never mind about taking cold—Mary waved aside Jane's objections. "What if you do take cold—get over it!"

"Jane," said Bessie, putting her hands on her friend's shoulders and looking into her eyes, "if you follow Mary and me for one month, I believe that you will never have an ache or a pain again. Will you do it?"

"Yes," replied Jane, "I will! I've felt for a long time as though I had lost my right environment."

"Now the first thing—get a bathing suit that you can swim in and take a few lessons while you are getting your clothes made."

"This is fine," said Jane, a slight color coming into her cheeks.

"Remember you are to do as Mary and I plan," admonished Bessie as the girls were leaving.

When the young men came they found a bevy of young people ready to show them a good time. No one was more eager to join in than was Jane. The girls had made her dress her hair in a more modish manner and the excitement of anticipation had restored her color.

It was a beautiful Jane, indeed. There was no one to hinder her from being beautiful and charming and her natural gaiety at last had an outlet and she was free in spirit.

She danced, swam, golfed and ate anything she pleased. Bessie and Mary were delighted with their success.

No one was more pleased with Jane than was Grant Britton. He had never seen a prettier girl and most of all he admired her radiant health. They were together constantly and Jane and Grant became better acquainted than they could have in years under other conditions.

One moonlight night Grant proposed. It seemed to Jane that she must be the happiest girl in the world—no one else could be so happy.

"Now that you have accepted me," Grant went on, "I must tell you that that is proposal number one. Number two is, that you marry me at once and go with me to South America."

Jane gasped, thinking of her mother. "It's this way, dear, I had this trip planned before I met you and my business future depends on it. It will be our wedding trip too."

"I know mother will object," said Jane.

"We won't tell her," Grant smothered her objections with kisses. "Let's just be married here without fuss and telegraph your mother afterward. I shall be the happiest man on earth."

"And I the happiest girl!"

"You'll do it?"

"Yes," said the demure Jane.

"Saint Anthony Guide."

The letters S. A. G., when written on the reverse side of an envelope over the sealed flap, are an abbreviation of the phrase "Saint Anthony guide," which is an invocation to the saint to guard the letter if lost and guide it safely to its destination. The Catholic Encyclopedia says: "The fame of St. Anthony's miracles has never been diminished, and even at the present days he is acknowledged as the greatest thaumaturgist of the times. He is especially invoked for the recovery of things lost."

PICKWICK'S PAPER

By HELEN A. HOLDEN

(Copyright.)

It was a busy time of the day. The crowd, hurrying to and fro, was too intent on minding its own affairs to bother about the erratic behavior of any particular individual.

Carliotta Smith was one of the throng surging past the Stanwix building. When she came opposite the wide-open door she hesitated, walked toward the entrance, but again turned and passed on down the street.

Coming back, she paused once more, then hurried on.

The third time there was no hesitation. With grim determination she approached the entrance and walked boldly in.

There were three or four men who left the elevator at the thirteenth floor with Miss Smith. She envied them their knowledge of where they wanted to go.

Opening off the hall, there were no less than five doors, each with the name of "Bolton Company" in gold letters.

"My mother told me to take this one," counted Carliotta.

Inside, Carliotta found a girl seated behind a desk. She invited Carliotta to wait while she went in search of Mr. Thomas Doyle.

"This isn't so bad," mused Carliotta. "I'm beginning to think I'll like it."

"Mr. Doyle?" she inquired, as a young man appeared with her card in his hand. "I am Miss Carliotta Smith."

"Glad to meet you, Miss Smith." Her tones had convinced him that there was much behind the name.

"I beg pardon, Mr. Doyle," interrupted the girl from behind the desk. "I forgot to deliver a message this morning. Mr. Bolton wished you to call him up."

"Did he say when?" asked Doyle.

"No," the girl admitted reluctantly.

"Then he can wait," which was hardly respectful to the president of the company. "Please be seated, Miss Smith."

"I came to see you—" began Carliotta.

"I say, Tom, I've been hunting everywhere for you." Like a hurricane a young man burst in with this announcement. "I beg pardon, I didn't know you were busy, but you forgot to tell me where that guaranty would most likely be found."

Explanations were brief, for in a few moments Doyle returned.

"I won't take you to my room, for I've been moved upstairs. A number of us have been changed about lately. We can go into Miss Glyn's room. There is no one there, so I trust we can continue uninterrupted."

"Did you say 'Miss Glyn'?" inquired Carliotta.

Doyle's glance followed Carliotta's to the hat-rack, on which hung a man's derby.

"Oh, that might mean the general mixed-up state we're in just now. Possibly a caller for Miss Glyn. That's probably it," Doyle spoke confidently. "She has just taken him somewhere to meet some one. Take this chair, Miss Smith; you'll find it more comfortable."

"But," protested Carliotta, "I know from the way it looks—"

"You mean the way it's worn," suggested Doyle.

"Anyway," continued Carliotta, "it's Miss Glyn's pet, particular chair. It would never do to have her find me using it."

"Even her shoes are distinguished looking," he told himself. "It seems as if I have heard her name before. Undoubtedly, a society girl; it probably figures daily in the papers."

"I think," said Carliotta, "that what people say about odious agents and the way they are treated is all nonsense."

"Have you had the good fortune to meet any unodious ones?" inquired Doyle lightly.

"I mean the way you have treated me," went on Carliotta.

"I don't quite follow," Doyle sat down suddenly. In case he had understood, he would need support.

"From what I've heard, I always thought agents had doors slammed in their faces, and were sometimes—of course, in extreme cases—thrown downstairs," continued Miss Smith. "Now, I consider I've been treated royally."

Carliotta waved majestically toward the footstool.

While she was speaking a man had quietly entered the room. As Doyle's attention was not again claimed, Carliotta did not mind.

Doyle was so stunned at what he had just heard that he forgot completely his previous threats of vengeance against the next intruder.

"I am an agent," continued Carliotta, "for Pickwick's Superior Typewriting Paper."

"I never would have guessed it," the irony in Tom Doyle's voice was lost on Carliotta, who continued volubly:

"You probably use Tryon's, don't you, Mr. Doyle? Really, a very inferior grade. If you would once try Pickwick's, I am sure you would never use anything else. Its advantages over others in ordinary use are legion. Do you use Tryon's or Black's Mr. Doyle?"

"I don't know."

Doyle felt as if he had been knocked down, and now was being walked on.

This girl did not want him to lead the German at the coming charity ball—she did not even want a subscription to something else, anything—she was only a plain, ordinary agent.

"I hoped you would be able to help me," continued Carliotta. "I so much want to make a success of it. You don't know what it means to me."

"I've a sick husband and five children to support," quoted Doyle absently.

"It's not as bad as that," replied Carliotta. "But if I could make my poor mother comfortable—"

"I'll do what I can for you," broke in Doyle hastily. "Mr. Cruikshank is the man you ought to see."

"But I don't want to see him," said Carliotta. "He is sure to be cross. Even his name sounds so."

"I don't know about that. I don't even know the man. I mean, he's head of that department."

"I shouldn't like to see him," Carliotta spoke decidedly. "I thought you could help me. I forgot to tell you that Mr. Smith gave me your name—Mr. Morton Smith. He is a distant relative, and is interested in helping me."

"You are related to Morton Smith?" To himself Doyle added: "How in thunder does he let you do a thing like this?"

"Yes; he is most anxious to see me succeed," replied Carliotta.

"I'll do what I can."

Doyle felt like a criminal. To aid and abet a girl of Miss Smith's stamp made of herself a successful agent of Pickwick's Superior Paper, was unpardonable. Yet, considering the poor old mother, he must do what he could.

"I'll see the cranky Cruikshank, as you call him. If I can't urge him, I'll beat him into accepting your paper. In one way or another, you see, I am sure to succeed."

"When shall I call again?" inquired Carliotta.

"What part of the city do you canvass tomorrow?" asked Doyle.

"Around State and Pearl, I think," Carliotta spoke with some hesitation.

"I get my luncheon near there," said Doyle. "I could meet you at Lincoln park, and it would save your coming 'way up here.'"

"Very well," said Carliotta. "You see, I've never been an agent before, so I hardly know what is customary."

As Doyle bade Carliotta good-by, he felt a deep thrill of sympathy.

"Ten minutes late," was Mr. Doyle's greeting when he met Miss Smith the next day. "I hope that means you have had a successful morning."

Carliotta slowly shook her head.

"I'm so sorry. There was a world of sympathy in Doyle's voice. "And I have had news, too."

How he hated to make Carliotta look less happy than she did when she came to meet him across the park!

"Did Mr. Cruikshank live up to the reputation of his name?" Carliotta smiled bravely as she asked the question.

"Taking time by the forelock," answered Doyle, "I inquired for Cruikshank as soon as you left yesterday. I was directed to the room that used to be Miss Glyn's. There, sitting at his own desk, and with his feet on his own footstool, was Hon. James Gordon Cruikshank!"

"Oh!" gasped Carliotta. "He was the man who came in while we were talking. He must have heard me say he was a crank, and you said you would beat him. Is there anything left of you, Mr. Doyle?"

"I am old Cruikshank's firm friend for life," replied Doyle. "You bet I didn't think it was funny, but he seemed to get a lot of enjoyment out of it. He was such a brick in overlooking the names we called him. We actually parted friends, even though he refused to take the Pickwick paper. Says he has nothing against what we are now using."

"What trials there are for agents. I am glad I am not a real one," murmured Carliotta.

"Was that agent business a joke?" demanded Doyle wrathfully.

"Far from it," replied Carliotta. "I was never more serious in my life. To begin at the beginning—two nights ago, at dinner, my father called me names. He said I was simply a butterfly—without more serious thoughts of the future than what frock I should wear to the next assembly."

"I replied that it was all the fault of circumstances. That I could even earn my own living, if it were necessary. Of course, my father hooted at that. To make a long story short, it ended in a wager. I was to prove to him that I could be self-supporting. He bet I couldn't."

"I decided that becoming an agent would be quicker than anything else. From my unsuspecting cousin I got the name of Bolton company, as employing large numbers of typewriters. You can guess how glad I was when he casually mentioned you as a classmate. Then I went to a store and asked the name of the least used typewriting paper."

"The least used?" broke in Doyle.

"Of course," said Carliotta, "if I had taken the most popular, the chances were that you would already be stocked up with it."

"That is one way of doing business," commented Doyle.

"When I reported my success last night," continued Carliotta, "my father was not at all pleased. In fact, he was quite—otherwise, I was so disappointed, for I was really very proud of myself."

"Then all that about your poor old mother was—" began Doyle.

"Purely fiction," replied Carliotta. "What must you think of me, Mr. Doyle?"

"I don't want you to cut my acquaintance by telling me it is too sudden," said Tom; "but I will gladly tell you as soon as you give me permission."

"I don't want you to cut my acquaintance by telling me it is too sudden," said Tom; "but I will gladly tell you as soon as you give me permission."

THE WEDDING SPECIAL

By LATIMER J. WILSON

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The wispy wreathes of pale smoke settled into diaphanous strata in the air of Orville's room, where he and Harold were sitting. It was near the end of a day busy with preparation for a peculiar expedition to a distant city. The village of Baneville was getting ready to escort Orville, as a prosperous groom, and Harold, as prospective best man, to the distant old city of romance, New Orleans, where the bride-to-be resided. For eight long months her friends in Baneville had missed her from their dances, parties and social events. Orville had been twice to see her there, and now he was planning to take the whole town to bring her back.

Through the cigarette fog a number of photographs could be seen on the table in the center of Orville's room.

"There they are—all of them!" he said, pointing the tip of his cigarette toward the pictures. "I suppose you know every girl I ever went with in this burg."

His friend looked casually toward the group. He had serious dark eyes and waving dark hair combed loosely back from a wide, intelligent brow. Orville was no less handsome, but he was blonde and slightly stout and his eyes were blue and less seriously expressive. "A cynic," some called him. "A good fellow," others said. His jovial manner won friends easily.

"Look here," he said, taking up one of the photographs. "Jane's a trick all right. We thought a lot of each other one time. She was wild about me."

"If I were in your place, old chap," said Harold disapprovingly, "I'd quit boasting and put all these pictures away except one—the One."

"Ah! Moon of My Delight!" Orville exclaimed, holding up the large portrait of the bride-to-be. Harold did not lift his eyes from the point in space at which his gaze was thoughtfully fixed.

"Rave on," was all he said.

"There's the girl of girls! See here, old man; when it comes time to slip men and women, with elderly guests, gathered at the town depot at midnight. They piled into the reserved Pullmans when the train arrived fifteen minutes late in Baneville. Sleeping passengers were aroused by the clamor. Throughout the next day smiling faces greeted the passengers of the train bearing in large letters on two of its Pullmans the large sign, "The Wedding Special."

Orville did not reserve much time to himself en route, generously sharing it with the originals of his photographic collection and others. But there came an interval when everybody was tired and when Orville found himself with his feet stretched across the arm of an empty seat in the smoking car. Darkness was framed outside the windows and smoky, dim-lit reflections were framed within. In the tobacco haze of the room came an image of the past, refreshing Orville's memory of a cherished scene.

He remembered how the moonlight silvered gables and treetops, and how patches of its pale sheen fell at his feet when he and Mabel sat on the front steps of her old home in Baneville. In the depths of her eyes he had seemed to see the response which he had craved so long. But Mabel had always been more or less of a sphynx-like mystery to him. She then had surprised him by saying, "No, there is no one else. I like you as well as anyone."

But he wanted far more than that from her. He had determined that if she would not promise him that night to be his wife the blame of failure would be his alone. He remembered how, with the ardor of sudden impulse, he had swept her bodily into his arms, holding her so firmly that she could not struggle.

"Oh, Orville! Don't—please don't," she had whispered while tears came into the corners of her eyes. But his arms were locked and he had thrown away the key.

"You must promise me now—to-night. It is our last night together. You must say that you will let me come for you and bring you back as my wife."

Under the spell of his arms and kisses she had promised. Her father and mother were pleased with the turn of affairs and the engagement had been announced soon after Mabel had gone. That was eight months ago, and now—here he was almost at the journey's end. Soon Mabel would be a member of the wedding party traveling back to the drowsy little town where he was so important. Financially and socially he could make his wife very proud.

His reminiscence was dispelled by the preparations nearing the end of the journey. New Orleans, that quaint old town, was beginning to glide past the windows. There would be a great time ahead for the jolly crowd in the Pullmans when they set about seeing the curiosities of the interesting city. Orville and the members of his family were to be the guests of the bride's father and mother. The others were booked for a hotel. When the train came to a full stop in the station and the party were assembling around the cars awaiting directions Orville caught sight of his future father-in-law, a large man with gray side whiskers. He came forward with some embarrassment and taking Orville by the arm whispered: "We must not be overheard—come over to the waiting room for a moment."

Orville called to his friends to wait until he returned. Then, in the corner of the busy waiting room, he heard the news.

"Mabel has greatly disappointed all of us," said her father in a much-broken voice. "Just two hours ago she left a note telling us that she had eloped with a certain young man who has been friendly since we came here. Neither her mother nor I had any idea how things were going. We would have stopped them in time or would have let you know. It's too bad, but nothing can be done now about it."

Orville was stunned at first. He was too dazed to reply. Without a word he took his never-to-be father-in-law by the arm and piloted him back to the crowd.

"Stand here a moment," he said, hoarsely. Then he took Harold aside. After a brief consultation, the latter whispered a few words to the maid of honor. She turned pale, then blushed and shook her head in slow approval.

EPISCOPAL

Mission of the Holy Nativity, 564 Main street, South Weymouth. Morning prayer and sermon 10.30. Sunday School at 12.

THIRD UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

North Weymouth
"The Church of the New Era" will be the subject of the sermon on Sunday at 2.30 P. M. Rev. Isaac Smith of West Somerville will conduct the services in exchange with the pastor. Mr. Smith has both American and European points of view, and is well fitted by life experience to speak upon the church to be. As a young man, the speaker thought through the religion of the Anglican Church of England, broke ties, and later on arrival at Detroit joined the Universalist church. Those who are thinking about the vital problems of life will enjoy this speaker. Music will be furnished by the choir under Miss Deane's direction.
Church school will meet at 1.15 P. M. After the pleasant party on Tuesday, we shall expect a good attendance. Mrs. E. R. Sampson, superintendent.

The ladies of this church will entertain the Old Colony Association on Tuesday. Dinner will be served by the ladies at noon. Speakers will include Mr. Pearson of South Weymouth, Mr. Dix, a former pastor of Newtonville, and Mr. Marshall of Melrose, manager of the Leader. Miss Leinonen will sing in the afternoon service. We shall have a record attendance.

The young people are invited to attend the young people's union social and meeting at Quincy, Jan. 25, at 6.30.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Quincy, 20 Greenleaf street. Morning service and Sunday School, at 10.45. Subject of the lesson-sermon: "Life." Golden text: Romans 8:6. To be spiritually minded is life and peace. Testimony meeting every Wednesday evening at 7.45. Free public reading room, Hancock building, City square, 11 A. M. to 5 P. M. every week day, holidays excepted.

C. M. A. NOTES

The wrestling matches held every Thursday evening for the benefit of the members, are one of the features of the season. Two champion wrestlers are ready to give any of the members pointers in the sport. Boxing matches will soon be on tap at the "gym." The boxing lessons which have held all during the winter, have developed some real champion material and promises to make the C. M. A. well known in the boxing world within the next few months.

The New Year brought many new faces to the C. M. A. and shows more than ever the progressiveness of the institution which has done more for Weymouth's future selectmen and business men than any other club of its kind in the state.

The cold evenings have done their part to force many of the members to get under cover of the well heated C. M. A. building, and the pool tables are constantly occupied. Louis Daniels and Bill Russell continue to have their "friendly" contests and it is getting to be a toss-up for the winner, as both of them are in the same class. (P. S. You tell 'em what class they are in "Doc".)

Members of the basketball team are considering whether they shall run weekly dances at the C. M. A. hall. If the attendance next week indicates that East Weymouth wishes to have a weekly dance in this section of the town, arrangements will be made to get an orchestra to play for them weekly.

Please direct all mail for the Gazette or the Times to "Gazette, Weymouth, Mass." No street address or box is necessary, and no name.

No. 7416

Commonwealth of Massachusetts, LAND COURT

To Joseph P. Loud, Charles E. Loud, Mary O'Garra, Metropolitan Real Estate Associates, Joseph Ruggiero, Adeline J. Carlegan and Donato Bruno of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and said Commonwealth; Goldie E. Landry, of Wintthrop, in said County of Suffolk; the Inhabitants of the Town of Weymouth, a municipal corporation located in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Charlene H. Martin, Edward I. Martin, E. Russell Sanborn, Martin M. Wetmore, Aeno Kankasalo, Lempi Nihtila, Kalle Hanhiala and Georgianna T. Merrill, of said Weymouth; John Genoa of Franklin, in said County of Norfolk; Mary A. Bartley of Malden, Jane E. Hannon of Everett, and Frances W. Scherer and Thordike H. Whittemore, of Newton, in the County of Middlesex; and said Commonwealth; Herbert J. Libby, of Bryants Pond, in the State of Maine; any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Rebecca French, late of said Weymouth, deceased; and any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Elizabeth L. Whittemore, late of Arlington, in said County of Middlesex, deceased, who have not released their interest in the land hereinafter described; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Charles G. Jordan, Administrator of the Estate of John Shea, late of said Weymouth, deceased, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

Two certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Weymouth, bounded and described as follows:

First parcel: Easterly by Essex Street and on land of Lempi Nihtila; Northwesterly by land of Charlene M. Martin, Jane E. Hannon, Mary E. Bartley, Joseph Ruggiero and Georgianna T. Merrill; Southwesterly on land of Jane E. Hannon, Metropolitan Realty Associates, Inc., Joseph Ruggiero, Georgianna T. Merrill and Goldie E. Landry; Southerly and South-easterly on land of Joseph P. and Charles E. Loud, Martin M. Wetmore, Kalle F. Hanhiala and Lempi Nihtila. Excepting from the above the lot bounded Northwesterly by the middle of Harvard Street 60 feet; North-easterly by the middle of Avonia avenue 120 feet; Southeastwesterly on land of the petitioner 60 feet; Southwesterly on land of the petitioner 120 feet. Said parcel contains about 250.50 square feet of land and is subject to rights of way over the streets, roads and avenues shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned.

Second parcel: Westerly on Essex Street; Northwesterly on land of Edward I. Martin; Easterly on land of E. Russell Sanborn; and Southerly on land of Martin M. Wetmore; containing about 73.40 square feet of land. Petitioner claims as appurtenant to the above described land rights of way over the private ways shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the twenty-sixth day of January, A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-sixth day of December in the year nineteen hundred and nineteen.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Elias S. Beals, Esq., of Weymouth, who had formerly been largely engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes, had been invited by the Committee to speak in response to the following sentiment:—"The Manufacturers of Weymouth—they furnish understandings to millions of the human race." Owing to the lateness of the hour when it was reached, it was decided expedient to omit this and the several other remaining sentiments designed to be offered; but the subject of that above recited being of very great interest to our citizens, it has been thought desirable to secure the preservation, in this form, of the knowledge of such facts in relation to this principal business of the town, as the large experience and opportunities of Mr. Beals would enable him to present; and in reply to the Committee's request he has furnished for publication the following appropriate response to that sentiment:—

I like this sentiment for the spark of wit it contains, as well as for its substantial truthfulness. There is a happy coincidence regarding this matter of "understandings," in that the good understanding of the heads of the manufacturers enabled them to produce understandings for the feet that recommended themselves to the understanding heads of a multitude of people, thus theoretically causing "both ends to meet."

This sentiment has reference mainly, of course, to the production of boots and shoes. For the first hundred and fifty years after its settlement it is probable that Weymouth manufactured no more boots and shoes than were sufficient to supply its own inhabitants; but about one hundred years ago it commenced in a small way to make a very few for the Boston retail market. Everything then, and for the next fifty or sixty years, was done by hand, with the simplest kind of tools. From fifty down to thirty years ago, the Merritts made, by hand, at their little forge, nearly all the tools that were used in this and the neighboring towns in making boots and shoes; and excellent tools they made, too.

Tools or implements, which might with any degree of propriety be called machines to aid in making boots and shoes, are of recent date. Only about forty years ago, iron-jawed clamps, for holding boots and shoes whilst being "seamed up," first made their appearance; and they very soon supplanted the old wooden article, sometimes made of barrel staves, which was before used for that purpose. Next came along sole-leather rollers and sole-leather cutters of various kinds; and then came heel-making machines, sewing, pegging, nailing and many other machines, thick and fast, machine after machine, until now the morning's calm is broken by the shrieks of steam-whistles in numerous localities, and the constant roar and clatter of the machines set in motion for the manufacture of boots and shoes by steam's mighty power almost bewilders our senses.

Less than seventy-five years ago the boot and shoe bosses, as they were called, made only a few dozen pairs a month or a week; and those few goods they carried to Boston by water, in a packet, from Weymouth Landing, or on horseback, in panniers, and sometimes even on foot. There are present here to-day several of the children of a man who once carried, on foot, a back-load of shoes to Boston to sell, and who brought home in the same manner a side of sole leather and a sheet-iron stove, besides other articles. Think of that, you manufacturers who now ride in silk-velvet cushioned railway-cars at the rate of thirty miles an hour when on business, and who drive pairs of prancing steeds at a two-forty pace when riding for pleasure.

Many other persons in this town performed exploits similar to that of the man of whom I have spoken. The father of some who are now before me has more than once brought, on foot, goods from Boston to sell from his retail-store. And an elderly woman who lived less than a mile from this spot, about eighty years ago, once brought a bedstead in Boston and brought it home on her own shoulders, coming by the then only way of Boston Neck and Paine's Hill, taking one-half of it along about a mile, and then going back and taking the other half about a mile ahead of the first-named half, and repeating her travels until the whole of the bedstead was landed at her home. That was an exhibition of pluck and perseverance hard to be beaten. She wanted a bedstead and she got it, herself.

Less than twenty years ago, in 1855, the value of all the boots and shoes manufactured in Weymouth for that year was put down at $1,593,080; and now the value of those articles manufactured in this town for a year is probably considerable more than $5,000,000. Then, in 1855, the entire value of all the manufactures of all kinds in his town was but $2,101,330 for the year, while now it will probably far exceed $7,000,000 for that length of time.

The immense advance stride in manufactures in his town during the last twenty-five years is perfectly astonishing. It exhibits itself in all parts of the town nearly alike. Compare the town as it was only twenty-five years ago with what it is to-day, with its magnificent churches and school-houses, its wonderful manufactures of various kinds, its splendid private residences, and its new and widened and straightened streets and avenues, thickly bordered throughout all the town with neat, convenient and handsomely painted dwelling-houses and stables,—with scarcely an unsightly or dilapidated building to be seen within all its borders. Nearly all of this change has been wrought by means of the skill and energy of our manufacturers. May they continue their onward progress, and may the prosperity of themselves, and of the town generally, go on increasing forever.

DON'T RISK NEGLIGENCE

Don't neglect a constant backache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills as have your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! An East Weymouth case.

"B. O. Raymond, 16 Cottage St., says: 'A couple of years ago kidney complaint came on me. Mornings I felt tired and achy and my back, pained me. When I stooped over to put on my shoes or got up from a chair, I would have a catch in my back. For a time I was unable to do much work or even get around because of the weakness in my back. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and made me get up two or three times every night. They were burning, too, and contained a brick-dust-like sediment. I had read of Doan's Kidney Pills so I got some. The first box made me feel much better so I continued using them. I was soon rid of the backache and my kidneys were acting as they should.'"

Two years later, Mr. Raymond said: 'I think as much of Doan's Kidney Pills as ever. I use a few occasionally and they regulate my kidneys.' 60c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. 2t.23.

ASPIRIN

Introduced by "Bayer" to Physicians in 1900

You want genuine Aspirin—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. The name "Bayer" means the true, world-famous Aspirin, proved safe by millions of people.

Each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache,

Aspirin is trade mark of Bayer Manufacture Monocentricity of Salicylic Acid

Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis and for Pain generally

Always say "Bayer" when buying Aspirin. Then look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on the tablets.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Drug-gists also sell larger packages.

The secret of success lies in doing well what you can do and cutting out what you cannot do.

Important to Mothers

Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher In Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

About 60 per cent of the area of the United States is tillable. At present only 32 per cent is being tilled.

West African Superstition.

In West Africa it is not unusual to see a native crouched over a stream talking to the "Spirit of the Water," and in that country, too, the traveler is unwise who looks behind him at any sudden sound, for he will probably behold a native with the Fangkree charm, and will see him beat with a bamboo hammer upon a tiny drum held above a live animal. As the traveler looks around the charm is struck, and it is the belief of the natives that, whatever part of the animal is injured, the human victim will suffer in the same region.

Seeing Him Home.

I was coming home from a dance, and I didn't want my escort, whom I had just met that evening, to know where I resided. We were walking down the street and I saw a pretty house. I stopped in front of this house and told my escort that I lived there and was obliged for his attention and kindness in taking me home. A look of bewilderment broke out on his face as he said, "Holy smoke, how do you live there when I live there?"—Exchange.

Concerning the Sabbath.

According to the Bible the Lord created the world in six days and rested on the seventh. As Saturday is the seventh day of the week, the Jews observe it as the Sabbath, as do certain other denominations following the old Mosaic law. When Christ said: "The old things have passed away; behold, they are become new," his followers regarded this as a command to change the old order, and they made the day of his resurrection the Sabbath.

Morality the Object.

The end of all political struggle is to establish morality as the basis of all legislation. 'Tis not free institutions, 'tis not a democracy that is the end—no, but only the means. Morality is the object of government. We want a state of things in which crime will not pay; a state of things which allows every man the largest liberty compatible with the liberty of every other man.—Emerson.

Discovery of Asphalt.

Asphalt, with which so many roads are paved, was found by accident. For a century in Switzerland natural rock asphalt was used to extract the rich stores of bitumen it contained. It was noticed that pieces which fell from the wagons and were crushed by the wheels formed a marvellously fine road and this led to its adoption as a road material.

Listening to "Fish Stories."

Norwegian fishermen are using a species of submarine telephone to aid them in their work. A microphone is lowered from a fishing boat and connected by a wire to a telephone in the boat. The fishermen listen at the instrument and when the fish hold a meeting the listening device records the disturbance.—Scientific American.

CUBAN WINS THIRTY-SIX CHESS GAMES

Jose Capablanca, the Cuban chess expert, recently played simultaneously 35 members of the house of commons. Edward A. Strauss and Sir William Watson Rutherford drew their games, but Capablanca won the remaining 36. Many of the members watched the contests.

SHAMROCK IV FREAK

The Shamrock IV is of an extreme type. It is very lightly constructed of wood. The top is double planked, while the fins are single planked. The keel measures 35 feet, and the body is of canoe type, cut off short on the after overhang, the bow being carried to an extreme length.

The boat is the lightest ever sent over by England. They went so far as to say that the boat is a "freak."

MELBOURNE INMAN IS WINNER

wager of $500, and on the morning of the last day of the match Reece led by 336 points. In the afternoon and night Inman spurred and eventually won 16,000 to 15,452 points.

WAR HERO WOULD BE UMPIRE

Hugh Miller, Former First Baseman, Prefers Diamond to a Career on a Newspaper.

Hugh Miller, one of the heroes of the war, who will play no more ball because of his wounds, will not give up the game.

He is going to land a job in some good minor league as an umpire and work his way up to the big show in that line. Miller has entirely recovered his health and except for a slight limp is as good as ever, but a man can't count himself as an active player when he carries a few German bullets around in his body.

At present Miller is employed on a St. Louis newspaper and making good as a chaser of the elusive news item, but the call of the game is strong with the former first baseman and he prefers the diamond to a career as a scribe.

CHECKER CLUBS IN TOURNNEY

Efforts Being Made to Hold Championship Meet at Boston—International Match Impractical.

A committee of the Boston and Wells Memorial Checker clubs has announced that the proposal for an international match in 1920 has been found impractical. Instead, an effort will be made to bring to Boston next August the fifth national checker tournament in connection with the Pilgrim Tercentenary celebration. The national tourneys were suspended in 1915 because of the war.

GOSSIP AMONG SPORTS

Pop Geers is now in winter quarters at Memphis.

The New York Nationals will train in San Antonio next spring.

Boxing is the latest sport to win favor with the Naval academy athletes.

Canada expects $40,000 will be required to send its athletes to the Olympic games.

There are more new 2:10 trotters than pacers to cover the mile in that time this season.

John C. Depler, center of the Illinois football team, has been elected captain of the 1920 squad.

They couldn't make a ball player out of Jim Thorpe, but when it comes to football they can't stop him.

The Browns may go to Mobile, Ala., for spring training. Heretofore they have patronized San Antonio.

Football is the most upright game in the sport curriculum—so far as the goal posts are concerned.

Harvey Bright, former amateur featherweight champion of New York, has joined the professional ranks.

That noted battery, Pitcher Alexander and Catcher Killefer, will be with the Chicago Nationals next season.

Colville "Red" Jackson, tackle, has been elected captain of the University of Chicago football team for 1920.

W. N. Thompson, fullback on the Wabash college football team, has been elected captain of the 1920 squad.

Glen C. Walhite, quarterback of the Army football eleven, has been elected captain of the team for next season.

John Klenninger, a junior in the college, has been elected captain of the Columbia varsity football eleven for the season of 1920.

Bike racing was the only sport allowed in France during the war. The races were confined to Paris, where the men met on Sundays.

The Sacramento baseball team of the Pacific coast league has been sold to Louis Moering. William K. Rodgers will be retained as manager.

Allegheny college, Meadville, Pa., will have a new gymnasium ready for use by April next. International and interclass sports are to be boomed.

By defeating the University of California, 7 to 0, the University of Washington won the Pacific coast football championship for the season of 1919.

Ray Bates, third baseman, has been turned back to the Athletics by Los Angeles. He has a sore arm since returning from service in France.

One idea of a thankless task is settling the precedence of teams and players. This indoor diversion should be placed under Marquis of Queensbury rules.

A resolution suggesting organization of a national committee to formulate rules governing boxing exhibitions has been adopted by the New Jersey boxing commission.

George Gibson, veteran catcher, who has been named to succeed Hugo Bezdek as leader of the Pirates, has had enough experience to make good. He is popular in Smoketown.

According to information from Boston, Jim Thorpe, the Indian athlete, is to be sold. He battled over 300 last season, but was used almost exclusively against left-handed pitchers.

Old Oliver Onken Realizes He Is the Captive, and Not the Victorious Capturer.

"My son-in-law, Luther Stuckey, doesn't amount to anything at all, and yet, paradoxical as it sounds, he is a howling success in his chosen specialty," related old Oliver Onken. "He sings a squealing tenor, he can second the motion all right, and will be as useful as anybody else to count on when the cholera breaks out. He might possibly do well managing a small farm. In short, he has never really accomplished anything except to work me so adeptly that he is able to keep better dressed than I can afford to, and by that means maintain a higher standing in the community than I enjoy. Just how he manages it I do not exactly understand, but somehow he keeps right on putting it over me. I cannot kill him, and he will not leave. When he broke into the family I thought I was getting a son-in-law, but now it looks painfully like my son-in-law has got me."—Kansas City Star.

NOT CONSTRUCTED AS MAGNET

Indianapolis Woman Flattered Herself When She Thought She Was Being Followed.

A woman looking into corner shop window recently turned angrily to a well-known Indianapolis man who by chance drew up alongside her to look into the same window: "Sir, are you following me?" she snapped. To which the astounded innocent replied with a gasp: "No, madam, I was not following you," and quickly recovering himself and noting her looks and lines added: "Not after getting a good look at you!"

"Well, if I thought you were following me I'd call that policeman," she retorted. And to this our now perfectly poised, but outraged hero replied: "I don't think he would follow you, either!"—Indianapolis News.

WORLD PROBLEMS

Frank Comerford, in his series of stories, "Problems Facing a Stricken World," will make the Russian "isms" as clear to American readers as their local politics. He dissects Bolshevism and Communism for you, and makes the Red government idea as plain and understandable as your own country government. Once he does, you see it in its pitiless viciousness, this horrid nightmare that has been foisted on the world as Russia's "freedom."

When an insidious propaganda is spreading discontent and sowing the seeds of sedition in our own country, we owe it to our readers to familiarize them with every feature of this question. Frank Comerford will give Gazette readers a perfect picture of Europe today, politically, industrially and socially, and our relation to the changes that are taking place abroad. First installment next week in the Gazette and Transcript.

OUR NEW SERIAL

If you had the opportunity to acquire an entirely new face, do you think you would select the first picture you found, and without examining it, hand it to the doc and tell him to go to it?

Hardly! Well, Morgan did, and what resulted makes one of the most absorbing stories you ever read. "The Man Nobody Knew" by Holworthy Hall is so full of interesting situations and possibilities that it remains in the reader's mind from the first installment to the last.

An echo of the great war, but not a war story. If you miss it you'll sustain a real loss. The first installment of this new serial will appear in the Gazette-Transcript next week.

GIVE PROSPERITY A CHANCE

Production alone will cut down the cost of living. Production means work—an honest day's work for the farmer, the plumber, the carpenter, the office man, the office boy. It means work with hand, with heart, with brain.

The price of prosperity is work. The price of contentment is work. Good, faithful service for good pay is the salvation of America and of the world.

Because men are now off their mental balance, the country is off balance. It is up to the advertising men to work to help to restore balance, to reduce prices by increasing production. Increased production will make present wages buy more. It's the only way to break the vicious circle of higher wages—less work—higher cost of living.

We are away behind on production. Prices are soaring. The old law of supply and demand always works. Increase the supply by work and prices will come within reach.

Most laboring men think that the men in the office, the salesmen, the advertising men and the clerks—all have an easier time than they, that the inside men work fewer hours per day than the laborer or the skilled workman. Let's show them that that is not true.

Let's talk less and do more. Give Prosperity a fair chance. Do all you can, and then do more for one year. Work—Work—Work.

It's the simple, sure way to prosperity. Work only will win in the fight for greater production and the reduction of the high cost of living.

But let the sales and advertising men lead the way. By our example let us show the laboring men that we are ready and willing to work 8, 10, 12 or 16 hours, if necessary—six days, and if need be, seven—to bring up production and help to reduce the cost of living.

Let us advertise that fact, and let everyone know we are not looking for the best of it in hours, hard work or financial gain.—William H. Rankin in Forbes Magazine, Dec. 27, 1919.

TREMONT TEMPLE

Boston is now having its first opportunities of witnessing Mary Pickford in the film version of the best known and best loved book in America.

ica, Eleanor H. Porter's "Pollyanna", the "glad" book which created such a success when it was published a few years ago. Following its wonderful vogue as a printed story it had a remarkable career as a stage play and now, with "Our Mary" in the title role, it has been made into a wonderfully glad and appealing story for the films.

The story of "Pollyanna" is no doubt known to everyone in this country—they read with delight the joyous doings of this winsome little New England heroine who, by playing and spreading her "glad game" brought joy to all with whom she came in contact, and they saw her in the stage version teaching others the rules and principles of the "glad game" so that all could be made happy.

Drive For YD Fund
A Big Success Here

The drive for the YD Memorial building fund has fulfilled its quota in Weymouth, largely due to the good work of the mothers, sisters and friends of the YD men, and to the support of the people of Weymouth on Tag Day.

The stormy weather of Saturday made it very hard for the girls who collected, but Tag Day, held in East Weymouth and Weymouth, netted $80 for the fund. It was carried on in East Weymouth under the direction of Mrs. Lucio Bagley and eight of her girls from the Girls' Service League. Mrs. Paul Dowd of Weymouth had charge of the girls from her part of the town.

The "Dollar Drive" directed by Mrs. George Perry of East Weymouth and carried on by the women relatives and friends of the YD, has brought in to date $194, donated almost wholly by women. Mrs. Paul Dowd and Miss Willa Coleman had charge in Weymouth and North Weymouth.

The Weymouth Catholic Club gave $50 to the fund, the Rev. John B. Holland heading the list with $25, other friends of the YD have contributed over $52. This does not include all the canvassing done by the YD men themselves.

The Weymouth YD men also assisted Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons and the Hingham YD at their brilliantly successful ball held in the Hingham Armory on Friday night, Jan. 16. A great many Weymouth people attended the dance, enjoyed the music and admired the beautiful and unusual effect of the flag hung armory. Mrs. Charles Gale and Mrs. George Perry were among the patronesses. Ernest Davidson and Theodore Manuel were on the ticket committee, Thomas McDonald and William Toole assisted on the refreshment committee.

JAPAN OF TODAY

As usual, the January meeting of the Men's Club of the Clapp Memorial Association, Wednesday evening, was largely attended. An excellent roast beef dinner was served at 6.45.

W. C. Earle presided, and by request Rev. Dr. Ford introduced the speaker of the evening. William H. Gallagher, a son of the late Dr. Gallagher of Thayer Academy, spoke on "Japan of Today," telling of his experiences on two visits. He showed wherein the high cost of living had struck Japan. In that country one sometimes has to wait several years to have a telephone installed, orders of 1909 being filled this year. One usually has to deal with telephone brokers and pay a big price. He told how telephone rates had been advanced, and related many other interesting experiences.

MAN AND WIFE INSTALLED

A notable event in Odd Fellows circles took place at the public installation of the officers of Crescent lodge and Steadfast Rebekah lodge, when Emerson R. Dizer was placed at the head of the former, and Mrs. Emerson R. Dizer at the head of the latter. At the same time Mr. and Mrs. Dizer were among the youngest to fill these important positions.

A banquet was served at Odd Fellows hall at 6.30, and the ceremonies followed.

The officers of Crescent lodge are: N. G., Emerson R. Dizer; V. G., Russell S. Knox; R. S., Clayton B. Merchant.

F. S., Harold P. Tirrell; T., George D. Bagley; W., George B. Bicknell; Con., Joseph V. Richards; Chap., Harry C. Belcher; I. G., William J. Rix; O. G., James A. Monroe; R. S., William R. Mann; L. Weymouth Only Town
To Handle Snow Right

Superintendent of streets Johnson is receiving much praise from automobilists and others, because of the way the Street department has handled the snow this month.

Many have said that Weymouth is THE ONLY TOWN that has handled the snow right. When the streets of Weymouth are compared with Braintree, or Quincy, or other towns, Weymouth is far ahead, for the travelling is excellent on the main streets between the different parts of the town. In Braintree and Quincy little has been done and the travelling is wretched.

Supt. Johnson gets busy after each storm and with his road scraper pushes the surplus snow to one side, so that the snow is level and not deep. Soon men are at work with another machine carting off the surplus snow in the gutters.

Considerable snow has fallen this month and there is some excellent sleighing, but only a few sleighs are seen. Automobiles and auto trucks are however in daily use. Snow on the roofs is causing leaks and damages. Every day the mercury is below the freezing point, and hovering around zero. A regular old-fashioned winter. Joseph Kelley, formerly of the board of Selectmen, writes:

I would like to express my appreciation of the work done, and congratulate the Selectmen and Superintendent of Streets for the condition of Weymouth streets.

I have been in a number of our surrounding towns, and in no instance have I found such a good condition of the streets as in Weymouth. Not only our main streets, but the side streets as well have been given such attention that it is as safe almost as summer travel.

In other towns it is at a great risk to drive upon their streets. And I am sure that this appeals to the rest of the citizens as to myself.

The two machines used by Supt. Johnson are known officially as the Champion snow plough attachment, and the Economy snow remover.

MORE BIRTHS, FEWER DEATHS

Town Clerk Merchant reports for the past year, 285 births, 177 marriages, and 210 deaths.

The number of births is 22 less than last year, but is above the average in Weymouth. There were 154 males and 131 females.

The number of marriages was the largest for many years, possibly a record breaker.

The number of deaths was the lowest since 1915, being 87 less than 1918 when the "flu" prevailed. There were 114 males and 96 females.

A comparison for 14 years is given below:

	Births	Marriages	Deaths
Year 1919	285	177	210
Year 1918	307	151	297
Year 1917	204	134	217

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

League of Nations Is Born but United States and Other Nations Are Absent.

BLOODY RIOTS IN BERLIN

Communists Attempt to Start a Revolution—Poland Needs Help to Repel Bolsheviks—Settlement of Adriatic Trouble—Constitutional Prohibition in Effect.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The League of Nations came into being last Friday, the first meeting of its council being held in Paris pursuant to a call issued by President Wilson. At present it is admittedly somewhat of a weakling, since the United States is not a member and Russia, Germany and some other powers have not been admitted. But America doubtless will adhere to the covenant before long, and the league will then proceed to fulfill, or not fulfill, the rosy predictions of its creators. Most of the world wishes it well and hopes it will prove to be the beneficent institution that its ardent supporters believe it will be.

The nations participating in the opening meeting of the league council and their representatives were:

France—Leon Bourgeois, former premier.

Great Britain—Earl Curzon of Kedleston, foreign secretary.

Italy—Signor Scialoja, foreign minister.

Belgium—Paul Hymans, foreign minister.

Spain—Count Quiñones De Leon, ambassador to France.

Greece—Ellthierios Venizelos, premier.

Japan—Viscount Chinda, ambassador to Great Britain.

Brazil—Dr. Gaston Da Cunha, ambassador to France.

The people of the United States, especially, perhaps, the business men, do not at all relish the fact that this country alone is now technically at war with Germany. They are letting the senate know how they feel, and thus the pressure on that august body to reach a compromise on the treaty has been increasing daily. The people do not wish the matter put up to them as a political issue in the presidential campaign, for they do not claim to be experts at treaty-making and feel that the senate should attend to its own business. All last week the compromisers were busy trying to reach a common base, assuming that President Wilson would not reject moderate reservations despite his repeated assertions to the contrary. But article 10 was, as ever, the sticking point, and at this writing a settlement was not in sight. Meanwhile, immediately following the promulgation of the peace treaty, the other nations are sending their representatives to Germany and pushing their campaigns to secure trade.

Plans are being laid for a great educational, financial and industrial conference for the purpose of restoring normal conditions throughout the world. Support for the scheme has been asked of the governments of the entente and neutral nations of Europe and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States by a large number of leading men of this country and Europe. The original call does not include Germany and Austria, but it is stated that these countries as well as Japan and the Latin-American republics will be asked to send delegates.

The communists of Germany, who take advantage of every excuse to start trouble, staged a great demonstration in Berlin against the government's measure putting the workmen's councils on a legal basis. Thousands of them undertook to force their way into the reichstag and Noske's police, patiently resisting for a time, finally opened fire with machine guns and rifles. About forty of the rioters were killed and scores wounded. The government openly accused the independent members of the reichstag with aiding in the attack, asserting some of them went to the windows of the building and motioned the mob on. Next day it was officially announced that the demonstration was the beginning of an attempt to start a general revolution which was to be led by radical government officials.

Ever since the signing of the armistice Germany has fostered the idea that the reds were likely to get control of that country unless it were given milder terms by the allies, and some correspondents have insisted that such reports could not be believed. This latest apparent revolt will give some support to the German appeals for leniency and to the insidious, cleverly worded editorials of certain American metropolitan papers which argue that the reparations commission must treat Germany gently and permit her to regain her old strength in order that she may successfully stand between the bolsheviks of Russia and western Europe. If the German press represents the German nation, what it would do with its regained strength is made very clear by the articles published after the exchange of ratifications of the treaty. The burden of them was recovery of all the nation had lost, and Revenge with a big R.

The allied nations have been disposed to regard Poland as the real bulwark against the bolshevik flood, and Poland so considers herself. Last week Secretary of War Baker recommended to the state department that the United States furnish surplus military supplies to Poland to help her in repelling the bolsheviks. General Bliss appeared before the house ways and means committee to discuss a proposed loan of $150,000,000 for food relief for Europe, and declared that if the loan were made this country should call on the allied governments to contribute their surplus military supplies to Poland because that nation alone could prevent the bolsheviks from swamping western Europe. The Poles, he added, are poorly equipped as to everything, while the soviet armies are well trained, well equipped and well led, and outnumber the Poles.

The imminent return of the 8,000 Americans in Siberia is again promised, and apparently it is high time. A correspondent at Harbin says an American detachment in trans-Balka recently fought with troops of General Semenov, commander of the all-Russian army, and took an armored train from them. Two of the Americans were killed. The Czechoslovaks, to aid whom the Yanks went to Siberia, have had frequent clashes with Semenov's men.

The bolsheviks have continued their forward movement in the Caucasus and along the Black sea, and now comes news of a new movement in that part of the world which they are said to be supporting. Enver Pasha, who formerly was minister of war of Turkey and was elected king of Kurdistan, has started what is called a bolshevik revolt in Turkestan, Afghanistan and Baluchistan and for which the government at Moscow has contributed large sums of money. Enver's ultimate aim, it is said, is India. Those who understand conditions in the countries mentioned assert this is not a genuine bolshevik movement, but is directed against Great Britain. However that may be, it is likely to cause the British considerable trouble.

The Adriatic problem seems about to be solved, and in a way quite opposite to that on which President Wilson insisted. Mutual concessions have been agreed upon, and though neither Italy nor Jugoslavia is wholly satisfied, probably both will yield. By the arrangement, Fiume is to be governed by a municipal council under the advice of an Italian high commissioner and a small independent state will surround the city. Italy is given control over the city of Zara but abandons her demand for the neutralization of the Dalmatian coast. She is granted a mandate over Albania, but will modify her boundary claims in favor of Serbia. The Slovenes of Jugoslavia so strongly opposed some features of the settlement that the country's delegation felt inclined to reject the proposal, whereupon Lloyd George and Clemenceau told the government at Belgrade that it must say yes or no to the Italian offer at once. The French, British and Italian premiers on Thursday handed the conditions of peace to the Hungarian delegation in Paris. There was no ceremony. Ambassador Wallace and the Japanese ambassador were present.

Secretary of Labor Wilson says that every alien who advocates the overthrow of the American government by force or who belongs to an organization holding such views will be deported "as fast as we can get the ships." But each of them will be given a fair hearing, he added. In New York Federal Judge Knox has caused the federal officials some worry by ruling that those held in deportation proceedings must be released on bail immediately. Immigration authorities say this would make it almost impossible to get cases against many of the radicals. The government officials are now eager for legislation that will permit them to handle properly those reds who are citizens. The senate passed the Sterling sedition bill for this purpose, but the house considers it too stringent in some particulars and is formulating one of its own. The chief objection to the Sterling measure was it put too much power in the hands of the postmaster general, virtually re-establishing war-time censorship of publications.

John Barleycorn turned up his toes on Friday. At eight o'clock that morning the forces of the directors of federal prohibition were afield all over the country looking for violators of the constitutional amendment which went into effect. The day dreaded by so many Americans was preceded by several events that caused wet preliminary distress. The Supreme court destroyed one of their hopes by refusing to permit the New Jersey liquor dealers to institute original proceedings in that court to test the constitutionality of the prohibition amendment. The court decided it had no jurisdiction. Next the internal revenue office announced that after Friday no liquor might be kept except in government bonded warehouses or in homes. A general movement of bottles and jugs from club lockers and hotels to residences began forthwith, and the officials were kind enough not to enforce the provisions against the transportation of intoxicants while it was in progress. Then along came Prohibition Commissioner Kremer with a ruling that fruit juices and ciders came under the dry ban if they contain more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol and that the penalties are the same as in the case of stronger liquors.

Presidential politics is humming these days, and the contest among the candidates for the head of the ticket, especially the Republican ticket, is growing mighty lively. The managers and scouts of each of the chief contenders are hustling around after delegations and the headquarters are the scenes of almost continuous conferences. General Wood, Governor Lowden and Senator Harding seem to be leading the field, but the others are not idle or hopeless by any means. It is a notable fact that women are taking a prominent part in the campaign. The Democrats are still resting under the shadow of the third-term possibility.

Herbert Hoover is looked at with the appraising eyes of the Warwicks of both parties, for his political affiliation has been uncertain. Now Julius Barnes, his close friend, declares Mr. Hoover is a "progressive Republican" who "will never allow himself to be a candidate for high office nor allow his friends to make an effort in his behalf, unless there shall come such indisputable evidence of such spontaneous and universal popular demand that it will overwhelm his present resolution not to enter politics." From which it may be deduced that Mr. Hoover is almost in the conventional receptive mood.

FRAME BUNGALOW MAKES COZY HOME

Design Will Appeal to Family of Modest Means.

PROVIDES FIVE NICE ROOMS

Economical to Build and Contains Ample Room for the Average-Sized Family—Exterior Is Attractive.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

In the long winter evenings there is no more enjoyable occupation for the prospective home builder than studying home-building designs. When those who intend to build next spring get hold of a book of home designs they will find that the various exterior views and the floor plans that accompany them are most interesting. The ingenuity the architects have brought into play to provide homes that will suit every need and every idea of how a house should look and how the rooms should be arranged is really remarkable.

But aside from the pleasure derived from this study it is well worth while. Building a home is a move that should not be taken without a careful consideration of all its various phases. There is no economy in erecting a house that is larger than the family requires; neither is there satisfaction in finding that a home is too small. By first fixing the number of rooms wanted, and then inspecting the designs with that number of rooms, the home builder will be able to devote his attention to the exteriors of these houses.

There are many such books as have been described published, and can be obtained from lumber dealers and contractors, or from architects.

For the family that is not large and has not a considerable amount of money to invest in a home, the design that accompanies this article is a good one. Its exterior is most attractive; it is not costly to build, and it contains sufficient room for three or four persons. These are three advantages that will appeal to every home builder.

This frame bungalow is 24 by 44 feet in size, is set on a concrete foundation, has a full basement, and the roof is so shaped that there is room in the attic for a bedroom, or playroom. The first floor, as is shown by the plan that accompanies the exterior view, contains five good-sized rooms—living and dining rooms, kitchen and two bedrooms.

All of these rooms are arranged to secure the maximum of comfort and convenience with a minimum of housework. It will be noted that the three living rooms, or rooms that are used most, are grouped at the front of the house, while the two bedrooms adjoin each other at the rear, with the bathroom so placed that it is convenient to every room.

The living room, extending across the front of the house, is a large room and a cheerful room. Its dimensions are 28 by 12 feet, and light is admitted from three sides. The triple windows at the front will appeal to every home-loving woman. The fireplace, placed in the corner of the room, adds to the cheerfulness of the room, and it can be imagined how much comfort will be derived from this feature during the cold weather.

Connected with the living room by a double-arched opening, is the dining room, also large. It is 12 feet wide and 17 feet long, and is well lighted by a series of four windows in the outside wall. Off the dining room is the kitchen, 10 by 10 feet, which has a door leading to the artistic little side porch shown on the perspective.

A second door leads from the dining room into a short hall which connects the two bedrooms and bathroom. One bedroom is ten feet square, and the other 12 by 13 feet. From this brief description and by studying the floor plan, it will readily be seen that this is an extraordinarily comfortable and convenient arrangement.

Coupled with this good interior is an exceptionally attractive exterior. While the roofs of this bungalow, on both the house itself and over the porch, would come under the general term of a gable, there is a wide overhang that is usually called a "hip" roof, which makes the roof lines exceedingly graceful. The sides of the house are of shingles, and with the lattice-work that is alongside the small porches are attractive.

This is only one of the many designs for frame bungalows that have been drawn by architects and from which thousands of homes have been built. But it is an excellent example of this style of architecture, and is a home that every builder will find most satisfactory, both in appearance and in interior arrangement.

While everyone knows, especially if he is considering a home-building project for the coming season, that there will be an immense amount of house construction next spring and summer, it may be well to sound a warning. That warning is that if the home is wanted during the season, the time to select the design and let the contract for the house is now. If the home builder delays until spring, he will find

Beavers' Most Marvelous Accomplishment, Building of Dams to Retain Water

"And now we come to the most marvelous of the beaver's accomplishments—the feat of building a dam, and we shall understand a point which has possibly puzzled many of us, and that is the reason for building this dam," says Raymond L. Ditmars in Boys' Life. In the course of an article on "Animal Engineers."

"Work on the dam is now in order, and this means additional clearings, as a great amount of timber is necessary. The banks of the stream begin to show quite an open character, as the saplings fall, are cut up and the sections towed to the site of the dam.

"During this work another interesting characteristic of the beaver is displayed, the animal's thrift and elimination of waste. Its favorite food is green bark and this is easily obtained. Many branches are stripped by the broad incisor teeth and for a time these lie in confusion along the banks—but not for long. The foundation of the dam rises in much the same fashion as that of the beaver's house of tooth-bewn timber and once the outline is established there is a general cleanup on shore. Sticks that have been gnawed free of bark are simply carted to the water and turned loose as is much other debris in the shape of fine, loose brush, left over from the larger cutting. This material floats down-stream and lodges against the framework of the dam, where it is worked into the crevices, and is followed by water-soaked materials, much mud and wet leaves from the stream bottom. The dam is soon effective and the stream begins to rise. The beavers now work at the base of the dam, making it broader by packing it with mud and producing the same foundation of generous breadth at the bottom with an inward curve toward the top that we note in the most approved feats of human engineering in retaining and raising bodies of water."

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

"The hand that rocks the cradle," but there is no such hand. It is bad to rock the baby, they would have us understand. So the cradle's but a relic of the former foolish days.

When they lunched they bounced them, those long ago. The Washingtons and Jeff ames, you know.

They warn us that the baby is a muddled brain. If we dandle him or rock carefully refrain. He must lie in one position or never awake. Or his chance to grow to a blasted while he's young.

Ah, to think how they rocked their mothers long ago. The Franklins and the P. Hamiltons, you know. We must feed the baby on a diet that is made. And the food that he is measured out and weighed.

He may bellow to inform us that he is "satisfied." But he couldn't grow to a fine young man. His wants were all supplied. Think how foolish nursing was. The Shakespeares and the Luthers and the Bonapartes, you know.

We are given a great mission, we are here, today on earth. To bring forth a race of giants and to guard them from their birth. To insist upon their freedom from the rocking that was bad. For our parents and their parents, scrambling all the brains they had. Ah! had they been fed by schedule, would they have been stunted so? The Websters and the Lincolns and the Grants and Lees, you know? —F. A. W., in Indianapolis News.

Physician Declares Colors Have Influence on Nerves

A New York physician who gives more credit to nature than he takes for himself in the cures he has wrought is a great believer in the effect of colors on the human race. Nature is the best teacher in these things, he says. You will find in your surroundings in the country no black and very little red. Blue and yellow are combined in the restful, reviving green. There is no doubt, the doctor contends, that the wearing of black has an evil effect on both health and spirits. It is the color of Saturn, the planet of gloom, misfortune, fatality and other evil things. If one wishes to be happy and brilliant, blue is the color to wear. The doctor says that the spirit of evil hates blue intensely and flies at the sight of it. Blue also calms the nerves and therefore it is a good color for room decorations.

Great Musicians of India Care Not for Worldly Things

To the Hindu, music, like sculpture and painting, is a sacred art. Music originated from Siva, one of the Hindu Trinity, and Saraswati is the goddess of music and of learning in general. As people look upon music as something sacred, so it has become a highly specialized art. Amateur musicians are not much encouraged. The public seem to say, "Do it well or don't do it at all; don't play false with music; it is too sacred for light treatment." The great musicians of India are generally ascetics. They care not for name, fame or wealth. They live a life of comparative poverty. The Hindu is of the opinion that a voluptuous or a luxury-loving person cannot be a great musician.

HAS PLETHORA OF SUNDAYS

Little Town of Sarajevo, in Bosnia, Observes Three Days of the Week as Holy.

Sunday is observed three times a week in Sarajevo, Bosnia. Because there are 35,000 Turks in the city, Friday is the first Sunday. Then all the Turkish stores close and one goes twice a day to some of the hundred mosques whose slender minarets gleam white against the green background of the hills.

Because 200 years ago a group of Spanish Jews settled in Bosnia, Saturday is Sunday for many Sarajevoans. Then all the Jewish stores are closed and the Jews of the city crowd the big yellow synagogue of the main street.

Because all the rest of the 54,000 inhabitants of Sarajevo and hundreds of peasants from the hills around are Serbs and Bosnians, following both the Roman Catholic and the Greek Orthodox beliefs, the Sunday sabbath is the biggest holy day of all in Sarajevo. All the stores except the Turkish are closed. The churches are crowded with people dressed in every style from the latest Belgrade fashions to homespun trousers for both men and women, with huge beaded shoes and woolen turbans. After that modern Sarajevo walks about the modern quarters and old-fashioned Sarajevo dances the "kolo" in the big square of the crowded Turkish bazaar.

Johnny Was Literal.
Little Johnny was discovered in the library busily snipping away at the open dictionary.

"Johnny," asked his father, "what in the world are you doing?"

"You see, father," answered the bright and shining light of the household, "today at the school the teacher said there was no such word as 'fail' and so I am cutting it out of the dictionary."

What Profiteering Leads To.
"I see where a tenant was arrested for beating his landlord with a club."

"Well?"

"He must be a smart fellow."

"Why so?"

"He demands a trial by jury—seems pretty sure no 12 men good and true would decide a case against a tenant and in favor of a landlord nowadays."

—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Out of accumulated capital have arisen all the successes of industry and applied science, all the comforts and ameliorations of the common lot. Upon it the world must depend for the process of reconstruction in which all have to share.

—JAMES J. HILL.

The Successful Farmer Raises Bigger Crops

and cuts down costs by investment in labor-saving machinery.

Good prices for the farmers' crops encourage new investment, more production and greater prosperity.

But the success of agriculture depends on the growth of railroads—the modern beasts of burden that haul the crops to the world's markets.

The railroads—like the farms—increase their output and cut down unit costs by the constant investment of new capital.

With fair prices for the work they do, the railroads are able to attract new capital for expanding their facilities.

Rates high enough to yield a fair return will insure railroad growth, and prevent costly traffic congestion, which invariably results in poorer service at higher cost.

National wealth can increase only as our railroads grow.

Poor railroad service is dear at any price. No growing country can long pay the price of inadequate transportation facilities.

R. I. WINS POINT IN ANTI-DRY FIGHT

Supreme Court to Pass on 18th Amendment and Enforcement Act.

BIG RAID IN NEW YORK

Federal Agents Search Saloons and Warehouses—$5,000,000 in Liquor Seized—Arrests in Kentucky

Washington.—The supreme court has decided to pass on the validity of both the federal prohibition amendment, which became operative last Saturday, and the act of Congress prescribing the manner of its enforcement.

The court's decision will be given on proceedings which are to be instituted by the state of Rhode Island, which was given permission to bring an original suit. Solicitor General King for the government announced that he immediately would prepare and file a motion asking for dismissal of the Rhode Island case on the ground that the court lacked jurisdiction.

The permission was granted by Chief Justice White, without comment or without fixing any time for hearing arguments in the case.

Motions to bring the suit were filed by Atty-Gen. Rice of Rhode Island, in response to a resolution adopted by the state Legislature authorizing him to take steps to test both amendment and enforcement act.

In briefs filed in support of the motion, Rhode Island authorities questioned the validity of the ratification of the amendment and alleged that it was an interference with the state police powers and a violation of the 5th constitutional amendment. They also alleged that it was "unsupportable, unconstitutional and void."

Rhode Island was one of the states that refused to ratify.

$5,000,000 IN LIQUOR SEIZED

Federal Agents Search New York
Saloons and Warehouses

New York—Whiskey, wines and cordials valued at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 have been seized here by government prohibition agents. About 100 federal officers have been searching saloons, warehouses and piers for contraband liquors.

James Shelvin, supervising prohibition officer, said that the raids would be continued and larger quantities of intoxicating beverages would be seized during the next few days. He was unable to say what disposal the government would make of the confiscated liquor which is being stored in six bonded warehouses under heavy guard.

The largest single seizure made by the government agents was 45,000 gallons of high-grade whiskey, which were taken from a lighter that had been sunk in the Hudson river. A wrecking company had just raised the boat out of the water when the agents appeared and took charge of the cargo. Fifteen barrels of the liquor which floated down the river were closely pursued by a police boat and prohibition agents and captured.

At pier 22 in the East river, 15,000 cases of bottled whiskey were confiscated. Other large seizures were made in Brooklyn, including 1000 drums of grain alcohol and 2000 cases of vermouth.

Government agents visited saloons throughout the city and seized all alcoholic beverages found. Others made a round of warehouses, seizing private stocks of neglected owners who had failed to heed the advice to keep their liquors in their homes.

Squads of prohibition agents were assigned to the offices of railroad dispatchers, checking up on eastward movements of trains known to have some carloads of whiskey. Every drop will be seized when the trains reach New York and orders have been issued to prevent the owners of the liquor from halting the shipments.

JUST A LITTLE SMILE

A BACONIAN COLLOQUY.

"Why do you let Bill Shakespeare take the credit for your work?"
"Well," replied Francis Bacon, "Bill is a practical theatrical manager. I'm only a philosopher and a poet trying to hold a government job. What'd I do if the actors were to decide to call a strike on me?"

Without Turning a Hair.
Long-haired Crank—Do you believe in bolshevism?

Gentleman with a Cane—Certainly not!
Long-haired Crank—Why not, are you a capitalist?

Gentleman with a Cane—No; I'm a barber.—The Bystander.

SENSITIVE.

"Hello, old man, I hear you've bought a house in the country."

"What if I have. You don't have to rub it in, do you?"

It Never Happened.
Who ever heard this old world say in a contented tone,
"We're doing pretty well today;
Let well enough alone!"

A New Idea.

He—Tillie, did you ever think of marryin'?

Tillie—Why, no; the subject has never entered my thoughts.

He—Well, goodby, I'm sorry.

Tillie—Wait a minute—don't go. You've set me thinkin'.

All Brought Appetites.

"Politeness costs nothing."
"That's a mistake," said Judd Tun-kins, with emphasis. "Just by way of belin' pleasant and friendly I asked a bunch of my city relatives to visit me."

No Economy.

"You have been burning the wind!" protested the policeman.

"Maybe I was," answered Mr. Chug-gins; "but not enough of it to make any difference in my gasoline bill."

Youthful by Contrast.

Landlady—Why are you so happy today?

Boarder—I think it is because I feel quite young in contrast with this chicken.

Paradoxical.

"Do you believe in dealing with all children gently?"

"No, indeed. There are some kids you can't handle with gloves."

Always So.

"What effect had the hint of a secret on the girls?"

"A telling effect."

PROBABLY NOT.

"The circus has cut out thrillers."

"Couldn't compete with the movies, I s'pose."

Intensive Rhetoric.

When epithets are launched so free in oratorical games,
We find there really can be High art in calling names.

He Calculates Time by It.

"Does your watch keep good time?"

"Splendid. I can depend on it all ways to be about 15 minutes fast."

Another Line of Business.

"For years and years I wrote poetry," remarked the affluent looking stranger. "I wrote it until I was forced by cold and hunger to take up a commercial line."

"What was that?"

"Writing verses."

Too Vague.

He—My dear girl, don't let this meeting of ours do like one of a legislative body's—adjourn sine die.

She—What's that?

He—Without naming the day.

The South Congregational Church executive committee of Pittsfield, Mass., recommended to the church at the 70th annual meeting that dancing be encouraged after church suppers and little entertainments.

The Ocean Echo, one of the largest amusement pavilions on the New England seacoast, was burned by fire of undetermined origin. The property was valued at $125,000 and the loss is partly covered by insurance.

Two forged checks, each for $36.50, were passed in Brockton, and when the fact was discovered there was immediate activity in police circles, as the checks bore the forged signatures of Asst-Dist-Atty., William F. Kane.

Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, former commander of the 26th division, will be toastmaster at the annual banquet of Connecticut Commandery, Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States, to be held in Hartford, Jan. 27.

Representative Sawyer of Ware, Mass., introduced into the Legislature an order for the creation of a special commission to investigate and report on the feasibility of the purchase of Deer Island by the state from the city of Boston for state prison purposes.

If plans work out all right the University of Vermont will have a team of five men at the Dartmouth winter carnival, which is scheduled for February 12, 13 and 14, at Hanover, N. H. The Vermont men will compete in ski and snowshoe events, it is planned.

Three-fifths of the small towns in Vermont are threatened with bankruptcy before the end of 1920, said Gov. Percival W. Clement, in an address before the 50th annual Dairy-men's and 27th annual Sugarmakers' conventions in combined session in Burlington.

Albert O. Brown of Manchester, a candidate for nomination for Governor, made the opening address as president of the convention. His subject was "Taxation." Deaths and resignations during the recess made 31 changes in the personnel of the convention.

Francis P. Ewing has just finished 45 years of service as a clerk in the Suffolk superior court, Boston. On Jan. 15, 1875, he entered the superior court clerk's office as a minor employee and in a short time became appointed an assistant clerk by the court, a position he has held for many years.

Through Stone & Webster of Boston the Hartford Electric Light Company has arranged for the purchase of the big Connecticut Power Company, which lately has been operating a gigantic hydro-electric power on the Housatonic river and western Connecticut under a very liberal charter with state wide powers.

Twenty resolutions, including one to give New Hampshire women full suffrage immediately without waiting for national ratification of the federal amendment, awaited the action of the constitutional convention. Work was resumed immediately, as all committees were held over from adjournment in June, 1918.

Over 50 per cent of the milk received in Metropolitan Boston, at the present time is from Vermont farms and that probably a tenth as much is shipped from the western side of that state to supply the New York markets said F. H. Bickford, president of the Vermont Dairy-men's association at the meeting of the Dairy-men.

Military officials in Rhode Island are much concerned regarding the condition of the cavalry horses that were received in Providence for troop C. of the new national guard outfit. One animal was dead, three have died since and several others are now under the care of the military veterinary, Dr. Jones. The shipment consisted of 32 horses, sent from Camp Lee, Va., in two cars, one of them closed and the other an open cattle car.

The best showing of any fair in the state of Vermont was made by the Rutland Fair Association, which made a profit of $9,500 in five days.

Jarvis V. Burrell, 91, one of the oldest Free Masons in Massachusetts, is dead at his home in East Bridgewater, Mass. He had started on a short walk, but had taken only a few steps when he collapsed and died shortly afterwards. He was employed by the Garver Cotton Gin Company in a responsible position for many years.

Both Thomas C. O'Brien, penal institutions commissioner of Boston, and Edward C. R. Bagley, deputy of corrections for the Commonwealth, urged the members of the Boston Woman's Civic Club to help do away with the county penal institutions of the State and place all inmates of such institutions under state administration and control.

Master builders of New Bedford have granted a voluntary increase in wages of ten cents an hour to carpenters, bringing the new rate to 90 cents. Carpenters are to ask for $1 an hour and a 40-hour week, to take effect May 1, as part of a State-wide campaign for an eight-hour day and five days a week, with double time for overtime.

By the will of Joseph Hewlin of Brockton, filed for the probate court, a trust fund of $200,000 is established, to be turned over after the death of his wife to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The sum of 20,000 is to be set apart from this fund for scholarships at the institute, preference to be given to scholars from the Brockton public schools.

Providence retail liquor dealers are planning steps to fight the prohibition regime to the limit. In spite of the evaporatory constitutional amendment which kills dries the nation, they plan to keep their doors unlocked, bars polished and free of dust, and cash registers tinkling. Hotels, however, will not attempt to keep up the sorrowful pretence.

Charles H. Cragin, 53, of East Boston, Mass., re-enlisted in the United States navy, after completing a service record of 29 years, by signing for a four year term at the local recruiting station. He has received three good conduct medals during his service, and stated that he has never been sick a day while in the navy. He enlisted with a rating of chief machinist's mate.

As Mrs. Fred B. Wood, beaten unconscious in her home on County road, Barrington, R. I., struggled with a burglar, she succeeded in knocking the receiver from a telephone, and her screams for help were heard by the operator in Warren, some two miles distant. Two telephone company employees went in an automobile to her aid, but did not reach the home in time to prevent the escape of the burglar.

Antonio Di Donato hadn't seen his wife, Lucia, in 22 years till the other day when they were introduced at the immigration station on Long wharf, Boston. She had arrived on the Celtic from Naples to help him make a home and brought their daughter, Teresa, whom he had never seen. The reunion took place in detention quarters and tears of happiness flowed freely while the formalities were taking place.

The absence of spirituous liquors in Boston has made a marked influence on the criminal records of the city during the six months ending Dec. 31, in comparison with the figures of the same period in 1918. The arrests for drunkenness showed a 50 per cent reduction. In 1918 there were arrested for drunkenness 28,860, of whom 1991 were women. During the past six months, 8,920 persons, 532 being women, were arrested for this offence.

William H. Brooks, an attorney, petitioned the Mass. Legislature to fix the salary of the chief justice of the supreme judicial court at $15,500 a year, and that of his associates at $15,000. Those judges are now paid $10,000 annually, with an extra $500 for the chief justice. The same petitioner asks that the salary of the chief justice of the superior court shall be established at $12,500, and that of his associates at $12,000. They are now paid $8,500 and $8,000.

The estimated state tax for 1920 will be $9,000,000 or $1,000,000 more than it was last year and the year before. The estimate is contained in the state budget for this year, submitted to the Legislature by Gov. Coolidge, of Mass. The expenditures recommended by the Governor approximate $39,000,000, including the cost of projects authorized by the recent extra session of the Legislature or recommended in the Governor's inaugural address. Against this approximate total are put receipts that will probably amount to $29,488,950. It is assumed, however, that expenses incurred during the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1919, will exceed appropriations by more than $2,000,000, carrying the sum it will be necessary to raise by taxation during the current year up to very nearly $42,000,000.

Quitting the American Legion because the commander and various members of the local post acted as escort to Eamonn DeValera during his visit to Hartford, Jan. 3, Major Emerson G. Taylor declared in his letter of resignation, accepted that he considers it foreign to what he "supposed were fundamental principles of the American Legion," for the commander and members of the post "to act as escort of honor for the representatives of a foreign revolutionary movement."

—George Smith, motorman on the local street railway, is taking a vacation.

EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

The funeral of Mrs. Deborah R. Hayden who died last Friday was held at her late home, 15 Canterbury street Sunday afternoon. The service was conducted jointly by Rev. Frank Kingdon of the East Weymouth Methodist Church and Rev. Arthur S. Emig of the Porter Methodist Church. Mrs. G. Ralph Young, Mrs. Harry Mattson, Myron P. Ford and G. Ralph Young sang. The committal service of Reynolds W. R. C. was read by the officers of the corps. A delegation was there from the East Weymouth W. C. T. U. Interment was in the Fairmount Cemetery, East Weymouth.

A class of 24 received the degree at Weymouth Council, Knights of Columbus on Sunday afternoon.

James Howard who died in Quincy Jan. 18, was brought here for burial on Wednesday, interment being in the Fairmount Cemetery.

Monday night at about 8.30 the burglar alarm sounded on the East Weymouth Savings Bank. Officers Boyle and Burbank who quickly arrived on the scene found that the alarm circuit had been closed by the action of the continued dampness on the wood of the bank door. The defect was soon repaired by Burbank who is a skilled electrician.

A woman or young lady is wanted for office work by the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript. Please apply today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ferris Peers and son of Hingham were the guests of Mr. Peers' parents on East street on Sunday.

John Henry Mrgan made a quick trip to Hartford, Ct., Friday. He returned Sunday.

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

The pay-as-you-enter plan on the street railway is decidedly uncomfortable to the travelling public. The extremely cold weather of recent days has not helped to make friends for the publicly owned street railway.

Passengers have been compelled under the present method to stand shivering in the cold or pouring rain until each had filed slowly by the conductor guarding the fare box. Because people cannot always be prepared with the exact amount required, considerable time is consumed making change.

This needless discomfort can be avoided by the pay-as-you-leave method which has been successfully tried out in other places and ought to be done here. The old slogan should be discarded for the new, "Public be served."

The C. M. A. basketball team was defeated by the North Cohasset quintet at the West Corner hall, last Saturday, in one of the fastest games on record. The score in the last half of the game was tied according to the scorer, while in reality the Weymouth team was one point in the lead. The hard playing to score a basket lost the ball for the C. M. A. and a North Cohasset man recovered it, shooting the winning points in the last seconds of the game. A return game has been arranged to take place at the C. M. A. gymnasium on the 30th of this month.

A fast game was played at the gym last night between the Gizzy Ghosts, of Brockton and the C. M. A. first team, a victory for the C. M. A. 49 to 26. The second team played the dance held after the game was a complete success and many new faces were seen on the dance floor.

The second team, becoming ambitious, arranged a game with the Aino Five of Cambridgeport tomorrow night. The game will be played at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. building. The Aino five was recently defeated on the home floor by the Weymouth quintet.

Although Humphrey, one of the C. M. A. players received an injury to his nose, to the extent of three broken places, at the Cambridge game, he has been at every game, with his suit, in readiness to go in should it become necessary to remove a player.

An example of the fine boxing material turned out in past years by the C. M. A., is found in Freddie Webb, who has been booked to box Charlie "Kid" Miller at Brockton tonight.

Don't forget the double bill of basketball and in addition, the dance, to be held next Friday night at the gym.

Louis Daniels is still acting as captain of the second team although he has been compelled to remain out of the past few games under advice of his doctor.

Nothing has been heard from the North Easton team which defeated the C. M. A. last week, in regard to a rubber game, which was to have been played on some neutral floor. The Weymouth boys are confident that the result will be more after the fashion of the game played with North Easton on the home floor, should such a game be arranged.

The second team defeated the Highland Club of South Weymouth last Friday at the gym. A relief was sent in at the last half of play against Bill Dwyer. Bill seemed to be worrying a little over the change.

All aboard! for Brockton tomorrow night. Ample transportation facilities will be provided.

THE JITNEY CASE

Judge Crosby of the Supreme court heard evidence Wednesday and reserved his decision in a bill in equity brought by the North Weymouth Social Club against Bradford Hawes and the other Selectmen of Weymouth to restrain them from causing criminal prosecutions against the club for alleged violation of a regulation of the town requiring a license to operate jitneys.

Judge Crosby intimated that under a well known chancery rule it was doubtful if the supreme court sitting in equity had the right to grant a restraining order in a case where the offence was punishable as a crime.

MARXIAN DOCTRINE

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

Having been a regular subscriber to your paper for some length of time, and being an advocate of justice, I would like very much, if possible, to glean some information and feel that I might be able to ascertain the information in question through the generosity of your paper.

My attention was called to an article in the issue of Jan. 16, quoting a certain speaker, and the attitude he has taken regarding the doctrine of Karl Marx. He makes a statement that the Marxian precepts seek to make the Nationalization of woman a living issue.

The definition of the word "Nationalize" is, public, general, not private. Although the speakers meaning may be veiled to a great majority of people, but when sifted down to concrete facts it means free love.

The works of Marx as far as I have read, embrace only the industrial realm, and I have read nothing that deals with the sexes directly.

Now, if the learned gentleman will give the desired information through the courtesy of your progressive and fair-minded paper, namely, what volume or special work of Marx I could find the Nationalization of woman in, I will thank him, and will be deeply grateful for the effort he has made in pointing this out to be a fact.

And should this information ring true I will renounce the Marxian doctrine for all time. Trusting this will be accepted in the spirit in which it is written I am and remain, a seeker of the truth.

F. H. FLOYD

CLUB and SOCIAL

—Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Spinney of Weymouth, Florida, entertained a party of friends from Ohio, Iowa, Weymouth and Randolph at their home on Jan. 11, the occasion being the 33rd anniversary of their marriage. Among those who attended were Mrs. Ella Richards and Mrs. Harriet B. Bachelder of this town who are spending the winter at Miami, Florida. The latter was present at the wedding 33 years ago. The party spent a very happy time at the charming villa by the southern sea.

—The whist party which Daughters of the Nation were to give Feb. 28 at the home of Mrs. Gale, Webb street, indefinitely postponed.

—Mr. and Mrs. Scott MacQuain of Braintree Highlands are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Tuesday, January 13, at their new home. Mrs. MacQuain was formerly Miss Alice Scotcher of South Weymouth.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Ralph of Pleasant street announce the birth of a daughter, Monday, January 12.

—The next meeting of the Village Study Club will be held at the Fogg Library, Monday evening, Jan. 26. The subject is "Mexico," and papers will be presented by Mrs. Scudder, Mr. Elser and Mr. Joy.

—Mrs. Madeline Merry, who has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hocking, has returned to her home in Pittsfield.

—Mrs. James H. Flint of Weymouth is president of the Massachusetts Maine Daughters who will hold a ball on Saturday evening at the Copley Plaza, Boston, to help finance charitable objectives.

—Miss Grace Shaw has returned to her home on Union street after spending two weeks visit with friends in Canton.

—Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., invites the public to an open meeting at Pythian hall Monday Jan. 26, at 2:30 P. M. A member of the Salvation Army who has been overseas will address the meeting on his work while in France and a Lasse is expected to give a collection which will be of interest to everybody interested in the war.

—The Ladies Social Whist club will meet at the home of Mrs. Karl Granger next Tuesday evening.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor were tendered a surprise party at their new home at 12 Beals street, North Weymouth, Tuesday evening. The hours were spent in a very social manner with games and music. A salad supper was served with cakes and ice. Friends were present from Quincy, Wollaston, Jamaica Plain, and the Weymouths. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were pleasantly surprised with a beautiful gift.

—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Tenney of Braintree are at Augusta, Georgia, for the winter.

—Fred Bloom, a wealthy oil magnate from the West has visited his brothers Mr. Morris and I. Bloom. He left for New York Monday night and will sail to Europe on the Mauretania. He is taking a large amount of food and shoes for the refugees.

—Mrs. John H. Clinton has been spending a few days in New York.

—Miss Mollie F. Hurley, of the Hurley School of Dancing at Brockton, announces a dancing class for children to be opened at G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth, Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 4.

—Mr. and Mrs. T. Thomas Baldwin are spending two weeks in the Adirondacks.

—Mrs. Milledge Bean was pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening when on arriving home from a visit to friends she found a host of her friends gathered at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred C. Porter, 35 Grant street, Quincy. The affair took the form of a kitchen shower and the young bride received a quantity of presents, all of which are needed in the kitchen. In addition to the shower Mrs. Gertrude Frizzell very pleasantly presented Mrs. Bean with a handsome cut glass water set, a gift from her fellow employees of the Eastern Mass. Street R. R. Co. Mrs. Bean before her marriage was Hazel Collins of Standish road, North Weymouth.

—John Herman Loud of Weymouth will give an organ recital before the Quincy Women's Club next Tuesday at the old First church.

—The Ladies Auxiliary of the King Cove Boat Club tendered a surprise party to their retiring president, Mrs. Hannah Abbott last Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Agnes Abbott of Laurel street, East Weymouth.

A Covered dish supper was served. Mrs. Johnson acted as toast mistress and the toast was drunk with coffee. The tables being cleared, the following musical and literary program was given: entertainer, Mrs. Gertie Souther; vocal duet, Mrs. Place and Mrs. Hayden; recitations, Bertha Austin; toe dancing, Sallie Parker accompanied by Bertha Bailey; community singing, Mrs. Bertha Leach, secretary of the club, presented Mrs. Abbott with a handsome brooch in recognition of her faithful services during the past year.

—Miss Ina McCulloch is in Chicago where she will stop until the first of May.

—The annual musicale of the Philergians of Braintree in Cochato Hall had a large audience. The program was furnished by a quintet from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Miss Edith Waye as contralto soloist. The affair was given under the direction of the music committee, of which Mrs. Charles W. Rogers is chairman.

—Mrs. Gardner Alden of Sea street is in New York for a few weeks visit with her daughter.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Macker entertained a party of friends and relatives at their home on Sunday, in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary.

—E. I. Farrington lectured before the Ornamental Growers Association at the Biltmore Hotel, New York City, last Wednesday on the subject of the Arnold Arboretum of Boston.

MONDAY CLUB

An open meeting of the Monday Club was held Jan. 19, in Masonic Temple at 2:30 with Mrs. Jewell presiding. There was a large audience present including thirty guests.

Mrs. Gardner Alden, who was a delegate to the conference of the civics and public health departments of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, held Jan. 15, in South Weymouth, read a very interesting and instructive paper in regard to that meeting.

Miss Ruth Benson of South Weymouth gave soprano solos, accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Fiske, pianist.

The speaker of the afternoon was the authoress, Mrs. Margaret Deland, who gave an address on "The Spirit of the Women of France." To all those present it certainly must have been an inspiration and pleasure to listen to Mrs. Deland as she spoke and illustrated the courage, endurance and sacrifice of the French women, old and young, during the recent war.

A very successful food sale was held in charge of Mrs. Henry W. Dyer chairman, who was assisted by Mrs. E. R. Sampson, Mrs. W. A. Pratt, Mrs. H. Pratt and Mrs. C. J. Hollis.

The ushers were Mrs. C. E. Stiles, Mrs. A. Bryant, Mrs. C. W. Joy, Mrs. A. A. Corthell and Miss C. Robinson.

OLD COLONY CLUB

The social event of the season in South Weymouth was the annual Gentlemen's Night and Guest Night of the Old Colony Women's Club, observed at Fogg's Opera House, and largely attended by club members and friends.

Mrs. Frank E. Hanson, the president of the club, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Guy W. C. Hartt, Mrs. Arthur Taylor, Mrs. Elliott R. Scudder, Mrs. Elliott H. Gage, and Mrs. Nelson J. Gay.

During the social hour Mrs. Arthur B. Tirrell was the hostess, and had several assistants. They served cake and ice cream.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of "Character Sketches" by Miss Kate Ridgway, cornet solos by Frank Ventre, a World War Veteran, and selections by the orchestra.

Dancing closed the evening's program, an eventful one in the history of the Old Colony Club.

VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION

The Weymouth Visiting Nurse Association wish to thank the public for the generous response their canvassers have met with in the recent drive for members and donations. They also acknowledge the receipt of $1000, voted to be given them at the town meeting last March.

The association is five years old, still there exists among many of the town's people much misunderstanding how the work is conducted. The membership fee of $1.00 a year, which was paid by about 550 people this year, is a fund which helps to pay the expenses incurred in sending the nurse to patients less able to pay; it does not entitle members to a free attendance of the nurse's services. It is understood by most everybody that the nurse intends to visit the sickest patient first, or those most dependent for help. The nurse goes on Sundays and holidays only through a spirit of kindness. The directors desire it to be known that calls upon the nurse for her services on those days are not obligatory.

Those who have watched the growth of the work of the association at close range, realize the need of an assistant nurse to help maintain the present efficient service, also that the scope of the work may be enlarged, but in order to do this, there must be an assurance the financial needs will be met.

Weymouth has a population of 18,000. In the recent drive for the Red Cross, $2600 was raised. It is for a good cause, its worth is recognized, yet it does seem as if 1000 members should be assured for the town's own philanthropic work annually. Could this be done, with the additional money that is raised Tag Day, the officers of the association would feel they had the surety to broaden their labors.

—The officers, elect and appointive, of Abigail Adams Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F., were installed Wednesday evening by the district deputy president, Mrs. Addie R. Staples of Somerville. She was assisted by Mrs. Buckman as grand marshal; Mrs. Wolfe, warden; Mrs. Brooks, recording secretary; Mrs. Young, financial secretary; Mrs. Kenerson, treasurer; Mrs. Place, chaplain; Mrs. Eldredge, IG, and Mrs. Lagelle, OG. Preceding the installation a banquet was served by Mrs. Jennie Callahan, Mrs. Catherine Smith, Mrs. Annie Thomas and a corps of men waiters. The guests included Mrs. Elsie M. Barker of East Boston, president of the Rebekah Assembly, and Mrs. Ellen O. Duncan, president of the Boston lodges. The retiring noble grand, Mrs. Vinson, was the recipient of a past grand's collar, while the deputy and her marshal received cut glass dishes.

—Herman Jesse, of White street has left for Miami, Florida, where he will spend the winter.

—A woman or young lady is wanted for office work by the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript. Please apply today.

—Frank Whitman of Union street is confined to his home on Union street by illness.

—Mr. Osborne and family have moved into the tenement at 80 Pond street recently vacated by J. E. Ewell and family.

—William Slater recently employed at a local market has entered the fish business.

—John Field has accepted a position with the Gale-Sawyer Co.

—Richard Bradford has accepted a position as clerk at a local market.

—Mr. and Mrs. Marden and family of Dorchester have taken possession of the Jordan estate which they recently acquired.

—Miss Alice Derby has entered the Elmhurst sanatorium at Holbrook having been discharged from the Scobey Hospital, Boston.

—Mrs. Elton Sherman is seriously ill at her home on Main street.

—Word has been received by friends of Freeman Brown, a former resident, but now residing in National City, California, stating that he is improving from an attack of influenza.

—Mrs. Samuel Ware and daughter Martha, of Providence, R. I. have been the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Bicknell, on Bates avenue.

—A number of delegates from the Second Universalist church attended the Old Colony association's conference held at North Weymouth on Tuesday.

—Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Peardon have returned from Southboro where Mr. Peardon has been confined by illness.

—Foremen, manufacturers and workmen interested in the making of fine shoes and the co-operation of employer and the employee, met in South Weymouth Tuesday evening, with Henry McMahon presiding. There was a discussion on the subject "Should This Country Adopt Compulsory Training?" The negative side was led by R. H. Haviland and C. H. Thackeberry, while the affirmative leaders were Adolphus P. Poole and H. H. Richardson.

—The Old Colony Gentlemen's Driving Club has elected the following officers: Kimball A. Hersey, president; Charles H. Locke, vice president; Matthew C. Sprout, secretary-treasurer; J. Burton Reed, J. Wendall Totman, H. P. Hobart and G. C. Green, directors.

—John H. Green of 340 Pleasant street died on Wednesday. Funeral services will be held Saturday.

—Dennis Keefe of 526 Middle street died Thursday. Funeral services were held today.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

W. R. C. NOTES.

President Mrs. Mary E. Brassil extended New Years greetings to the members when she opened the meeting last evening. In naming the committees for the ensuing year, many have been appointed and all seemed pleased with the duties assigned to them.

It was voted to hold an open meeting on Thursday evening, Feb. 26, in G. A. R. Hall.

Glad to report that Mrs. Bouldry and Mrs. Snow are gaining in health. Mrs. Hannah Pray is some better. Miss Charlotte Orcutt is slowly recovering from a fall she had a few days ago.

Corps 102 mourns the passing away of Mrs. Deborah Hayden. She was a charter member and very active in Corps work for 26 years. President Mrs. Brassil and fifteen members attended the funeral.

Mrs. Brassil, Mrs. Barrows, Mrs. Mahoney and Mrs. Stoddard attended the installation of Corps 137 at Rockland on Wednesday evening.

FISH PALATABLE AND NUTRITIOUS

More Economical Than Meat Because Less Labor Is Required to Produce It.

BE SURE THAT IT IS FRESH

Carefully Broil, Boil, Bake or Fry and Serve With Well-Seasoned Sauce for a Change—Some Well-Selected Recipes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Fish is not used as a food to the extent it should be in this country nor to the extent that it is used in other countries. It is cheaper than meat because it requires less labor to produce and market it, and because fish consume in their growth very little material which is available or useful in human food. Like meat, it is a protein food, and if well cooked it makes a nutritious and palatable dish.

Even though purchased dressed, fish should be carefully cleaned in the home. After cleaning and washing wipe dry with a soft cloth and salt well before cooking. The addition of vinegar or lemon juice during the cooking is usually advisable when it is baked or broiled.

Because they contain less of the so-called extractives which give flavor to pork, beef, and mutton, fish are likely to be somewhat insipid. For this reason extra care should be used in the selection of the other food to be served with it. Have it either very highly flavored or so mild in flavor that the flavor of the fish will not be obscured. Sauces of various types are acceptable with fish, especially when it is broiled or baked.

A Disagreeable, But Essential Task in Preparing the Fish for Cooking.

The following sauces are recommended as desirable to serve with fish. The first two recipes were tested in the experimental kitchens of the department of agriculture. The others are selected from a bulletin published by the Indiana Agricultural college.

Egg Sauce.
1 cupful milk. 1/4 tablespoonfuls of 1 tablespoonful fat. cornstarch.
1/2 teaspoonful salt.

Moisten the cornstarch in a small amount of cold liquid and add to the heated milk. Cook together in a double boiler. Hard cooked egg, chopped fine, is added.

Tomato Sauce.
1 cupful strained to salt and pepper to mato. taste.
1 tablespoonful fat. 1 tablespoonful corn-
1 slice onion. starch.

Put the tomato through a sieve. Moisten the cornstarch and add to the heated and seasoned tomato. Scald the onion in the sauce, removing it before the sauce is served.

Mustard Sauce.
1/2 cupful vinegar. 1/2 teaspoonful ground
1/4 cupful water. 1/2 mustard.
1/2 tablespoonfuls of 1/2 tablespoonfuls fat.
cornstarch. 1/2 teaspoonful salt.

Two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped pickle may be added.

Maitre d'Hotel Sauce.
Cream together: 1/2 teaspoonful salt.
3 tablespoonfuls of 1 tablespoonful finely butter. chopped parsley (if 1 tablespoonful lemon desired).
on juice.

This sauce resembles soft butter and is to be spread on the hot fish so the fat will be melted.

Horseradish Sauce.
3 tablespoonfuls of 1/2 tablespoonfuls of horseradish. heavy cream beat-1 tablespoonful vin- en stiff.
egar. 1/2 teaspoonful salt.

Mix the first three ingredients and then add the beaten cream.

STOCKINGS NEED GOOD CARE

Frequent Washing Prevents Rotting and Continued Strain on the Same Parts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Wash stockings frequently. It prevents continued strain on the same part of the stocking and rotting and change of color from perspiration. Wash new stockings before wearing to remove the sizing; otherwise holes may appear at once.

RIGHT KIND OF FOOD NOT GIVEN CHILDREN

Costs More in Some Instances,
But Is Not Suitable.

Improperly Fed Child Is Under Handicap From Start to Finish—Result Given of Experiment Recently Made in Iowa.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The child fed improperly is not getting a square deal in this world, however much else may be done for him by his parents. From start to finish he is under a handicap, mentally and physically, when in competition with those who have been given the right kind of food.

Surprising as it may seem, statistics show that the proportion of undernourished children in the better homes is large, just as it is in the homes of smaller incomes. The food served in the former may cost more and be in greater abundance, but it is quite as apt to be unsuitable for a growing child.

Wapella county, Iowa, is a prosperous community where comfortable homes are the rule and not the exception. Recently the county nurse and the home demonstration agent, with the aid of ten volunteers, weighed and measured 2,189 children in the county. Of the children examined, 407 were below weight. Out of a group of 137 children in rural districts, who were weighed, measured and inspected, only five were found to be normal.

To illustrate what proper diet will do for a child, two nutrition classes were started in Ottumwa schools. In one were eight children, each from five to fourteen pounds underweight. They are being given one pint of milk daily for three months. One cupful is given in morning recess and one in the afternoon.

At the other school, a lunch is served at 10:15 each morning to the class selected. It consists of a large dish of well-cooked oatmeal, with sugar and whole milk, a glass of milk and graham crackers. The children are very eager for this plain wholesome food.

The records of gain are interesting. Every child has made at least a two-pound gain. One nine-year-old boy, six pounds underweight, has gained eight pounds, and one eleven-year-old boy 17 pounds underweight and in extremely poor physical condition, has gained nine pounds, and his general health is much improved.

FREQUENT SCALDING IS BEST

To Keep Household Water Vessels
Clean and in Good Condition
Much Care Is Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The greatest care is required to keep household water vessels clean and in good condition. Water coolers should be of some material, such as porcelain or enameled ware, which is easily kept clean. They should be scalded at frequent intervals. The ice, if it comes in contact with the water, should be of known quality. Doubtful ice should be kept from contact with the water. Many families cool drinking water by putting it in the ice box in glass fruit jars or bottles.

Where it is believed or known that the water supply is not pure, a filter should be used. If a filter is used every precaution should be taken to keep it clean and in good condition. United States department of agriculture specialists suggest. An earthenware filter may be cleaned by thorough scrubbing with a brush. Then it should be placed in a pan or kettle of water and boiled. A small piece of wood should be placed under the jar to prevent direct contact with the heated bottom of the pan.

GOOD MEAT FROM CHEAP CUTS

Housekeeper Has Two Problems to Contend With in Attempting to Reduce Expenses.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the housekeeper attempts to reduce her meat bill by using the less expensive cuts, she commonly has two difficulties to contend with—tough meat and lack of flavor. Prolonged cooking softens the connective tissues of the meat. Pounding the meat and chopping it are also employed with tough cuts to help break the muscle fibers. The flavor of meat, even in the least desirable cuts, may be developed by careful cooking, noticeably by browning the surface. Other flavors may be given by the addition of vegetables and by seasoning with condiments of various kinds.

Household Questions

Pineapple, bananas and nut meats are a good salad combination.

Raisins are said to be richer in mineral matter than any other dried fruit.

Lay rusty keys and lock in paraffin oil and leave them covered for a few days.

Egg stains on silver may be removed by rubbing with a little salt and damp cloth.

HEAT-PRODUCING FOODS.

Our thoughts determine our acts and therefore our lives, as well as the influence of our lives upon all about us, either by way of good or by way of hindrance, with absolute precision.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

During the winter months in the northern states pork and other meats are commonly served, as in cool weather the body is more active, burns up more fuel and is able to digest heavy and heartier foods.

Broiled Pork Tenderloin.—Split the tenderloin in two and broil under the gas flame or over coals. Have the heat intense at first and sear the meat on both sides to hold the juices. Reduce the heat and when the meat is puffed and nicely brown remove to a hot platter. Season with salt, pepper and bits of butter.

Stuffed Pork Tenderloin.—Select medium-sized tenderloins, wipe with a soft cloth dipped in cold water. Split the meat lengthwise, making a slight incision with a sharp knife, then pulling the muscle until it is almost split in two. Make a dressing of bread, salt, pepper, summer savory, onion juice, and moisten with water. Spread the dressing on the split side of the meat, remembering that it swells with cooking. Place a second tenderloin over the dressing. Sew the edges together with coarse thread. Place in a buttered pan with a cupful of hot water. Bake in a moderately hot oven for three-quarters of an hour, lowering the heat after the first twenty minutes. Put a few bits of butter in the pan and baste frequently. One tenderloin may be used for a small family.

Pork Tenderloin French Style.—Wipe the tenderloin carefully and with a sharp knife cut into slices about an inch thick across the tenderloin. Round the pointed ends of each and pound each piece to flatten it. Season with salt, pepper and roll in flour. Have ready smoking hot fat. Drop in the meat and turn at once in order to form a crust on both sides. Continue cooking at a lower temperature and cook for twenty minutes. Pour off the fat, except two tablespoonfuls. Add three tablespoonfuls of flour and a little salt. As soon as the flour is a golden brown, add milk and stir vigorously to keep the gravy smooth. Add milk until the gravy is a trifle thin. Season to taste and pour around the meat.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

Benjamin Franklin gave this advice to a young man: "Keep an exact account both of your expenses and your income. If you take the pains at first to mention particulars, it will have this good effect—you will discover how wonderfully small, trifling expenses mount up to large sums, and will discern what might have been and may for the future be saved without occasioning any great inconvenience."

This is the time of year when rich cakes like fruit cakes and puddings made of suet and fruit are most enjoyed. With butter and eggs at such prices, most housewives will curtail the rich cake making.

Fruit Cake.—Take one pound each of butter and sugar, twelve eggs, one cupful of New Orleans molasses, one cupful of very strong coffee infusion, one pound of flour browned to a medium brown, two pounds of seeded raisins, two pounds of currants or sultana raisins, one pound of candied cherries, one pound of citron, sliced very thin, two tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon, one tablespoonful of cloves, one small nutmeg grated, and one teaspoonful of black pepper. Add one teaspoonful of soda to the molasses. Add more flour if needed and use it unbrowned. Mix and bake in a slow oven.

Ginger Cream.—Make a custard of the yolks of four eggs and the whites of two, four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of preserved ginger sirup, and one pint of milk. Just before the custard is done add enough gelatine to slightly thicken and let it completely dissolve. As soon as the custard coats the spoon set the dish in cold water to arrest the cooking. Turn into molds. Sprinkle each mold with preserved ginger.

Baked Apple Dumplings.—Select tart apples that do not lose their shape in cooking. Pare evenly, after the cores are removed. Put the apples into enough water to float them, and add one cupful of water. Cook until almost done. Remove from the sirup and cook the sirup until thick. Place each apple in a square of pastry. Fill the cavities with sugar and lemon juice, and drop the thickened sirup over the top of the apples. Moisten the edges of the pastry and press together over the top of the apple. Put in a baking tin and bake a nice brown. Serve with cream just sour enough to be thick, adding powdered sugar and nutmeg.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

God's great out-of-doors is ever calling, and if we do not heed its call it will send us in bills that will call for heavy and sometimes frightful settlements.

At this season sweetmeats are very popular. The following is wholesome and not hard to prepare:

Nut, Date and Chocolate Sweetmeat.—Heat four tablespoonfuls of honey or maple sirup to the boiling point; add half a pound of the slightly sweet dipping chocolate and let stand over hot water until the chocolate is soft; add one package of dates, cut from the seeds in small even pieces, half a cupful of blanched almonds, cut in shreds and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix well with a wooden spoon to blend thoroughly. Have ready some biscuit tins or a brick mold lined with parchment paper. Press the mixture into the mold and cover with paper, then lay on a weight. Let stand six hours to ripen.

Fruit Cup.—For five glasses take one orange, three bananas, half a package of dates, one cupful of white grapes, measured after they are skinned, cut in halves and seeded, 12 pistachio nuts, the juice of half a lemon and three-fourths of a cupful of cream. Remove all the peeling and membrane from the orange, separate into sections and cut each in halves crosswise. Peel the banana, scrape to remove the threads, cut in thin, even slices and squeeze over them the juice of half a lemon. Pour boiling water over the dates, drain and place on a dish to dry in a hot oven, then remove the pits and cut in sections. Mix all the fruit together, then dispose in glasses, pouring the fruit sirup over it. Whip the cream and pipe it above the fruit; serve very cold.

Prune and Cottage Cheese Salad.—Soak choice prunes over night; cook until tender. When cold cut open, remove the stones, and cut the prune in smooth even pieces. Press cottage cheese for an hour or longer, then cut in half-inch cubes. For each serving beat two tablespoonfuls of thick prune juice, a teaspoonful each of lemon juice and sugar or honey and two tablespoonfuls of olive oil until thick. Place a layer of the prunes on lettuce hearts, the cheese above. Pour over the dressing and serve at once.

WHAT TO EAT.

Every child has the inalienable right to be loved; to have its individuality respected; to be trained wisely in mind, body and soul; to be protected from disease, from evil influences and evil persons and to have a fair chance in life. That state is delinquent which does not ceaselessly strive to secure these inalienable rights to its children.—Indiana's Child Creed.

If the family have good appetites, the planning of a meal is not such a problem as it is with fussy, finicky people, who have troublesome digestions. A most anybody can digest such a dish as the following, however:

Apple Snow.—Pare and quarter tart apples, add boiling water and cook until tender. Press through a sieve. To two cupfuls of pulp add a half cupful of honey and the grated rind of half a lemon, with the juice. Heat to the boiling point, add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatine softened in one-third of a cupful of cold water, and stir until the gelatine is melted. Chill, and when the mixture begins to jelly, add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, and beat with a Dover egg beater until very fine. Turn into a mold, and when firm, serve unmolded with cream or boiled custard.

Compote of Bananas.—Make a sirup of sugar or honey and half a cupful of water. Peel and scrape two or three bananas, then cut in thin slices; add to the sirup and boil, shaking the pan to cook all sides evenly. Add a little lemon rind or orange rind for flavor to the sirup. Skim the bananas as they soften, to a plate. When all are cooked, boil down the sirup a little, and when cool add the bananas.

Fruit Salad.—For each service take a slice of pineapple, the flesh of one-fourth of a grapefruit, half a canned pear, three heart leaves of lettuce, two tablespoonfuls of fruit juice (canned fruit juice may be used), half a teaspoonful of lemon juice, two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and one-fourth of a teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. Arrange the fruit on the lettuce. Beat the salad dressing ingredients with a Dover egg beater, pour over the fruit, and serve at once.

To avoid monotony have a variety of breakfast foods. None of the foods named should be omitted from the daily diet. Plenty of fruit and vegetables are absolutely essential and do not stint them on wholesome fats. Plenty of butter or egg yolk with whole milk is another necessity.

The small boy is not much occupied with thoughts of his clothes, except that he wants them to look like those worn by his running mates. Whether his shirtwaists, trousers or coats are made at home and from materials that have seen service before being bequeathed to him, is no concern of his. Occasionally he takes a proud satisfaction in the knowledge that he is wearing clothes that his father or uncles have worn before him, and in view of the mounting cost of his belongings these sources of supply should be considered.

Very good qualities in percales, madras and silk are used for making men's shirts, but even so the wear and tear of laundering frays out collar bands and cuffs long before the body of the shirts show any signs of wear. The frayed cuffs and collar bands are intolerable and the shirts are discarded. The soft-bosomed kind are used by thrifty mothers to make waists for their small boys. Silk shirts are often made over into shirtwaists for girls or grown-up members of the family as the small boy is not outfitted with silks.

Real, good woolen materials stand washing as well as cottons. A suit to be made over for the little boy should be ripped up and the goods in it washed according to the usual method of washing woolens. If it shrinks a little no harm is done. When it is pressed and made up into a suit for the youngster the material is really as good as new. In case it has worn shiny it should be turned, placing the wrong side out. In boys' suits even more than in grown-ups two pairs of pants for one coat is economical. A suit with two pairs of pants will wear more than twice as long as a suit with only one pair. It is not particularly difficult to make boys' clothes. The pants, if cut by a reliable pattern, are easy. When the coat is undertaken the lining should be first cut and fitted, using a simple pattern as a guide.

Discarded shirts of percale and madras are used by many housewives for making aprons. There is a great variety of patterns for the smaller aprons that are needed by every woman who busies herself at home with housework or sewing. The skirts are ripped up, washed and the material pressed. The designers of patterns have seen to it that a number of practical aprons are made up of several sections of cloth and this makes it easy to cut them from other garments.

THE DAY OF FINE CLOTHES

Nothing displaces fine and sheer white goods for the dress-up frocks of little girls. This year they are better thought of than ever, because it is the day of sheer cottons—fashion is smiling upon them. But always pretty cotton frocks of fine batiste, organdie, swiss or net are among the things that are counted on for the children's party dresses. They stand unchallenged for daintiness and for elegance. To match up with the beauty of these fabrics we must select fine, narrow laces, and fabric and lace are to be set together with fine hand stitching. Then everything is as it should be.

In the picture a little maid of eleven years or so wears a frock of fine white batiste employing narrow val lace and a little embroidery for its adornment. There is nothing unusual about it; it is merely a fine specimen of its kind and is sure to meet with welcome recognition. The frock has a short, baby-waist and a straight skirt. About the bottom of the skirt a row of insertion is joined to one of edging with a very narrow band of embroidered swiss and lengths of insertion are let in the skirt as shown in the picture.

Swiss in short panels joined with val lace insertion makes the little sleeveless overbodice finished with a lace edge. Both insertion and edging, joined with a narrow band of swiss embroidery, like that on the skirt, make the neck finish and sprays of fine embroidery appear on the two panels at the center of the front. Every needlewoman will know that it requires accurate, careful sewing to put this little frock together in the right way. But the result pays for the trouble. There is not so much work, but it must be of first quality. There are simpler ways of setting the lace and batiste together. Some frocks show rows of insertion running around the skirt at intervals of six or eight inches. This is not so difficult as it requires only straight lengths of the goods with the insertion whipped to the edges. Even an amateur may be sure of the required accuracy by following this model.

Very pretty swiss and net frocks rely upon tucks and frills of the same materials for their trimming. Tucks at rather wide intervals above three-inch hems and frills, finished with narrow hems at the neck and finishing the short sleeves, emphasize a desired simplicity in these frocks. Girdles and sashes of narrow ribbons seem to belong to them. Occasionally the frills are edged with very narrow lace.

These sheer frocks are to be worn over petticoats of the same fineness, or over silk slips. Organdies in light colors vary the choice and are used for lovely frocks. Only the first of the new offerings in party frocks for spring have arrived, but it is quite safe to use them as models to copy. Something different but nothing prettier will follow them.

Julia Bottruly

Waists to Match Suits.

Waists in shades to match winter suits are especially popular. They are most effective when combined with contrasting colors, either by use of narrow vestees, embroidery of floss and beads, or dainty ruffled collars.

CHURCH NOTES

(Other churches on page 12.)

EPISCOPAL

Trinity church, Weymouth. Rev. William Hyde, rector. Service with sermon next Sunday at 10.45 A. M. subject, "Obedience." Sunday School at 12.

THE WHITE CHURCH (Congregational)

Rev. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor. Regular Sunday services will be held. Morning worship and sermon at 10.30; pastor's topic: "A false view of life and its corrective."

Sunday evening service at 7 o'clock. Bright, brief and brotherly. An informal and helpful address will be given upon the topic: "Safer than a bank." Special music will be provided.

Mid-week prayer and social service on Tuesday evening at 7.30. "It will help you solve your problems if you give it the chance."

Always a cordial welcome at the White Church.

SECOND UNIVERSALIST CHURCH South Weymouth

Rev. J. H. Pearson, pastor. Morning service at 10.30. Singing by the vest choir under the direction of Miss Deane. Sunday School at noon immediately after morning service. Y. P. C. U. at 5.30. All cordially welcome.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL East Weymouth

Rev. Frank Kingdon, pastor. Morning worship at 10.30 with sermon by the pastor, "The Secret of Mastery." Church Bible school in vestry at 12, with George W. Dyer class for men in the auditorium. Epworth League service at 6; topic "Ephesus." leader Miss Mary Marden. Popular evangelistic service at 7, sermon topic, "A Certain Blind Man." Tuesday, 7.30 P. M., weekly meeting for Christian fellowship in the vestry; topic of the hour, "Conversion, a fact for life."

Wednesday, all-day meeting of the Ladies Social Circle.

Thursday, 7.30 P. M., cottage prayer meeting at the home of Mrs. Cain. Sunday February 1, is Decision Day, and all who desire to join this church should see the pastor on or before that date.

This church welcomes all.

OLD SOUTH UNION CHURCH South Weymouth

Rev. O. A. Price, pastor. "A man immersed in business all the week would better come up for a breath of air on Sunday." No one will make a mistake in coming to the Old South Union church. Everyone is most heartily welcome. The attendance is gratifyingly large, and if one comes with the right spirit he will have something worth while to take away. Large numbers bring better morale and much enthusiasm. Come and bring others along. Sunday's sermon is on the text "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." It is both practical and ideal or inspirational.

Sunday School at 12 o'clock. There are classes for all. Come and find a place. Christian Endeavor service at 6 o'clock. Subject: "The World's need of Christ." We urge the young men and women to attend this service and be on time.

At seven o'clock the pastor will again take up some subjects of vital concern. The method to be followed will be similar to that pursued in the preparatory class: brief presentation of a subject and then informal question and discussion. The former discussions proved so interesting and helpful to those who took them that the pastor is urged to do this. This class will be open to all who wish to take it.

The Thursday evening prayer and devotional service will be held at 7.30.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH Lincoln Square

Rev. C. W. Allen, pastor. Morning service at 10.30; subject, "Christian citizenship." Sunday School at 12. Junior Endeavor at 4. Senior Endeavor at 6.15. Evening service at 7.30; subject, "Going Straight."

Cottage prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. Dockendorf, East Braintree on Tuesday evening. A meeting will be held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. Herman, Kensington road.

Prayer meeting on Thursday evening. This is the monthly covenant meeting and will be preceded by a supper at 6.30.

The Ladies Missionary and Social Union held their monthly meeting in the vestry of the church on Wednesday evening. The subject of the meeting was medical missions. A sketch entitled "Hanging a Sign," was given by eight young women. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

UNION CONGREGATIONAL Weymouth and Braintree

"The Eternal Contradiction in Man's Life," with facts, inferences therefrom and a message for modern folks (also splendid music) on Sunday morning at 10.30. The young men of the Forum are going to have a debate on the subject: "Why should the U. S. A. discriminate against Japanese immigration." This at 12.15. New classes for adults are being formed in the church school at 12 noon. There are now over a hundred and fifty members and growing every week.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor meets at 5.45. The social half hour of good cheer is living up to its purpose. To be met with a hot cup of cocoa or coffee these cold Sunday evenings, as well as the cordial welcome of good sociability, is to go a good way in defeating Old King Cold. And, incidentally, the good singing and evening service (7 o'clock) cheers the inner man (or woman). Under these circumstances Mr. W. Weather has no terrors to those who bundle up and come to the Union church, Sunday evenings. And: remember, "There's always a welcome waiting for you."

For those who like to study the deep things of the inner life, there is the mid-week service of praise and prayer with "A devotional study of the character of Jesus" (John 2) on Thursday at 7.30 P. M.

"The Union Religious Society in the towns of Weymouth and Braintree" voted at the annual meeting the other evening that all sittings and pews be entirely free to everybody. This action is in line with the progressive movement of the historical churches in doing away with rented pews. "The Union Religious Society" observes its one hundred and tenth birthday on March 13th next. It is undenominational, organized (1810) by the citizens of Weymouth Landing and East Braintree "in order to provide for the preaching of the word of God in the settlement." At first the pews were owned by individuals, it was the custom of those early settlers, and later when the pews came to be owned by the "Union Religious Society," they were rented. In voting "Free Seats," this historic Society has taken an important forward step.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Quincy, 20 Greenleaf street, Morning service and Sunday School, at 10.45. Subject of the lesson-sermon: Truth. Golden text: Psalms 57:3,5. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth. Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth.

Testimony meeting every Wednesday evening at 7.45. Free public reading room, Hancock building, City square, 11 A. M. to 5 P. M. every week day, holidays excepted.

—Miss Ruth Sladen was home over Saturday and Sunday from Bridgewater Normal School.

A meeting of the teachers and officers of the Old North Sunday School will be held at the home of the superintendent, Mrs. P. T. Pearson tomorrow evening.

At the annual business meeting of the First Church the following officers were elected: Moderator, Rufus Bates; Clerk, M. M. Hunt; Treasurer, Rufus Bates; Auditors, Charles M. Taylor and George Lunt.

Visiting Committee, Miss A. J. Taylor Mrs. Rufus Bates, Mrs. J. C. Nash and Miss Annie K. Jones.

Music Committee, Mrs. J. B. Jones, Mrs. A. C. Emery and Mrs. Rufus Bates.

Superintendent of Sunday School, Mrs. P. T. Pearson.

Deacons, Alan C. Emery and Rufus Bates.

Decorating Committee, Miss Ruth Freeman and Miss Doris White.

Prayer Meeting Committee, Rev. Mr. E. J. Yaeger, Miss L. A. Humphrey and Alan C. Emery.

—The Lovell's Corner Improvement Association had a large attendance at their regular monthly business meeting, on Tuesday. Reports of the fair committees indicated very satisfactory progress. Four names were presented for membership. Meeting adjourned to Tuesday evening, Feb. 3.

—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cole entertained relatives from Somerville several days last week.

—The Ladies Aid held their annual meeting and election of officers last week, Wednesday evening. The following were elected: president, Mrs. Edward Hughes; 1st vice president, Mrs. John Martin; sec. vice president, Mrs. Charles Turner; secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Hayden; treasurer, Mrs. Charles White.

—The Selectmen have appointed Chief Engineer Pratt as forest fire warden.

—The residence of Charles Leach was quite badly damaged by fire last Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Mr. Leach and family are occupying the house of the late Mrs. Rosine Gardner until the repairs on their own home are completed.

—The Lovell's Corner Improvement Association will hold a two nights fair January 27 and 28, in the Porter M. E. vestry, to raise funds for building equipment. The entertainment for Tuesday evening will be furnished by the Waneta club including a drama "The Queen of Hearts," and a comedy "Moth-balls," also musical selections. Wednesday evening the entertainment will be a concert in charge of Mrs. Bert Doble and Mrs. Frederick Boynton.

—Mrs. Thomas Roberts is out again after her recent illness.

—Mrs. Harry Stone of Washington street is visiting relatives in New York.

—The Epworth League held their business meeting this month on Monday evening at the home of Oswald Charwood. After the business meeting games and refreshments were enjoyed.

THE RED DEPORTATION

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

I hesitate to write, and yet a sense of justice spurs me on. I appear to be the only "preacher" in Weymouth who has denounced the "Red deportation" as un-American.

Enough has been said about this dastardly business in current periodicals, so that he who reads may know the truth. I want first to point out the unfortunate situation where public men encourage hysteria, and use popular prejudice, either unwittingly or knowingly, to produce "effect."

During the first month of the hysteria and among certain people even today, the "Red" cause is the most unpopular of all, and hence if handled with the right emphasis, the most popular subject.

But religious institutions, thank God, weren't created to draw crowds through acrobatic stunts, oratory, and rallery. I say they were not created for these purposes.

The church, or let me use the word religion—religion is to offer sane, sensible, tempered judgment of life problems. The religious group is fortunate if it has leadership which doesn't float, but which sticks to its place even if the floods come and bury it.

What caused this extreme thought in the minds of some in America today? Un-Americanism—on the part of us all. Now let's be honest, aren't you and I at fault because the "foreigner" doesn't feel at home here, doesn't find any democracy such as he dreamed of? Have we loved him? Have we helped him? Have we "been our brothers' keeper?"

It's so easy to take a whack at the other fellow, and forget that we're the people who need the beating. There was a time in our country when it began to expand. American labor was not sufficient. American business men said: Let's get some cheap labor from Europe. Immigration was encouraged and America's millionaires, many of them, don't need to thank God, they have to thank the laborers whose blood and sweat and life has been spent for them. Don't believe me—read history.

Now a monstrous earthquake has shaken the world. Some people have remained asleep; they will never awake. Others have been roused. Labor, and the foreigners, have been roused. The "spirit of God" has caught hold of them, and they are determined to have justice and to help carry civilization forward.

Result—All kinds of ideas, good, bad, indifferent.

If I thought for a minute that people would be converted in this country to the ideas that many people think the "Reds" were deported for, I'd get the next boat for the North Pole. Some seem to think our people are foolish. If the first "Soviet Ark" were not such a blot on the freedom of American constitutional and traditional rights, it would be the best joke of the century.

As a matter of fact, I suppose that one "Ark" has helped the cause of this group far more than anything which our officials could have done, or they themselves.

I won't take longer to discuss it. Truly, to a foreigner watching America from abroad, in a country like Sweden, we must look like a litter of babies. Think, friends, what this means to the world, watching us deport a group of people whom we have made what they are. It savors of the days of old Spain and the middle ages. But enough; let's enjoy the joke, correct the mistake, and keep sane in the days ahead.

Faithfully yours

ELBERT W. WHIPPEN

BOARD OF TRADE

The Board of Trade did not get a quorum at its January meeting, but has been requested to make another attempt. On Wednesday, Feb. 4, two important subjects will be considered: Location for proposed Memorial Hall for Weymouth; also, how shall the 300th anniversary of Weymouth be celebrated?

ASK DAD; HE KNOWS

Grand chorus (mother-in-law, aunts and cousins):—"We've decided to christen the child—Archibald Percival."

Dad—"Not while I live! He's going to be named—Bill!"

FLAG RAISING

To celebrate the death knell of John Barleycorn throughout the United States a flag raising of an unusual character took place on the grounds of Past Grand Templar William J. Leigh of Hersey street, Hingham on Sunday in which Weymouth men were interested. The silk flag used of regulation size is 52 years old and was presented to Mechanics' Temple of Honor at East Weymouth by the ladies of that town in 1867, which place at that time was the home of Mechanics' Temple of Honor. The headquarters of the order are now in Hingham. The flag will fly day and night as long as it lasts and at the end the pieces will be distributed by Mr. Leigh among the following living charter members of Mechanics' Temple: Waldo Turner, Joseph P. Ford, Willard J. Dunbar, John H. Stodder and Ezra B. Tirrell, as a memento of prohibition victory.

SAM CURRY'S TRIP TO OMAHA

At the request of Mr. H. A. Tirrell, Sam Curry, formerly of East Weymouth, has written a letter telling of his trip by auto with his family from Weymouth to Omaha, Nebraska. He sends regards to all his Weymouth friends.

Dear Weymouth Friends:

I have no doubt a little description of our travels and experience will interest my friends in East Weymouth, for to make such a trip by motor cannot soon be forgotten.

Leaving East Weymouth Aug. 28, it rained hard all night and we reached Rye Beach, New Hampshire, early Sunday morning. We visited many friends and drove to various places. Leaving Sept. 4, we returned to Massachusetts and spent the night with friends at Lowell. Off early through Fitchburg, then over the Mohawk Trail. This was by far the most thrilling and finest part of the trip. Going up over 2,000 ft. the scenery is grand and reaching the summit, North Adams lies below.

It meant careful driving for we saw many mishaps, but the drive repays you when at last you reach the top. Then you have a sharp turn called "The Hairpin Curve," of which I enclose photo. These were taken by Eric. There is a rest hotel on top and one is glad to avail himself of an ice cream, as it was a very hot day.

You then come down the 20 mile grade not suitable for the nervous. I can assure you. Continuing we journeyed through Geneva, Batavia, and on to Buffalo, arriving early, the sun shining beautifully, we had our first trouble finding a place for our car. All round the center of this fine city cars were packed, but a mounted cop helped us out. You soon find how curious people are seeing from your number plates you are travelling. Well we were sight seeing, and at 11 A. M. we got our first cyclone. In two minutes it came and the rain was awful.

Getting out we came on to Cleveland. Let me say, here is one fine city. The parks and boulevards for mile after mile are splendid. Their highways are the finest in the country, and it was one of our most enjoyable stops.

Next run was Toledo, notable for the Willard prize fight. All I can say of the city is that we got one of the best and most reasonable dinners on our trip. Our car which showed many banners causing many to stop, and our waitress kept looking that way which might have caused a mistake. Needless to say, I gave her a good tip.

Being advised by motor inspector not to go direct to Chicago, owing to strikes and bad roads, our way took us through South Bend on to Chicago Heights and Aurora, staying at Dixon then away to Cedar Rapids, the home of Quaker Oats. To see those great concrete grain elevators sure is some sight containing millions of bushels. Nearing our journey's end we passed through some nice country to Council Bluffs then came Omaha, October 5, at 11 A. M.

In this description I have not illustrated the various and usual motor mishaps. Our worst was in the State of Indiana at Ligonier, a nice little town, population about 6000. We stayed there eight days as we could not get the parts owing to traffic delay during strikes. We surely got to know the whole place and met many fine people who do all they can to help you. It is not unusual for cars to break down and they appreciate it very much, for the reason you must live and you pay dearly thereby leaving your good dollars behind. They had one movie show but we had seen the things months ago in Boston.

Then at Chicago we had a heavy thunder storm. We drove into this for four days, the last I shall never forget, lasting for fully eight hours. One large house had all windows blown out. It was here we spent an anxious time. We were sure glad to get away, but it was our worst part, for the Iowa roads are something dreadful, consisting of soft, black mud. Talk of Flanders; well we had plenty of it for over a week. It was impossible to do anything but creep along the one track, the mud covering your hubs. We saw many cars lying in ditches stranded; others smashed up, broken wheels, etc. We had only one mishap.

On Saturday, after enjoying supper about 6.30, though the going was so bad, we decided to get on to the next town 27 miles away, and get into some hotel. It got worse, no one on the road when along came a chap with a Ford who advised us to take a side road for a village. We did so and found ourselves in a ditch at an angle

COMMUNITY MEMORIAL BUILDING

View of Community Memorial Building proposed for Goldsboro, N. C., in honor of men who served in war against Germany. Structure is good example of type favored by Bureau of Memorial Buildings of War Camp Community Service.

The Gazette-Transcript presents this week a view of the Community Memorial Building proposed for Goldsboro, N. C., in honor of the men who served in the war against Germany. The structure is a good example of the type favored by the Bureau of Memorial Buildings of the War Camp Community Service, and the view is very similar to the one for the proposed Memorial Town Hall in Weymouth.

Establishment of memorial social centers to honor the men who served America in the war against Germany is advocated by the Bureau of Memorial Buildings of War Camp Community Service. Its heads are striving to convince American communities that the day of the old-fashioned soldier monument in the public square is gone and that the need now is for living memorials to the war veterans.

In their crusade to have communities erect the memorial centers, the heads of the bureau point out the need for perpetuation of the cause for which Americans fought and bled and died. The ideals for which they made their sacrifices, say the bureau leaders, must be kept alive.

"There is a form of memorial which can do all this and more," says a recent bureau statement. "This is a community building—a Liberty House—which is at one and the same time symbolic and practical. It symbolizes the ideals of democracy and service for which the war was fought, in providing a means by which those ideals may be carried into effect. It is practical because it enables our soldiers' fellow townsmen to give with their heads as well as with their hearts—for such a structure will help the living while commemorating the dead. Its main purpose would be to serve the town's common good."

"This living memorial is appropriate also in that it would provide a meeting place and center both for the men who are home from service in the army or navy, and for the citizens in general. Here rank and social standing would be left at the door and all would meet on a common level of human worth and good fellowship."

"A Liberty House, moreover, would constitute a center for such service bodies as participated in or grew out of the war, such as the American Legion, the Red Cross, Community Service, the Boy Scouts, and for patriotic, historical, charitable, literary and musical societies, women's, boys' and girls' clubs and civic organizations of many sorts."

"Obviously there must be included a Hall of Fame where would be preserved the records, flags and trophies of the war. This would be the shrine for a tablet or other means of recording the names of those who fought and of those who gave their lives for democracy."

"On the ground of making any memorial which may be decided upon not only dignified and permanent but artistic as well, thus beautifying the town and helping to develop the sense of beauty in every citizen who beholds it, the building type of memorial is logical."

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

ISSUE BEFORE ALL NATIONS

Four Years of Hell Have Left the People in a Nightmare, From Which Only New Morale Can Arouse Them.

Article I.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Four years of pagan hell left Europe stunned and staggering. The world has come through the reddest and blackest night in all the biography of the planet. With the signing of the armistice the people tried to shake off the nightmare and grope back to light. Today, a year after, it is trudging and stumbling, paralyzed and benumbed. The present problem of making the world safe for civilization is more serious than was the question of making it safe for democracy four years ago. If there was reason for sacrifice then, there is reason for it now. If there was cause for a military morale then, there is need of an industrial morale today. Freedom called men to fight and die that autocracy might not rule and ruin the world. The issue now is not only freedom, it is life—the chance to eat—to be warm—to sleep, and a tired, wounded, worn and weary people face the tomorrows with little faith and much fear.

I went to Europe to see for myself. I was unattached, a free agent. I was not a member of a Mission—I had no preconceived opinions. I sought facts—the human facts. I looked into the eyes of the people, walked the streets, talked with men, women and children, rich and poor, humble and powerful, journalists, bankers, lawyers, preachers, actors, government officials, coal miners, teamsters, factory hands, labor leaders, radicals, conservatives, children of the street and women at their washtubs, farmers and peasants, tenants and landlords. I cross-examined official records and pursued official figures. I listened to opinions, heard speeches, interviewed the streets, listened to the conversations of the cafes and the talk of the cheap restaurants. I knew that few Americans would have the chance to go to Europe to see and hear for themselves, that the millions of America would be compelled to depend upon the eyes and ears of others for information concerning a problem of world importance, a problem that is bound to involve us—we are part of it. No country is independent. Nations are interdependent to the extent and for the same reasons individuals are.

Only Hope is in America.

Europe looks to America for salvation, as a dying man looks to God for mercy. We are her only hope. If the United States adopts the policy of leaving Europe alone, on the theory that we have done enough for her, Europe will be plunged into the savagery of revolution. It is faith in America, belief that America will sustain her, help her carry the awful load that is bending and almost breaking the back of weak and crippled Europe, that is keeping her from succumbing. This faith is about the only thing Europe has left.

What is America? It isn't the buildings and banks, the railroads, the houses and the land. It is the one hundred and ten million people of whom you are one. So Europe's plea is addressed to you. The prayers of her hungry children are petitions to you. America's policy—the answer of the United States, will come from the judgment of the people. No man or woman can escape the responsibility. Each of us will contribute to the decision. It isn't a hypothetical case we are called upon to decide—it is a question involving the life of human beings, men, women and children who are blood of our blood, part of the great world family—the human race. Shall we close down our shops, factories, mills and mines, bolt the doors, stop production at a time millions of human beings are crying to us for help? Can we listen to the thin, bony hands of children knocking at our doors and sit in our comfortable homes, leaving them to die on our threshold? No call to arms ever had so much right back of it, so much humanity as the call to work has today.

The house of Europe has been on fire. It has been wrecked. It is scarred and charred—a ruin. The cupboards are empty, the people demoralized and sick. Winter is attacking them. Hunger has a strangle hold. They are in rags. They must rebuild, and they haven't the material for the work. They turn to us. Their condition is their plea, our condition, our obligation. If the golden rule ever had any claim on our hearts and heads the time to prove it is now.

Our Comparative Plenty.

In our house things are well. We have been saved the devastation of war. Our acres are ample, our yield has been plentiful. We have an abundance of material. Our man power has only been lightly touched by the war. It is true that we gave nearly seventy thousand lives that the Prussians might not pass; that autocracy might not shackle the world. It was our best blood. Europe gave for four years, and she gave of her youth until her man power was almost exhausted.

We cannot sacrifice Europe without being sacrificed. If Europe falls—America will totter. The storm of unrest that rocks Europe to ruin will shake America. We must work and give—loan, if you please.

The heart of labor is warm. Its sympathy is born of suffering. The gospel of the brotherhood of man is the message that labor has always taught. I am sure that if I could picture the poverty of the children and women and men of Europe—if I could only make people see what I have seen in Europe, our differences would seem trivial by comparison with their sufferings. Men would will to work and find joy in the working. What greater compensation can come to conscience than working to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to comfort the lowly?

If the heart of capital is stone and cannot feel the message which comes over the seas, let labor show that its heart is humane and that it will suffer injustice, if need be, a little longer to save flesh and blood, brother and sister workers, on the other side of the ocean. It's a crime against God and man to stop production at this moment—and extravagance in this hour is a greater immorality than prostitution.

I did not stop with the gathering of figures, because I knew that while figures are important they frequently fail to tell the full truth. Official reports and statistics, granting that they are accurate, are at best only photographic. The photograph records with mathematical exactness the exterior of things. It seldom gets to the heart. The photograph is the still picture—the picture of the motionless fact. Impressions are more like oil paintings. They possess the human touch. They reach the heart within. Back of the daubs of paint on the canvas are the throbs of a heart. The film is only sensitized. Man's brain is sensitive. The photograph reproduces the outline; the painting, the substance.

Plain Record of Facts.

In reporting to you the things I saw and heard, I want to give you photographs—the figures and facts as I learned them, and the impressions I gathered from the speech and life of Europe. I have tried to keep my eyes free from prejudice so that the lenses would be unbiased.

In the June of 1914 Europe had a place in the sunlight of peace. The fields were filled with peasants, bending their backs to toil. Villagers were happy in the common routine of their simple lives. Factories, mills, mines and shops were filled with men. Wheels hummed, smoke streamed from chimneys, industry was singing. In the cities traffic roared, trains rattled. It was the story of a busy, working world.

Problems there were, of course, the problems normal to the growth and progress of the world. There was some unrest, too, but children scampered to school, patient women sang crooning songs to their babies. Men carrying dinner buckets whistled on their way to work. There were shadows—the unlighted side of the world's street—the slums and the tenements; but men and women were planning and fighting the black ugliness, and everyone had faith in the tomorrow. The world was making headway—it was growing better; its conscience was awakened. We were becoming our brother's keeper. It was a normal, sane, good old world. It was good to be alive.

Then came the day, the day that will never be forgotten—the day that changed the world; the day of four years, at the end of which civilization was almost hunched back.

Replant Your Lost Teeth.

When one's front teeth are knocked out there is no need to leave them on the floor, for they can be reinserted by a good dentist.

Dr. H. M. Savery tells in the Lancet (London), of two cases, in each of which several teeth were dislocated from their sockets. In one case the teeth were placed in salt water while the dentist carefully washed out the sockets. Then they were reinserted, a stitch or two taken, in the gums and the jaws were bandaged shut so that the teeth bit on a pad of lint. In the other case the teeth still hung to the gums, so the sockets were cleaned out without detaching the teeth. In both cases the teeth became solidly fixed and the patients could use them for normal biting in a few months after the accident.

Dr. De Witt C. Henry of New York replaced not long ago the teeth of a truck driver that had been knocked out in a collision. The man had picked his teeth from the gutter and ran up to the dentist's office carrying them in his hand.

Our Arts.

Our arts are happy hits. We are like the musician on the lake, whose melody is sweeter than he knows, or like the traveler, surprised by a mountain echo, whose trivial word returns to him in romantic thunders.—Emerson.

JUST A LITTLE SMILE

A BACONIAN COLLOQUY.

"Why do you let Bill Shakespeare take the credit for your work?"
"Well," replied Francis Bacon, "Bill is a practical theatrical manager. I'm only a philosopher and a poet trying to hold a government job. What'd I do if the actors were to decide to call a strike on me?"

Without Turning a Hair.

Long-haired Crank—Do you believe in bolshevism?

Gentleman with a Cane—Certainly not!

Long-haired Crank—Why not, are you a capitalist?

Gentleman with a Cane—No; I'm a barber.—The Bystander.

SENSITIVE.

"Hello, old man, I hear you've bought a house in the country."
"What if I have. You don't have to rub it in, do you?"

It Never Happened.

Who ever heard this old world say in a contented tone,
"We're doing pretty well today; Let well enough alone!"

A New Idea.

He—Tillie, did you ever think of marryin'?

Tillie—Why, no; the subject has never entered my thoughts.

He—Well, goodbye, I'm sorry.

Tillie—Wait a minute—don't go. You've set me thinkin'.

All Brought Appetites.

"Politeness costs nothing."
"That's a mistake," said Jud Tunkins, with emphasis. "Just by way of bein' pleasant and friendly I asked a bunch of my city relatives to visit me."

No Economy.

"You have been burning the wind!" protested the policeman.

"Maybe I was," answered Mr. Chuggins; "but not enough of it to make any difference in my gasoline bill."

Youthful by Contrast.

Landlady—Why are you so happy today?

Boarder—I think it is because I feel quite young in contrast with this chicken.

Paradoxical.

"Do you believe in dealing with all children gently?"

"No, indeed. There are some kids you can't handle with gloves."

Always So.

"What effect had the hint of a secret on the girls?"

"A telling effect."

PROBABLY NOT.

"The circus has cut out thrillers."
"Couldn't compete with the movies, I s'pose."

Intensive Rhetoric.

When epithets are launched so free in oratorical games,
We find there really can be high art in calling names.

He Calculates Time by It.

"Does your watch keep good time?"
"Splendid. I can depend on it all ways to be about 15 minutes fast."

Another Line of Business.

"For years and years I wrote poetry," remarked the affluent looking stranger. "I wrote it until I was forced by cold and hunger to take up a commercial line."

What was that?

"Writing verses."

Too Vague.

He—My dear girl, don't let this meeting of ours do like one of a legislative body's adjourn sine die.

She—What's that?

He—Without naming the day.

WHERE EX-SERVICE MEN ARE DISPLACING CIVILIANS

Wholesale cuts in the number of female employees of the bureau of war risk insurance are part of the general plan of the bureau to bring all its employees under the civil service regulations. The places of probably 1,000 of the girls who have been permitted to resign will be taken by an equal number of ex-service men who have qualified by civil service examinations. This photograph shows service men and girl clerical forces working side by side.

CAIRO STUDENTS IN DEMONSTRATION

Excited Egyptian students in Cairo who are making a demonstration for independence and have seized a street car.

Painful Operation.

The policeman knocked loudly at the door from which came screams of mortal anguish. Neighbors stuck forth their heads from windows and wondered audibly who was being murdered. Others, less curious but sleepier, knocked irritably on partitions and cried for the police. So the policeman bravely knocked again.

"What's all the racket? What are you pulling off in here?" he shouted through the keyhole.

Back came the tired voice of the wife, while the husband continued his protests:

"A porous plaster, if you must know."—American Legion Weekly.

Attractions of Railway Travel.

Herein, I think, lies the chief attraction of railway travel. The speed is so easy, and the train disturbs so little the scenes through which it takes us, that our heart becomes full of the placidity and stillness of the country; and while the body is borne forward in the flying chain of carriages, the thoughts alight, as the humor moves them, at unfrequented stations; they make haste up the popular alley that leads toward the town; they are left behind with the signalman as, shading his eyes with his hand, he watches the long train sweep away into the golden distance. — From "Ordered South," by R. L. Stevenson.

NOTED MONUMENT CRUMBLING

New England has been stirred by the news that the Bunker Hill monument is crumbling and, it is feared, may collapse. Efforts are being made to repair it at once.

The Rise of Raccoon Coats.

Twenty-five years ago, when raccoon coats were selling at $10, many poorly paid workers possessed them, but in the short interval of time elapsed, they have risen in price to $1,000 for a coat of matched skins, says the Columbus Dispatch.

With the coming of the motorcar, the raccoon climbed socially and a coon coat became almost an indispensable part of the outfit for a motorist. By 1914 the coats had risen in price from $10 to $100 and $150 and this winter the same coats are easily being sold to dealers for $900.

Since it takes from twenty to twenty-five skins for a coat of this kind, with prime skins selling at $18 apiece and the cutters demanding $100 a week, it is no wonder that prices are so high.

Rooster "Mothers" Chicks.

A little bantam rooster which Brainerd Souther of Hingham, Mass., named George Washington, has adopted a flock of eight young chickens abandoned by their mother, and is giving them maternal care, the only trouble being that G. W. is not large enough to cover the chickens properly, so that some of them stick out around the edges.

The Man Nobody Knew

By HOLWORTHY HALL

(Copyright by Dodd, Mead & Co., Inc.)

"LET 'EM MAKE ME LOOK LIKE THAT!"

Everyone knows about the Legion Etrangere—the famous Foreign Legion of the French army. Well, Richard Morgan of Syracuse, N. Y., enlisted in the Foreign Legion in the great war under the name of Henry Hilliard. So you can guess that the hero was not in love with himself or with life. The Hun sent him to the hospital with a wounded knee and arm and a face pretty much shot away with shrapnel. The surgeons fixed up his knee and his arm. When they proposed to restore his features, he lied and said he had no photograph of himself. And in his rage against life he caught up a picture postcard bearing the radiant face of Christ and cried:

"Let 'em make me look like that! Or anything else, either—I don't give a d—n!"

The French surgeons were interested and did a good job. And presently "The Man Nobody Knew" is back in Syracuse, telling of the death of Dick Morgan and selling mining stock and falling deeper in love with Carol Durant, the "only girl" of his old life who had refused to marry Dick Morgan, the failure.

Complications! Well, rather—especially when the mining stock apparently turns out to be worthless and the only man in the world who knows Hilliard's secret dies of apoplexy and the hero finds out that the heroine did love Dick Morgan. And Holworthy Hall handles these complications and these real, human characters and this American community in the masterly way that makes him read from one end of the country to the other these days. Good reading!

CHAPTER I.

In the beginning of things, he was merely a number; but even that was creditable, because his number was low enough to signify that he had responded pretty promptly to the rallying cry. After that, and with the cataclysmic suddenness which marked all changes of military status on the western front, he became, one frosty morning, a Case, and got himself roughly classified (and tenderly handled) as a Stretcher Case, a Grand Blessé, and, in consequence, a proper temporary inmate of a field hospital on the Belgian plains.

There, he was unofficially known as Joyeux, or Joyous One; not because he displayed a very buoyant disposition—far from it!—but because he belonged to the Foreign legion; and in the course of another day or two he was routine-ticketed as an Bvacue, and provided with a lukewarm hot-water bottle and a couple of evil-smelling cigarettes to console him on the road to the base hospital at Neuilly.

At Neuilly he became, for the first time since his enlistment, an Individual, and at the very outset he was distinguished by certain qualities which had passed unnoticed in the frying pan and fire of the trenches. For one thing, he was obviously immune to kindness; and for another, he was apparently immune to hope. He was a man of inveterate silence; not the grim silence of fortitude in suffering (which is altogether too common a virtue in base hospitals to earn any especial merit), but rather the dogged reticence of black moods and chronic bitterness. To be sure, speech was physically difficult to him, but other men with similar misfortunes spoke blessings with their eyes, and gave back gratitude in voiceless murmurs. Not so the Joyous One. From the day of his arrival he demanded nothing, desired nothing, but to brood sullenly aloof; and so, when he became an Individual, he also became a mystery to the nursing staff. It was rumored that he was an implacable woman hater, and there seemed to be something in it.

Regardless of the care of the American nurses (all hoveringly attentive to one of their own nation who had fought for France), his spirit remained abysmal and clouded in gloom. Only twice, in the initial month of his confinement, did he betray the weakness of an ordinary emotion; on each occasion a gold-laced general had come to salute, in the name of the republic, one of the Individual's neighbors, and to deliver a bit of bronze which dangled from a ribbon striped red and green. It was said (and doubted by those who hadn't seen it) that at these ceremonies the Individual had grown feverish, and let tears come to his eyes, but subsequently he had relapsed into still greater depths of stolidism than before; his own bed-jacket was innocent of cross or medal, and his depression was apparent, and acute. The nurses, arguing that perhaps his pride was wounded as seriously as his flesh, offered quick condolence and got themselves rebuffed with shrugs of the Individual's shoulders, and inarticulate sounds which had all the earmarks of suppressed profanity. He didn't even soften when Pierre Dutout, a hard-hit territorial in the next bed, squandered a day's supply of energy to lean across and whisper sympathetically to him: "Old man . . . Vieux espede de choux-croute . . . I know how it is . . . and I haven't got any friends either."

I want you to take my Croix de Guerre. . . . When I go nowhere."

Even when speech returned to the Individual he was a man of curt responses and stinging monosyllables—a problem to the surgeons, a problem to the nurses and (if the expression in his eyes meant anything), an overwhelming problem to himself. It appeared that, after all, it wasn't simply women that he hated—it was the universe.

His military book implied that he had no parents, no close relations, no friends to notify, no fixed abode. He received no visitors, no letters, no packages freighted with magical delight. But to those who pitied him in all his loneliness he was utterly contemptuous; he even went so far as to fling seditious to the floor a religious post card tendered him by a devout and sentimental passer-by, and he did it in her presence, unashamed. Later, when a smiling orderly picked up that post card and tucked it under his pillow he was no less contemptuous in permitting it to remain. But the one stupendous fact which, more than all else combined, made him an object of bewildered curiosity was this—that of the scores and scores of men with head-wounds who were reborn at Neuilly that spring and summer, he was the only one who had never asked for a mirror.

This, of itself, wouldn't have been astonishing as long as he delayed in the preliminary stages of recovery, for now and then a man with head-wounds proves to be super-sensitive; but in the second stage it was remarkable, and in the third stage it was unique. The staff held it to be extraordinary from a social as well as from a pathological viewpoint, that a man so terribly disfigured should have no interest—not even a morbid interest—in his own appearance. And it wasn't that the Individual was simply indifferent to the mirror; on the contrary, his aversion to it was active and energetic; he flinched, and motioned it frantically away as though the mere conception of seeing himself as others saw him was too repellant, and too unthinkable to endure.

There came a day in April when a photograph was requested of him. Surely he knew where there was a likeness of himself, didn't he? His old passport photograph, which had mysteriously disappeared, or—

The Individual glanced up from his present task; the wound in his arm was still annoying and he was absorbed in learning to write with his left hand.

"What for?" he muttered.

"Why," said the nurse, cheerfully, "for a model. To help the surgeons. They'll take your picture for a guide and make you look almost exactly the way you did before."

The Individual from America sat up straight, so that the nurse was startled by his animation, which was without a parallel in his local history.

"What!" he said.

"Certainly!" The nurse spoke in the tone one uses to an ailing child. "You've known that, haven't you?"

The Individual's voice was queerly unmanageable and strained. "You mean to say they're going to make me look the way . . . Could they do that? Could they? Even now?"

"Why, of course," she assured him. "You never told me that!" he said, passionately. "Why didn't you? Why couldn't you have told me! And here I've been . . . He put his hands to his bandaged face and seemed to shrink within himself. Then all at once he burst out: "Well, there's nothing to prevent . . . Then they could make me not look like it, if they wanted to! Isn't that so?"

She regarded him in vast perplexity, and thought of summoning a surgeon, for the man had begun to quiver as though from shell shock—which he hadn't undergone.

"Why, I don't understand what you mean," she said soothingly. "But if you'll just be calm and—"

The Individual gestured with fierce impatience.

"If they can do what you say, and make me look like any old thing they choose to, then what in the devil are they asking for a photograph for?"

"Why, to go by," she said helplessly. "You want to look like your old self, don't you?"

"No, I don't!"

The nurse gasped. His tone had been cheerful, but the echo of it vaguely suggested triumph and relief. His symptoms had subsided . . . could it be that he actually was relieved? Dumfounded, she made another effort to convince him.

"But you want to look just as nearly like—"

"Don't you suppose I know what I want?" he interrupted rudely.

"But haven't you a photograph, anyway, that I can—"

"No, I haven't!" he snapped. "I haven't!" It was a lie; the passport photograph was in the lining of a certain wallet, and he had hid it there for reasons of his own. But now that one great danger was definitely past, and a still further bulwark of protection offered, if the nurse spoke truth, the Individual could afford to come out from ambush. "And I don't want to look the way I did before, and what's more I never did! But if your doctors are half as smart as they think they are let 'em make me look like that! Or anything else either—I don't give a d—n!"

Shocked and horrified, she was gazing at a picture postcard he had snatched from under his pillow and thrust upon her. It was a reproduction of a religious painting by Rembrandt. It was the radiant face of the Christ.

CHAPTER II.

Nine o'clock on a night in June—not a June evening, heavy-starred on velvet, but a furious June night, with Stygian blackness looping overhead, and Stygian water battering and boiling against the hull plates. The ship was dark as the night itself; blind dark, without a single ray to play the traitor. On deck a solitary venturer hugged the rail, and apathetically watched the waves tear past.

Out of the warmth and cheer and the vitiated atmosphere of the smoking room came Martin Harmon, big, florid, exuberant. A heaving lift of the deck sent him lurching sidewise; he saved his balance by struggling toward the rail, when suddenly the slope was reversed, and he slipped and slid to the barrier of safety, clutched it, and found himself at arm's length from the lonely watcher, who hadn't stirred, or even turned his head.

"Let Them Make Me Look Like That."

"Hello!" said Harmon, his surprise tinged with easy familiarity. "Some night!"

"Yes, it is." The tone of the response was curt, so curt that Harmon instinctively leaned forward to discover what expression of countenance went with it. The night was so black that he might as well have tried to penetrate a curtain of solid fabric.

"Seen any U-boats yet?" he asked humorously.

"Not yet." The taciturn one moved a trifle away; a man less thin-skinned and less dined and winned than Harmon would probably have taken the hint and removed himself, but Harmon was an inquisitive disposition, and he never attempted to curb it—he was the sort of traveling companion who makes Christians reflect upon the definition of justifiable homicide.

"What is your line?" he inquired after a pause.

The other man laughed queerly. "The first . . . If it makes so much difference to you."

"Beg pardon? I don't quite get you. You said . . ."

"I said the first line. I meant the first-line trenches. I've been in it."

Harmon jerked his head upward in comprehension.

"Oh, I see! You mean the war! And you've been right on the spot where the fighting is? Pretty lively up there, isn't it? Something stirring most all the time?"

"I imagine so." The other man's accent was amazingly diffident, and Harmon peered at him, incredulous.

"Good Lord, don't you know?"

"Not a great deal. I happened to get hit the first day I was in the trenches."

"But you got in it again afterward, I suppose? I'll bet you did!"

"No."

"What! You never got back at all? Just one day, and you're through?"

"Yes. After I was discharged from hospital I was discharged from the army too. Permanently unfit."

"English army?"

"No—French."

"Well, that's some record!" said Harmon appreciatively. "That certainly is some record! Not to say tough luck—the toughest kind. Going back home, I take it?"

"Looks that way, doesn't it?"

Harmon ignored the sarcasm.

"Back to work, eh? What did you say your line is?"

"I didn't say. I haven't any just now."

Harmon pondered a second.

"Oh! Gentleman of leisure? Soldier of fortune, eh? Well, I wouldn't worry if I were you. You're disappointed; that's natural . . . but the world hasn't come to an end yet. Of course it is something of a come-down to leave the army and get into harness again, but after all there's plenty of excitement right in the United States. Big work to be done, son! Big money to make. And it helps the war along, too. I tell you there never was a bigger opportunity to make money than there is right this minute. The hard job isn't to find the scheme; it's to find the men to run it. Don't you worry . . . you'll land something right off the bat!"

"Thanks for the compliment!"

"Oh, it's no compliment! Anybody can make money these days. It's a plain statement of fact . . . Say, let's go in and have something. Come in and be sociable. What you want's a drink. Am I right or am I wrong?"

"Well—"

"And that's what the doctor ordered! Come on! It's on me."

The other man hesitated, and at last succumbed, out of sheer unconcern, to a companionship he realized in advance would be distasteful.

"All right," he consented briefly; and together, arm in arm, they stumbled and tacked across the treacherous deck, and presently crossed the threshold into the hazy light of the smoking room. Harmon, smiling broadly, wiped the brine from his smarting eyes.

"Now, then," he said, "what particular brand of poison do you—"

And broke off short and stared, fascinated, at the extraordinary young man in front of him.

He was anywhere from twenty-five to forty, this American from the distant trenches, and his age was as hard to guess as a clever woman's; there was something about him peculiar to youth, and yet when his face was in repose, he might easily have claimed two score of years and gone undisputed. It was a face which suggested both the fire of immaturity and the drain of experience; there was breathtaking gravity about it, a hint of the dignity of marble, of ageless permanence. It was a slightly thin face, scarred by a heavy line or two, and indelibly stamped with the evidence of intense thought and inward suffering; but it lacked the hollows which, at the first glance, should have supported the evidence. It was a thin and oval face, with a mouth of large and sympathetic sweetness, a forehead white and high, a prominent, delicate nose, and irises of clear, luminous gray. It wasn't altogether an Anglo-Saxon type of countenance, nor was it definitely European; it seemed rather to have taken all the better qualities from several races. It was a face to inspire immediate trust and confidence and respect, and Harmon, despite his lack of practice in all three of these reactions, was evidently attracted by it.

"Vichy-Celestins for me," said the old-young man indifferently.

"I'll . . . I guess I'll have vichy too," said Harmon, relaxing. "If it wasn't for something I can't just describe I'd say . . . well, never mind. Er . . . what business have you been in, by the way?"

The younger man's reply was tardy and not particularly gracious.

"Why, the longest time I ever put in at any one business was selling insurance. The last thing I did was to sell bonds. Why?"

Harmon stiffened. "A salesman!"

Good Lord! That's the last thing in the world I'd have . . . but, say! You must have been a whirlwind! Why, a man with a presence like yours would hardly have to open his mouth! You've got a sort of . . . I'll be hanged if I know what to call it . . . but a kind of feeling, if you know what I mean. Salesman! Why, all you need is an introduction and a dotted line!"

The young man laughed rather forlornly and slipped his vichy.

"Just at present I haven't either."

Harmon's gaze was unfaltering, and his interest and admiration bounded higher. Mechanically, in accordance with his habits, he was striving to discover how this new acquaintance might be put to practical use. "Was

CHURCH NOTES

(Other churches on page 8.)

FIRST CHURCH

Weymouth Heights
"Habits, can you pick them? Have you got the kind you want?" A Practical talk for all people will be given
Sunday morning in the First Church.
Should the weather be very cold, the meeting will be held in the chapel.
You are invited to worship with us and to hear the talk that helps.

At the evening meeting held at 7.15 o'clock in the chapel the "Great Facts of Famous Hymns" will be told. The congregation will sing each hymn with the points of interest fresh in mind as set forth by the pastor. You will be sure both to enjoy and profit by this service. A Sunday evening program of this nature held in November met with generous approval, and with the request that meetings of like nature be held in the future.
Come and take any seat in the room.

Junior C. E. at 3.45
Senior C. E. at 6.00 P. M.
Miss Florence B. Nash will have charge of the social and fellowship meeting on Thursday evening. Subject, Peter and John in Samaria; Acts 8: 4-39. You will have a hearty welcome.

THIRD UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

North Weymouth
"Religion: Man's First and Highest Duty," will be the topic for our service on Sunday at 2.30 P. M. The pastor will preach for the closing service as pastor. Please do not come unless you have yourself to give to this service, and are ready to carry away for thought whatever is offered.
Music forms a part of our service, rendered by our choir under Miss Deane's direction. All seats are free.
Bring friends.

Church school will meet at 1.15 P.
M. This month is membership month.
Our attendance must be better. If its warm enough to slide, slide down to the church and count for something. Mrs. E. R. Sampson, superintendent.

The Young People's Union will join at Quincy in the district meeting of young people for a social at 6.30 and a service at 7 P. M. Mr. Whipple will speak on "Are you the Hope of the World?"

The Old Colony Conference met on Tuesday at North Weymouth, fifty-five attending. Speakers were Rev.
Rufus Dix, Rev. Mr. Pearson, Rev.
Harold Marshall and Rev. Stanley
Manning. A fine dinner was served at noon by North Weymouth ladies under Mrs. E. R. Sampson.

The North Weymouth Men's Club entertains the Weymouth Club on Monday night at 7. Be there!

PORTER M. E. CHURCH

Lovell's Corner
Rev. Arthur S. Emig, minister.
On Sunday Mrs. Emig will speak at the morning service at 10.30. In the evening at 7.00 Mr. Emig will speak on "The Spirit and Message of the Des Moines Convention."

Bible School at 11.45
Junior League at 3.30
Epworth League at 6.15
Weekly prayer and discussion service is held on Thursday evening at 7.30.

This church is a community church and as such welcomes and challenges everyone of the community to cooperate in its activities.

FIRST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

Weymouth
"Religion: Man's First and Highest Duty," will be Mr. Whipple's subject on Sunday at 10.30 A. M. The religious service of this church is a searching for the best in men and women.
It is a place for man to find himself.
The best of us lose ourselves pretty often and we all need to keep watch for the truths of life. Perhaps this service will help you answer some perplexing question of your own. "If a man thinks long enough he will ultimately find the truth." Don't stop thinking and learning!

Church school is at 11.45. The children who have been coming want need to be urged. Let them bring a stranger and help boost. Miss Esther Bicknell, superintendent.

A most interesting Men's Club meeting was held on Tuesday evening, with Edward W. Hunt as the speaker. In a real sense a community religious consciousness was created by Mr.
Hunt's remarks, a true confusion of tongues took place, and the thirty or more men gathered together felt that a great lay prophet had come to them.
Mr. Hunt emphasized the paramount importance of working and talking and voting for a new Memorial Hall, large enough for community purposes, and for an adequate celebration in 1922.

Finally Mr. Hunt spoke of the condition of the churches in the community and drove home with telling power the realities which thinking men have to face. The churches today, in spite of the money being raised in the drives, do not seem to be going anywhere. Mr. Hunt's plea was for a community interest expressed concretely through a community church, working seven days a week for the welfare of the whole community.

"Young men see visions, and old men, dream dreams," Mr. Hunt is not a young man, neither is he dreaming a dream. He is an older man seeing new visions. And, because of the visions seen by such as he, old and young, behold there will be a new heaven in a new earth. "God (still) moves in a mysterious way."
Young folk! Go to Quincy Sunday night and attend the Y. P. C. U. get-together, Quincy Church, 6.30 P. M.
Sunday night. Take your friend.

mouth, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Ruth L. Harrington and Mary L. Miles, of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Nellie E. Raymond and Mildred R. South, of Brain-tree, in said County of Norfolk, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situate in said Weymouth, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point marked by a spike in a fence in the southeasterly side of Shawmut Street forty-seven and 78-100 (47.78) feet distant northeasterly from a private way, the line runs southeasterly fifty-four and 70-100 (54.70) feet to an old post; thence continuing southeasterly thirty-two and 86-100 (32.86) feet to a spike in a post; thence continuing southeasterly twenty-seven and 70-100 (27.70) feet to a point marked by a nail in a fence; thence turning and running northerly by a fence and wall sixty-two and 12-100 (62.12) feet to a point; thence northerly but more easterly fifteen and 15-100 (15.15) feet to a point; thence westerly sixty-three and 83-100 (63.83) feet to a point, and thence continuing westerly but more northerly thirty-eight and 50-100 (38.50) feet to a spike in a post on the southeasterly side of Shawmut Street; thence southwesterly by the southeasterly side of Shawmut Street by three corners, twelve and 18-100 (12.19) feet, thirty-five and 21-100 (35.21) feet and forty-seven and 87-100 (47.87) feet.
Being bounded southwesterly by land of Lucy M. Loring and Pasquale Garofalo et al; easterly by land of Frank
H. Holmes; northerly by Pasquale Garofalo et al and Frank H. Holmes and northwesterly by Shawmut Street; and containing 9129 square feet, more or less.

Petitioners admit the above described land is subject to a right to pass and repass, cart and drive, when necessary, to his own land, granted to Lovell Bicknell and his heirs and assigns, over the northerly end of the above described land, as shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis,
Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifteenth day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and twenty.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

HOW WEYMOUTH OBSERVED HER 250 ANNIVERSARY

The following hymn, composed for the occasion, with the accompanying music, by John J. Loud, Esq., of Weymouth, was then sung:

Our Fathers bequeath'd this fair heritage to us,
Thro' toil and thro' danger they'd made it their own;

O long may their mem'ry be cherish'd with honor,
Their names and their virtues thro' ages be known.

To gain here a refuge they crossed the dread ocean,
They bid farewell bravely to kindred and home;

We reap the reward of their noble devotion,
We gather rich harvests from seeds they have sown.

O give them the praise of an earnest endeavor,
The germs of true growth in this nation to plant;

For righteousness ever exalteth a people;
To greed and oppression no blessing He'll grant.

Then boast of your sires, sons of Weymouth, forever!
Their deeds on the record shine fair as the morn;

Though silent their voices, most grandly these call you
Your own generation to serve and adorn.

These exercises were interspersed with excellent music by Stetson's Weymouth Band (including the performance of the "General Bates Quick-step," composed by Mr. W. F. Burrell, of Weymouth), and by Bowles' South Abington Band; and at noon, during the moving of the procession, a salute of one hundred guns was fired upon the summit of King Oak Hill by a section of Maj. Dexter H. Follett's Light Battery.

At about half-past five o'clock, P. M. the memorial services were brought to a close with the singing of "Old Hundred" by the audience, followed by the mutual and hearty congratulations of visitors and citizens upon the success of the Celebration.

Arrangements had been made for a display of fireworks upon King Oak Hill on the evening of the day of the celebration, and a considerable company had gathered to witness the exhibition; but the occurrence of a thunder-shower soon after the time fixed for the artificial spectacle, greatly marred its brilliancy, to the sad disappointment of the youthful crowd, who had earnestly striven (but against the fates) to complement the interesting services of the day with a splendid show of pyrotechnics. But the storm-king was abroad, and the shower soon developed into an easterly storm, accompanied by a high wind, which compelled the striking of the mammoth tent, thus driving from their temporary shelter the young patriots, who sought their homes with some abatement indeed of their enthusiastic ardor, but with the firm resolve that they would "try again" on the recurrence of this anniversary.

For the Busy Farmer Who Raises Chickens

THIS YEAR, don't bother with troublesome oil lamps to raise your chicks.

Get your birds out early and breed 300 to 500 in one flock with one Candee Colony Brooder, and you will have to tend only one heater—buy coal for but one fire—save labor and fuel and have more poultry profit at the end of the year.

Attention once or twice a day is all the Candee needs because it is self-regulating and gives the chicks a correct heat all the time, and because its coal magazine feeds the fuel to the fire evenly and continuously.

CANDEE COLONY BROODERS

CAST IRON COAL BURNING SELF REGULATING

You need a big Brooder with big features like the Candee to raise big flocks. The heater, the grate, the hover, the depth of the felt curtain, the "breathing space" for the chicks under the hover—everything about the Candee is big.

And you want real value for your brooder money. The Candee is built on bones to last a lifetime. Its heater is all cast iron and it is a stove for business.

Its guaranteed all-woven-wool felt curtain keeps the heat under the hover, where it belongs, so that the stove is not required to heat the whole room to keep the chicks warm, which saves much fuel.

A safe size 12-inch grate—a special safety grate shaker and sealed base that prevent hot coals falling into the litter—and a swinging hover section that makes it easy to get at the heater to attend the fire and clean up—are other features that make the Candee your one best investment.

Drive over to my place and see this up-to-date method of raising more chicks at less expense and greater profit. I will be glad to show you my Candee Colony Brooder and how it works.

ROADSTERS TWO

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Helen Moore had broken the speed limit, successfully, on her way out to her father's country home at Great Neck. Her little roadster had, eaten up the miles as if famishing until they were all consumed.

Helen had invited a large number of friends, on the spur of the moment, for a week-end party, and there was scant time to provision the closed home before the first guest should arrive. They would all motor out from the city and would get a mighty cold reception unless she hurried a bit.

Arriving at Great Neck, Helen drew up at the butcher's, and her purchases put, as usual, in her car, she went with them to the grocery shop to make another order.

Her little roadster swung against the curb a few yards beyond the door. A delivery wagon was directly in front, so Helen took the next best position.

Inside the shop she made her large order.

"Just put them in the car," she told the grocery boy.

"The roadster?" questioned the boy, as, laden with the huge box, he obeyed orders.

A nod and a smile answered him, and Helen then turned to write a check in payment.

It was a scant five minutes before she emerged ready for the final spin that would lead her, well-stocked with food for the inner man, up to the big driveway to her country home.

Helen sent a swift glance into the car, to make sure her big box was safely there.

There was no box! And the boy had returned empty-handed to the store before she had finished making out her check. She hastened back to demand of the grocer the whereabouts of her order.

"I put it in the roadster," said the boy, and accompanied Helen to the door. There his heart gave a nasty turn. There must have been two similar cars by the curb and he had placed the groceries in the wrong car.

Helen grasped the facts immediately, and scanned the main street for the other roadster. If it were in sight it would be quicker to follow and get her box, rather than wait until a duplicate order was made up.

"That's probably the car turning the bend," she decided, and swiftly jumped into her seat. Being in a tremendous hurry, and trying to follow the direction of that fast disappearing car, Helen did all the wrong things. She swung into reverse gear, stalled her engine, almost banged head-on into the one trolley in sight, and finally got away.

She sped after the receding car as if she longed to kill every inhabitant of Great Neck. It seemed often as if fortune were favoring that other car, for when Helen seemed about to spring alongside it she invariably had to slacken for a truck or the sudden appearance of a child in the roadway.

Wrath was gathering in her eyes and her cheeks were scarlet with excitement. Had she not been the daughter of a well-known townsman Helen undoubtedly would have screamed at the occupant of that twin roadster to stop and give her her groceries. Time was getting shorter, and she realized that her guests would be cooling impatient heels on her massive stone doorstep.

The man, for it was a man in gray tweed cap pulled well over his eyes, was oblivious to the fact that he was being angrily followed.

But suddenly he turned off a long bit of clear road, and in another second it would have seemed as if the Vanderbilt cup race was on, for the two cars careened along that highway as if in hot pursuit of a whirlwind. It was then that the man knew he was being watched, but merely as the occupant of one speedy car trying to pass the other.

They went hood to hood until about the finish of clear road. It was then that the tweed cap driver saw that his opponent was a girl. He had not made the observation before, being well content with trying the full capacity of his engine's power.

Now, with true gentlemanly tact he shut off gas, slowed almost imperceptibly, and let the girl drive well past him. He felt to wondering then if he had been racing with a mad woman, for she was turning straight in the roadway so that a collision was only averted by swift, intelligent use of the brake and steering wheel.

The sudden stop flung Davis with a bang against his wheel. It was then that he heartily gave vent to an expression not flattering to woman drivers.

"You have my groceries!" the angry sentence flashed from one car to the other.

Davis stared at the flaming cheeks and brilliant eyes of his stormy accuser, then dragging reluctant eyes away he glanced down into his car.

Then he did the most unpardonable thing he had so far done. He laughed uproariously.

Helen Moore was furious.

Simultaneously both engines were shut off as if to pave the way for a conversation under less strenuous circumstances. Having quiet now at their command it was Davis who spoke next.

"What makes you think I have your property in my car? My house-keeper was in the village making an order and was going to put the box in here with me."

Helen sank back a trifle appeased, for in her heart she knew the man was in no way responsible for her predicament—yet she could not help a glow of anger. He might have looked to see if the box was his before dashing off like a tornado with it.

This much she told him before even as much as a ghost of a smile was permitted to dawn about her lips.

"Then where are my groceries?" demanded Davis, as if Helen were responsible for their loss. "I have a gang waiting at the house now for food."

"I suppose yours are back in the shop," Helen suggested. "If you don't mind, I would like that box—my guests will have gone back to town if I don't get back soon."

"That lets me out of getting over to Smallwoods' to arrange for the musicians I wanted for tomorrow night," Davis was a bit peevish himself now, and Helen's tone became wonderfully soft.

"I'm so sorry," she said, "but I have already engaged those musicians for my dance tomorrow night." She was watching Davis now as he removed the box of groceries from one roadster to the other, and as she watched him her interest grew. He was the type of man that any womanly girl would like, and like very much.

"Those coons! And they are the best on Long Island. It was because of them I got my bunch out here," lamented Davis. "Those men could make a motorcar dance. Well—you got them first." He was standing close to Helen now, after having deposited the box safely in its rightful place. "I am sorry you had to chase your groceries, but I was really not to blame—was I?" He waited his answer, and Helen knew he would wait until he got it. He was that type of man.

"Not in the least," she quickly told him, and did not regret the color that crept into her cheeks. It told him so plainly that she rather liked him. Then, impetuously, she added: "I wonder if it would be awfully unconventional if I were to ask all your house party over tomorrow night to—join our dance? It is really a pity not to all enjoy those musicians—isn't it?"

Davis smiled swiftly and with unmistakable joy.

"By Jove! That's great of you." Then quickly, and with direct meaning, he added: "And does that mean that my party can dance with your party, and—"

"In other words," laughed Helen, "you mean, will I dance with you—isn't that it?"

"I would say it was," admitted Davis frankly.

And as Helen started the motor of the little red roadster that was twin to that other one: "I am so glad the grocery boy—made a mistake."

And then began that other race—the one on the road to love.

The Last Resort.

An eminent engineer said in our hearing yesterday that in Italy the workers are giving two hours of their time as a free gift to the state. They realize that increased production means ultimately increased wealth. In Germany there are signs of the same spirit among the colliers. But in old England the following story admirably illustrates the industrial situation: Two miners were discussing the minimum wage. "Say, Bill," said the first, "what's this 'ere minimum wage?" Bill spat. "The minimum wage? That's what we gets for goin' down; an' if we wants ter make any more brass, we goes and does some work for it."—London Morning Post.

Change Means Growth.

No man ought to be the same man he was ten years ago. Nature teaches us that we are new creatures by renewing the cells and tissues every seven years. Yet in the midst of physical change it is possible for a man to remain static in the higher things of life. He may be so constant to a youthful ideal that he is looked upon as the embodiment of stability, but he will soon be recognized as a fossil from which life has gone. Life is a growing thing. It must increase. As soon as the sum of its energy is required to keep up the repairs of the human animal he begins to take a place among those headed for the sunset side of life. Man is either growing into a bigger self or he is growing into his fossilage. Man must change.—Exchange.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs. Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Then It Started Something.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Glycerine Compound, and 1/4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

THE BUTTERFLY

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

The sun room of the great hotel was filled with guests upon a certain fall morning.

When the black-haired girl in darning, but becoming crimson entered the room, there was, for a moment, a lull of expectancy in the murmured voices.

"Who," asked a certain fine-looking man, "is that?" He leaned forward alertly as the crimson-clad figure passed the couch upon which he and a fair companion were seated.

The girl questioned raised supercilious eyebrows. "That," she replied, "is the grand dowager's new companion-secretary. Rather dashing for her position, don't you think? And at present the sensation of the hotel. Mrs. Mills-Forbes, it seems, accepted hastily this unknown young woman's services. Marietta May—charmingly unusual name, you see—presented herself in answer to Mrs. Forbes' advertisement with but one recommendation—that of the daughter of a former family of unquestioned standing. This formerly well-known young woman has been, since the death of her father and the unfortunate ending of his business career, in humble circumstances. In fact, no one knows, or perhaps no one has troubled themselves to ascertain, just what has become of Celia Sanders. But her word itself imbues confidence. So—Mrs. Mills-Forbes engaged Marietta May upon the strength of that recommendation, which may have been, for all we know, a forged letter. However, the companion-secretary is at present under suspicion of having stolen—not only a valuable necklace of her employer's but a wonderful string of pearls as well, belonging to another habitue of this hotel. The jewelry was found missing from the guest's room one evening, having been taken during a ballroom affair when Miss May was the only person remaining upon that floor of the building. A plainly marked handkerchief of hers, crumpled and lying in the very secret drawer from which the pearl necklace was taken, was the first clue to the culprit. As there was no actual proof as to the beautiful Marietta's guilt, it was decided not to put her upon her guard with an accusation, but to have her secretly watched.

His eyes followed the dark-eyed, attractive face of the girl suspected, regretfully as his chatty informant left him with a nodded, "Good morning." Beneath all the bravery of the companion's attire, her eyes seemed to gaze wistfully from her white face. "A pity!" John Calvert muttered, while for the first time he became aware of a small, brown-clad figure, seated upon a wide-cushioned hassock almost directly at his feet.

"You are sorry for Miss May?" she asked in a swift, soft tone. "You doubt the evidence of her guilt?"

"I am inclined to doubt it," Calvert replied. "Her face seems to express patient suffering, a sort of resigned martyrdom to misunderstanding."

Impulsively the little figure before him arose, the girl held out her hand. "It is true," she said breathlessly, "Marietta May is misunderstood, misrepresented. All her life has been that way. She is good. She tries to do her best, even that scarlet dress which she wears and which attracts so much unkind criticism, is worn to gratify old Mme. Forbes' whim. She likes gay colors about and cannot wear them herself, but do you think that she troubles to explain this? No."

When he returned from business that evening the hotel was in commotion.

"What is it?" he asked of the girl who had been his former informant, and she told him.

"Such a surprising document," she began. "You remember about the lost jewels and the companion-secretary under suspicion? Well, she has been proven innocent and the culprit—whom do you think? No less a person than the great Mme. Forbes herself. She possessed an insane desire, it appears, for the pearl necklace of her friend, and after having taken it, decided to allow the blame to fall upon Miss May. For this reason she gave the hue and cry about her necklace also, and left a handkerchief belonging to her companion lying in plain view in the drawer where her friend's necklace had reposed. Isn't it scandalous?"

"Shameful!" Calvert emphatically agreed.

"But who," he asked, "discovered the real culprit?"

The girl pointed across the room to where a small creature sat at work upon a golden butterfly.

"This is the climax of the sensation," she said. "When Celia Sanders heard of the accusation of her friend, she came here and begged to be allowed secretly to unravel the mystery. So she has sat among us, listening, waiting, absorbed apparently in her embroidery, yet ever alert for a clue. She found it yesterday when Mrs. Mills-Forbes boastfully exposed her knowledge of pearls and her passion for them. When Madame was absent from her room it was searched and the pearls found, concealed in a hidden pocket. The discovery was unbelievably simple, but it took little Golden Butterfly to catch the clue."

"Thanks," said John Calvert briskly. He walked across the room to where the small girl sat weaving her golden threads.

"Come," he said gently, "I want to talk to you."

And with her swift, responsive smile Celia Saunders obeyed.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 3 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach. There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impure blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year. The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this. One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.

SETTLED HIS RIVAL'S HASH
Man's Remark Could Only Be Classified as a Remarkable Inspiration of Genius.

Every man thinks all sorts of things about his rival, but not every man is genius enough to say exactly the right thing to lower his rival's opinion of the same rival. But recently a remark was overheard in a downtown restaurant which proved that one man possessed that ability. He and his best girl were eating when the other man entered the restaurant. Immediately he came to them, shook hands with the girl and, after being introduced to the first man, talked a few minutes.

Now, the girl had quoted this second man so much that his name to the first man was like the sight of a red flag. And she firmly expected a stormy session when the intruder left. But instead of that the escort calmly went on with his eating, offering only one comment: "There's one man I'll never be jealous of again."

ASPIRIN INTRODUCED BY "BAYER" IN 1900

Look for name "Bayer" on the tablets, then you need never worry.

JOSEPH O'BRIEN ASSUMES DUTIES AS OFFICIAL OF NEW YORK BASEBALL CLUB

JOSEPH D. O'BRIEN

Joseph D. O'Brien, the new secretary of the New York Giants, has taken charge of the Fifth avenue building offices.

O'Brien is a familiar figure to New York fandom and a capable executive. Indeed, he was club secretary with the late John T. Brush and preceded Foster in office. O'Brien is a baseball man of varied experience, whose career has been brilliant in the extreme. As president of the American association he placed the Class AA circuit in the first rank of minor league baseball.

John B. Foster, the retiring secretary, has been a popular official. New York football fans owe him a debt of gratitude. It was his untiring efforts that brought annual army-navy and other major gridiron battles to the Polo grounds.

NAVY TO HAVE DOBIE AGAIN

Coach's Contract Does Not Expire Until End of Next Season—Will Stick Another Year.

Gilmour Dobie will continue as coach of the Naval Academy football team for one more year at least. It developed the other day and was confirmed in official quarters that the contract between the coach and the naval athletic authorities made at the beginning of the season of 1918 covered three years and not two, as generally supposed. Dobie will, therefore, be in charge again next season.

NOTES of SPORTDOM

England expects to send a cricket eleven to Australia for the 1920-21 season.

Six baseball players named Miller are on the National league reserve list.

Baseball once was a sport. Later it became a business. Now it's a fight.

Harvard college has announced that it will be in for intercollegiate air races.

Jerome Keogh, veteran cue expert, has been playing with the same cue for 22 years.

Alfred Shrubbs has secured the position of athletic coach at Oxford university, England.

George Moriarty, who spends the off season in Woodstock, Ill., has been engaged again as an American league umpire.

Jack Coombs has been signed by Hugh Jennings to act as coach for the Tiger hurlers during the coming season.

A new French flyweight boxer named Juillard is being groomed for a clash with Jimmy Wilde, the English champion.

University of Virginia baseball team will make a trip north to play Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Amherst.

Hogiro Haneishi, a Japanese jiu jitsu expert, has been added to University of Illinois' athletic coaching school staff.

Bob O'Loughlin, captain-elect of the Columbia University varsity crew, has resigned, as he expected to graduate in February.

With the Moreings backing him up, Bill Rodgers expects to put the Sacramento team in the Pacific coast league race next season.

Marty Cross, New York welterweight, has been suspended for six months by the New Jersey commission for failure to show up for a fight.

The board of athletic control at Princeton university has voted to number of Princeton varsity football players next fall irrespective of what the other colleges do.

Miss Alexia Stirling of Atlanta, the national golf champion, may go to England next spring to compete in the annual tournament for the British women's golf championship.

To date the American boxing promoters have been a bad lot in the bidding for a Dempsey-Carpenter championship fight, the French and English promoters leading the way.

Two leading professional golf players may visit this country next year, namely, Abe Mitchell, the latest European sensation, and George Duncan, while Harry Vardon, James Braid and I. H. Taylor are possible visitors.

To Supply Natural Gas Deficiency.
It is expected that in the near future artificial gas for heating purposes will be substituted largely for natural gas in the Pittsburgh and other districts where a considerable shortage in supply of natural gas has developed. This was the prediction made at a conference held recently under the auspices of the public service commission in Pittsburgh. The Philadelphia company, which has been a large supplier of natural gas for many years, it is stated, is now prepared to supply 7,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas per day, and expects in the near future to be able to supply 30,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas per day.

The other Sunday, first-class and second-class rank honors were bestowed on a number of boy scouts at the Temple Israel at Terre Haute. A little candidate sat during the ceremony, his interest so intent that every one near him was interested. When the meeting was over he turned to the man next him. "I wish every man had to make all those promises before he could vote," he said earnestly. "We'd have a better country if they did—wouldn't we?" The man agreed with him, too.—Indianapolis News.

Silenced Passengers.
My slow speaking and patient friend was driving along in a country of dangerous curves. His sister and brother-in-law were in the back seat. "A car is back of you; blow your horn for this curve"; "Drive more carefully here, then pick up for the grade ahead," came continually from the passengers. Finally my friend stopped in front of a village hardware store. "What on earth, are you stopping here for?" "To get a horn and steering wheel for the back seat," he slowly drawled.—Exchange.

BY MOTOR TO OMAHA

instance, your genial postmaster (my old pal) and Sam were real landmarks with our pipes. Well do you know from Sept. 10, I have not known what a good smoke is, for you cannot possibly buy flake tobacco, only cigars. Now a little about Omaha. The population is over 200,000. Second live stock market in the world. Center of thirteen national highways, also largest agricultural city. Leading grain market (one wonderful building it is). Has nine trunk lines of railroad and twenty two branches. It is laid out in blocks, with very long main streets, contains many fine buildings and hotels, some 18 to 20 stories in height.

The court house is very fine but surely shows trace of the great lynching riot of Sept. 28. Am sorry to say this unrest is still showing and being the centre we get them in from all places, cow boys galore, Mexicans, and in fact all races. There is a constant display of crime. Murders, burglaries and highway robberies and hold ups take place every day. You are never safe even in your home, a constant falling out of police and higher commissioners, shows a sad display of dealing with this condition of affairs.

Through our stay here has been short, I feel it is no place for my children, and apart from the financial end of it, one looks back to that restful neighborhood of the Weymouths. Rents are frightful. I enclose photo of my house for which I pay $55 month. Being furnace heat I have already had seven tons of coal. Mind it is cold here and we got it in early November, snow 12 inches deep and still continues this way. I have garage with nice living room attached which Sonny has for his study and wireless room.

You will agree I have fully complied with your request for some description of our travels and hope I have not tired you.

Yours very sincerely

REAL ESTATE SALES

The following Weymouth transfers of real estate have been recorded this week at the Norfolk registry at Dedham.

William A. Evans to Elizabeth A. Coin, Saunders street.
Maria J. Ford to D. Arthur Brown, Woodland.

Solomon Ford to D. Arthur Brown, Whitman's Pond.

Joseph E. Gardner to Theobald Baumerster, Mill street.

J. Savage Gerald Inc to Elizabeth C. Kennedy, Sherwood road.

Henry S. Moody to William B. Hunt, Idlewell.

George L. Newton to D. Arthur Brown, Whitman's Pond.

Martha F. Savage to Josephine M. Mugford, Bicknell road.

Lydia (B or A) Taber to James K. Pratt, Hawthorne street.

NEW REGISTRY RECORD

The business done at the Norfolk Registry of Deeds was the largest in the history of the office and is believed to be due to the fact that many renters and leaseholders, unable to build because of the high cost of labor and materials, are buying the estates they are occupying. The real estate transactions for the year were 22,216. The total for 1918 was 15,295.

Town Meeting Questions At Board of Trade

On account of the many very important matters that are coming before the voters at the Annual Town Meeting in March, the Board of Trade has decided to call a special open meeting, the same to be held at the Clapp Memorial Building next Wednesday evening, Feb. 4.

The committee appointed at the last annual meeting to consider the advisability of erecting a Memorial Building will be there, to tell and show what they have been doing. This very important subject and the proper location of the Memorial Hall will be one of the articles taken up for consideration.

As the Annual Town Meeting in March will no doubt be one of the most important in the history of Weymouth it is earnestly hoped that there will be a large and enthusiastic gathering at this open meeting. Every body invited.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Weymouth Historical Society was held at the Fogg Library, South Weymouth. The subject under discussion was the "New History of Weymouth." The President, Mr. Howard H. Joy, reported on the steps being taken on the matter for the next town meeting. The society favored having the 300th Anniversary of the Settlement held in 1922.

The town seal came up for examination and there was a feeling that Weymouth should have a more simple seal. The present one has too much on it, and in its use one cannot tell all that is on it.

The following officers were elected for 1920:

President, Howard H. Joy
Vice president, Clarence W. Fearing Secretary, Rev. William Hyde
Treasurer, Walter L. Bates
Librarian, Miss Ruth N. Tower
Executive committee, The above and A. C. Gerstley

Nominating committee, H. B. Reed, M. C. Hawes, E. N. Hollis, Dr. R. H. Granger, P. H. Tirrell, F. T. Barnes Library committee, C. W. Fearing, Rev. Wm. Hyde, Ruth N. Tower, H. H. Joy.

Committee on order of business, the same as the Executive committee Delegates to the Bay State Historical League, Howard H. Joy, Clarence W. Fearing and Rev. William Hyde.

VISITING NURSE

Owing to the very heavy snow-fall, and difficulty in travelling, the visiting nurse has been obliged to walk to many of her cases during the past week. It is hoped that people living remote from the car lines, who call for her services, will be patient, and lenient in their opinions if the nurse is unable to reach them.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Britain Hurrying to Put Up a Barrier Against Bolsheviks in the Caucasus.

MAY REQUIRE 200,000 TROOPS

Holland Unwilling to Surrender Former Kaiser for Trial—Admiral Sims' Sensational Charges. —Administration Organ Booms Hoover for President.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Soviet Russia's threat against Persia, and consequently against all of southern Asia, as was foreseen, has so alarmed the British that they are hurrying to the defense of their great interests in that part of the world. Naval forces from the Mediterranean already have been sent into the Black sea and troops, probably about 10,000 of them at first, may be dispatched to the Caucasus at once. Batum, at the eastern point of the Black sea, is their first objective, and from there they will undertake to occupy and hold the line of the Tiflis-Baku railway running to the Caspian. Georgia and Azerbaijan, the two new republics which make up the peninsula between the inland seas, have asked assistance against the soviet forces, and the barrier against Trotsky's armies must be built there. According to dispatches from Paris the supreme council believes that ultimately at least 100,000 troops will be needed in the Caucasus, and perhaps the estimate will be doubled later. France, of course, because of her interests in Syria, is concerned only in a lesser degree than is Great Britain in the advance of the bolshevik toward Asia Minor. As her share, it is understood, France will relieve the British of all participation in the military work in the plebiscite area in Germany, the official announcement by Marshal Foch being that the British troops are "not ready." They had been waiting at Cologne for months for this duty, however, so it is fair to presume that they will be hurried to the near East.

The British already have small forces in Persia and have begun the organization of the Persian army, but the native troops cannot yet be counted on to any great extent. Aside from protecting her broad avenue to the Indian frontier, Britain is vitally interested in saving the immensely valuable oil fields of which Baku is the center. Moreover, under the secret treaty negotiated last summer, Great Britain is bound to protect Persia.

Another move to check the bolshevik is reported from Warsaw, where it is rumored that the Roumanians are preparing to occupy Odessa and organize its defenses against the soviet forces. Preceding these developments came the news that the supreme council had lifted the trade blockade against soviet Russia, and the bolshevik leaders hailed this as a sure sign that the allies were about to make peace with them. Their belief appears to be unfounded, though the disposition to withdraw from all intervention within the boundaries of Russia is growing nightly. Even the Japanese announce that they are about to quit Siberia, where, however, their protégé, General Semenov, has just declared himself supreme ruler because Admiral Kolchak has disappeared. The Czechs are still along the trans-Siberian railway in the Lake Balkal region and bloody conflicts between them and the Semenov troops are said to be frequent.

The essential weakness of the Kolchak-Semenov opposition to the bolshevik, as of the movements led by Denikin, Yudenitch and others, lies in the fact that all these leaders are recognized as representatives of the reactionary and monarchistic elements. Thus they cannot hold the support of the great mass of the people, who, if not bolsheviks, are social revolutionists and social democrats. For this reason, too, the presence of the Japanese in Siberia has been a constant source of trouble. Correspondents pay high tribute to General Graves for the way in which he has handled the American troops in Siberia in all this mixup.

The conference of the Baltic nations closed with the appointment of a commission to work out a plan for a defensive alliance against soviet Russia. Contrary to expectations, there was not even discussion of the question of making peace with the bolshevik. Lithuania wanted to form an alliance with Estonia and Latvia against Poland, and when this was rejected the Lithuanians virtually withdrew from the conference. It is intimated that Lithuania may make alliances with both soviet Russia and Germany, which would make the position of Poland even more uncomfortable than it now is.

Jugo-Slavia, at this writing, is standing pat on its claims to Fiume and its consequent refusal to accept the settlement of the Adriatic question adopted by Great Britain, France and Italy. It will hold to this position, said a Serbian diplomat, as long as President Wilson supported it, and would then be willing to submit the entire question to the League of Nations. The supreme council on Tuesday sent a note to Belgrade which, it was said, gave the Jugo-Slavs four days to reconsider their refusal, and threatened that if they persisted the principles set forth in the pact of London would be applied to the territories in dispute. This is more even than Italy now is asking.

The long awaited demand on Holland for the surrender of the former German emperor was dispatched by the allies, and near the end of the week the reply was received by the supreme council. Though at this time the reply had not been made public, it was generally understood that in it Holland refused to give up the refugee for trial, considering that this is her international duty and bearing in mind the fact that the Dutch constitution forbids extradition. The Dutch press denies that feelings of sympathy or antipathy have anything to do with the course adopted by the government. If the sanctity of William's refuge is to be preserved one wonders how Lloyd George can carry out his pre-election promise to bring him to justice. The possibility of trying and condemning him by default has been considered.

Politics, especially in a presidential election year, seizes on nearly everything for its own uses, and that is the fate that has befallen Admiral Sims' scathing criticism of the navy department and its chief, Secretary Daniels. It is being treated as a partisan matter by the senate, whose naval affairs committee has it in hand. The Republicans—excepting Senator Borah—are supporting the admiral, and the Democrats by the same token have rallied to the defense of Daniels. The most sensational charge made by Sims was that on his departure for England a high official of the department said to him: "Don't let the British pull the wool over your eyes. It is none of our business pulling their chestnuts out of the fire. We would as soon fight the British as the Germans."

Secretary Daniels flatly denies having said this, or anything like it, and the admiral said he would tell only the committee the name of the man who did. More important was the general charge that Sims never was given whole-hearted and efficient support by the department in the prosecution of the war at sea, and that the cost of Daniels' policy, or lack of policy, was the loss of many lives and much shipping. All of this was contained in a letter from Admiral Sims to the department, which the admiral made public at the demand of the senate subcommittee investigating the matter of naval decoration awards. The whole scandal will be given a thorough airing, and the Republicans will not overlook the additional material it may give them for the campaign.

The sensation of the week in domestic politics was the announcement of the New York World that it was for Herbert Hoover for president, on any ticket, "on a platform representing the kind of government which Mr. Hoover has exemplified in his public career."

Since the World has been the leading metropolitan organ of the Wilson administration this aroused great interest and some excitement in the Democratic camp. The important question, of course, was whether or not it meant that Mr. Hoover was the choice of Mr. Wilson. No one could answer this officially. Some of the Southern Democrats said they would not favor Hoover because they considered him a Republican; some of the members of the party from the West thought the farmers would oppose him because he put a fixed price on wheat and let cotton soar. Mr. Hoover himself maintained a dignified silence. The secretary of the Bryan league says Colonel House is responsible for the Hoover boom.

There has been some talk of Edward I. Edwards, the wet governor of New Jersey, as the Democratic nominee, and there, too, Mr. Bryan comes to the front. He says he would oppose any such movement and would not be a delegate to the convention if Nebraska should instruct for Edwards. Furthermore, if Homer S. Cummings favors Edwards he will never again be national chairman of the Democratic party if Bryan can prevent it. So there!

While the federal prohibition agents are seizing millions of dollars' worth of liquors and the bootleggers on the borders and the moonshiners everywhere are making small fortunes, one wisp of hope is held out to the wets. The Supreme court of the United States has granted to Rhode Island permission to institute in that court original proceedings to test the validity of both the prohibition amendment to the Constitution and the Volstead enforcement act. The suit is brought by direction of the Rhode Island legislature, which refused to ratify the amendment. It is alleged that the amendment is an interference with the state police powers and a violation of the fifth constitutional amendment, and is "supersaturatory, unconstitutional and void."

A generally overlooked feature of the prohibition law which is of immense interest to thousands of property owners was brought to public attention last week. This section imposes a fine of not more than $2,000 or a prison sentence of not more than two years on the owners of property upon which are displayed signs or posters advertising liquors which are intoxicating.

The first cargo of radicals deported from the United States was landed in Finland and on Monday of last week the reds crossed the border into Russia, where they were greeted by bolsterous crowds of their brother bolsheviks. Emma Goldman and Berkman were the last to cross the frozen river between the two countries. Preparations to send over a lot more of that ilk are proceeding and arrests are of daily occurrence. In Chicago William Bross Lloyd, the millionaire communist, and 34 of his fellows were indicted for conspiracy to overthrow the government.

Despite the severest kind of criticism from many eminent citizens of all parties, the majority in the New York assembly insisted on the suspension of the five Socialist members-elect, and they are now on trial before the assembly judiciary committee, charged with disloyalty. Some of the best lawyers the Socialist party can boast are engaged in the defense, but the committee excluded the New York City Bar association committee, headed by C. E. Hughes, from independent participation in the proceedings. That association was among those that condemned the action of the assembly. Morris Hillquit, chief counsel for the defendants, said if the decision was against them it would "let loose the violent revolution which we Socialists have always endeavored to stem."

Defeated for the presidency of France by Paul Deschanel, M. Clemenceau has retired from public life with the plaudits of his associates of the allied nations ringing in his ears. Millerand, a strong man, succeeds him as premier and as president of the peace conference. Clemenceau's downfall was not surprising, for, despite his splendid conduct of affairs during the war, he had a host of bitter enemies in France. The new government does not hold out to Germany any hopes of more lenient treatment than did the old.

MODERN HOME IN COLONIAL STYLE

Design for a House Containing Seven Rooms.

SUN PORCH AN ATTRACTION

Balance of the Exterior Follows the Colonial Style, While the Interior Is Comfortable and Convenient.

By WM. A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The simplicity that marked the exterior of the homes built in New England previous to and just after the Revolutionary War has had a noticeable effect on the home designs produced during the last few years. "Colonial houses" have been erected in many places, and are becoming more and more popular. The balance of the exterior is what gives them their principal charm from the outside, while inside they permit of a comfortable and convenient arrangement of the rooms.

While architects, perhaps, would not call the brick house shown in the accompanying illustration a "Colonial," it follows that style. The entrance, placed in the center of the house, the white porch columns; the duplication of windows on either side of the porch—all of these features are Colonial. But to this house has been added something unknown in Colonial days—a modern sun parlor, or living porch. Although the time in the history of a well recognized fact that brick homes are warm, and, consequently, easy to heat in the winter, and cool in summer.

Winter is the time to make a selection of a home building design. Making the selection should be done carefully and without haste. Mistakes, or rather a room arrangement that does not quite coincide with the ideas of the home builder, are difficult to remedy after the building is started, and besides are costly. Every prospective home builder has a pretty fair idea of the sort of home he wants—its exterior appearance and interior arrangement. But oftentimes these ideas are not practicable, or are more costly than expected. All of these things should be considered, and by consulting an experienced contractor or an architect, common mistakes will be avoided. Architects, contractors and material dealers all are experts in the building business and know how to get the best house for the money.

There is another advantage in deciding on the plans for the new home during the winter. Next spring will begin the greatest year in the history of the building industry. There will be as much work as can possibly be done; many predict more than the builders of the country can take care of. Consequently those home builders who wait until late in the spring to plan their home and engage a contractor are liable to be disappointed.

There never was a time when it was more advantageous for those who can possibly do so to build a home. The country when there was little comfort to be found in the home is suggested by this design, the house is modern in all respects. It is of standard brick construction, with outside, or veneer walls of face brick. It contains seven good rooms, three on the first floor and four on the second, besides the sun porch and bathroom. The size of the house is 36 by 26 feet, with an eight-foot porch projection at the side.

Accompanying the exterior view of the house are the floor plans, which show the arrangement of the rooms and their sizes. The entrance leads into a narrow hall, out of which run the stairs. To the left is the living room, 14 feet wide and 24 feet long. Set in the center of the outside wall is a large, open fireplace. On either side of the fireplace are doors that lead to the living porch. This arrangement brings the fireplace and chimney walls within the house, which is an economical building practice as the heat that the chimney may throw is kept inside. The two wide doors leading to the living porch also bring the two rooms together in such a manner as to give the impression of spaciousness.

On the other side of the entrance hall at the front of the house is the dining room, 11 feet 6 inches, by 15 feet. This room is made light and cheerful by a bay window at the side. At the rear of the dining room is the kitchen, 8 feet 6 inches, by 13 feet 6 inches, which has a large pantry adjoining.

Each of the four bedrooms upstairs opens off the central hall. Each bedroom is a corner room, permitting good ventilation, and also is convenient to the bathroom, placed at the rear. Closets are numerous. The basement extends under the whole house, with the exception of the living porch. Here is provided space for the heating plant, the fuel supply and room for the storage rooms of different kinds.

Brick homes have a distinct appeal to a large proportion of home builders. There is a solidity about a brick house that is impressive, while it is law of supply and demand is operating on the cost of renting, the supply being so far short of the demand that owners are getting rents which are all out of proportion to the investment. If a person now paying rent builds himself a home, he will find it a profitable investment, even though it costs more to build now than it did five years ago. But aside from the monetary consideration in home building, there is a satisfaction in living in one's own home that cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Bees Follow Airplane.

The owner of a large apiary in southeastern Missouri is mourning the loss of half his million bees, lured from home by a passing airplane. The plane was on its way to the funeral of a former lieutenant of the air service, the after cockpit heaped with fragrant magnolia blossoms and trailing a magnificent wreath. Passing over the bee farm, the alluring odor was wafted to the hives. The bees swarmed at once and were last seen as a large cloud dwindling into the far west after the fleeing airplane. The chase continued for at least twenty miles.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Ancient Scandinavian Art.

A wealth of craft romance has lain hidden in the monument of Queen Asa of Norway, mother and grandmother of kings. The discovery of the ship has revealed the existence, in the ancient Viking days, of an art community in the wood carvers of Osberg. Judging from the quality of the specimens gathered in honor of their patron, Queen Asa, in "The Osberg Ship," she must have drawn to her court all the great artists of Scandinavia. The Viking queen of the ninth century was unmistakably a lover of art to whom Norway and the world owe the possession of a unique art collection.

She Hated Laziness.

A traveling man was eating in a stuffy little restaurant one very hot summer day. There were no screens at the windows or the door. The proprietress herself waited on her customers and shooed flies from the table at the same time. Her energetic but vain efforts attracted the attention and roused the sympathy of the traveling man, who said:

"Would it not be better to have your windows and the door screened?" "Well, yes, I s'pose that would be some," replied the woman, after thinking a moment, "but 'twould look m' lazy like."

Completing a tow of 250 miles, the steam trawler Sea Bird reached "T" wharf, Boston, with the Curlew, a sister trawler, disabled by a broken steering gear. The Curlew's quadrant broke as she was about to start for port. A jury gear was rigged, but it did not prove effective and the Sea Bird was requested by wireless to stand by and pass a line as soon as the weather moderated.

Walter C. Adams, director of the Massachusetts state department of fisheries and game has issued an appeal in behalf of the useful wild birds of the state which, he says, are in danger of starving because of the severity of the weather. He asks that such birds be fed and announces that grain for that purpose will be shipped by the state free of charge to interested persons who will apply to his department for it.

Dennis H. Finn, a former member of the Massachusetts legislature and for years prominent in Lawrence politics, was granted a commutation of his sentence in state prison, where he had served four years of an eight to nine year term for assault with intent to murder Paul M. Hannigan of Lawrence. The sentence was commuted about an hour after the funeral service for Mr. Hannigan was conducted at Lawrence.

Mrs. Ida Garvey of Burlington, Vt., has asked the authorities to assist her in locating her son, Walter S. Garvey, who has been missing since Jan. 8. On that date the youth sent his mother a telegram from Fredericksburg, Va., saying that he was on his way home. Mrs. Garvey says that her son suffers loss of memory whenever slightly ill and that she fears that he has been injured and unable to reveal his identity.

It is learned from Ralph H. Gaskell, agent of the agricultural service for Essex County, Mass., that farmers throughout that district are co-operating more earnestly than was anticipated by the United States Agricultural Department and the Massachusetts Agricultural College in the movement for pure breed cows. In a recent carload of cows from Maine were nine pure-breed Ayrshire, of which three were purchased by John S. Lawrence of 50 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, who conducts an extensive farm on Ipswich road, Topsfield, and the remainder were purchased by Dr. E. W. Babson of Gloucester, G. E. Stillings of Saugus and A. H. Cousins of Amesbury. Several of the cows have records of more than 10,000 pounds of milk production each per year.

Some 200 farmers from all parts of Maine met at the State House in Augusta to seek a solution of the fertilizer problem. Many manufacturers were also present at the meeting, at which Gov. Milliken presided. Commissioner Roberts of the Department of Agriculture recently made a ruling barring all fertilizer compounds that contained any "appreciable" amount of boron, as he said it had proved disastrous to potato and other plants. The word "appreciable" was so indefinite that manufacturers have refused, under that risk, to ship any fertilizer into Maine, and the farmers were becoming alarmed. The manufacturers contended that under the American process it was impossible to make fertilizers at present that did not have traces of boron. Testimony was introduced to show that much damage was done to the potato crops of Aroostook County. The discussion continued all day, but it was the final opinion of the meeting that the ruling by Commissioner Roberts be rescinded. From 17,000 to 200,000 tons of fertilizers are used annually in Maine.

Hero dogs in the future are to be decorated for their bravery. No longer will "Rover" be merely tossed an extra bone when human life is saved by his bravery for the Eastern Dog club, which is the big dog organization in New England, announces that annually they will publicly present medals to dogs who have befriended the human family in moments of stress. The first public decoration of dogs for bravery will take place at the Boston Dog Show, which opens in Mechanics Building on Washington Birthday.

—Mrs. Mary C. Cottle, wife of Charles Cottle of 654 Front street, died at a home for aged people in Quincy Thursday, Jan. 22. She was 77 years old. The funeral took place from the chapel in Village cemetery Saturday afternoon.

—Edward W. Howe, a former resident, died in Roxbury last Friday. The body was brought here Monday and placed in the receiving tomb at Village cemetery.

—Mrs. Theodore Fogg is at Chester, Penn., where she was called by the serious illness of her mother.

—Winfield S. Orr, for years employed at the Fore River and Squantum Ship plants, has started in business for himself and opened a repair shop in the Conry building, Washington street.

—Miss Helen M. Smith is on a visit to relatives in New York and Philadelphia.

—John H. LaPlant has resumed his duties at the Stetson Shoe factory after an illness of several months.

—Mrs. Albert P. Worthen, who has been ill with rheumatism for some weeks, is now rapidly regaining her health.

—Mrs. Christina Kelley of East Boston is spending the week with Mrs. Alma Curry of Common street.

—There are a number of cases of influenza about town, but all are reported as light.

—Henry Cote has resigned as chauffeur for I. Bloom & Son. James O'Connor is to take his place. Carl Ballou of North Weymouth has taken a position with the same firm.

—A number from here attended the organ recital at Quincy on Tuesday by John Herman Loud before the Quincy Woman's Club at the Old First church.

—Miss Annie Washburn of Melrose spent the week end with Mrs. R. L. Hunt of Front street.

—S. H. Levangie and family of Beachmont are removing to 19 Connecticut avenue, Somerville.

—Principal Charles Berry of the Hunt school was called to Providence this week by the serious illness of his mother.

—Miss Annie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John White of Lynn, formerly of this town, was married Sunday in that city.

—The address of the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript is Weymouth 88, Mass.

—Dr. F. A. Mack, formerly of Washington street, Braintree, has located in the growing section on Quincy avenue, corner Beechwood street.

—Many have not found it necessary to go to Quincy of late to do their marketing. The new store of the Joseph R. McInnes Co. in Washington Square is having a large patronage.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

—The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals made an attempt to get information relative to the report that a man picked a hen alive, but were unsuccessful. The man is unknown to the agent.

—At Knights of Honor hall tonight under the auspices of Weymouth council, a dance will be given for the benefit of Francis "Pat" Nugent who was wounded overseas and is now in the Army Hospital at Staten Island, N. Y.

—Miss Estelle Bird of Cambridge was the week end guest of Miss Ella Stone.

—The Lovell's Corner Improvement Association held a very successful two nights fair, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The entertainment for the first evening was furnished by the Waneta Club, consisting of a drama "The Queen of hearts" given by the following cast: Miss Viola Johnson, Ella Stone, Edith Smith, Mr. Oswald Charlowood, Malcolm French, and Roland Smith. The Misses Marion and Lezette White rendered three very pleasing vocal duets. The second evening's entertainment consisted of vocal solos by Mrs. Fred Boynton, violin solos by Mrs. David Blanchard, accompanied by Mrs. Bert Doble who also rendered piano solos. Miss Hazel Hollis gave two very interesting readings. The fine entertainment and desire to help raise a fund for equipping their new building brought out a large attendance.

CLUB and SOCIAL

—At the next meeting of the Monday Club of Weymouth, Feb. 2, in Masonic Temple at 2.30, Miss Evelyn Naddell will give a piano solo and a current events paper will be read by Mrs. Grace M. Poole. A mid-year's reception will be tendered the new members who have joined since the year began. Mrs. Arthur Bryant will be hostess. The cake sale planned for this meeting will be held Feb. 16.

—Mrs. Charles C. Handy, a former resident, was a special guest last Friday evening of Golden Rule circle of Kings Daughters at the home of Mrs. F. H. Sylvester.

—Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., held their regular meeting Monday in Pythian hall. It was an open meeting and the public was invited. Lieut. Stella Young of the Salvation Army, a charming young woman, told her experience overseas. With her was Capt. Myrtle Yalton, who told of her work in Boston. They were much enjoyed by all. A collection was taken and together with a gift from the chapter, they were able to carry quite a sum back with them for their work. Miss Ellen Hall played piano solos.

—Mrs. Sidney R. Cook and sons, Alfred and Walter, returned Tuesday to their home in New York after a month's visit with relatives.

—The Social Club of the Union church of Weymouth and Braintree will open the season next Wednesday evening with a supper at 6.30, to be followed with an entertainment. Suppers will be given March 3, April 7 and May 5.

—Mrs. Karl Granger entertained the Ladies Social Whist Club at her home on Pleasant street, Wednesday evening.

—The Ladies Auxiliary of the King Cove Boat Club held their annual theatre and dinner party last Saturday afternoon and evening in Boston. In spite of the weather a large number of club members attended.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilde of Bridge street, Bicknell Square, left Tuesday for a three months trip to the Pacific coast.

—The Nosagra Sino social club held its annual party at the home of Miss Vivian Tanguay on Lovell street last week Thursday evening. About twenty club members were present and games and music were enjoyed till a late hour. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

—Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hayden of Bridge street celebrated their 17th wedding anniversary on Tuesday by dining in Boston and afterward attending the theatre.

—At Chevy Chase, Maryland, Saturday, Jan. 24, Miss Anita Swingle, daughter of Mrs. Robert Duncan Swingle was united in marriage to Capt. Charles Sumner Reed, formerly of South Weymouth, a son of H. B. Reed now of Auburndale. South Weymouth people were among the guests.

—Wednesday evening, Mrs. Karl H. Granger entertained the Tuesday Night Club at her home, 129 Pleasant street. Whist was played at three tables, and the favors went to Mrs. Louis K. Jones and Mrs. Elmer H. Sherman.

—The class party of the Junior class of Weymouth High was held last evening, under the direction of the following committees: Entertainment, Misses Lucy Parker, Marion Nolan, Charlotte Murphy, George Rand and Leon Thomas; decorations, Misses Burton, Hicks, Dacy, George Bicknell and Roland Seabury; refreshments, Misses Alice Gay, Helen Galvin, Ruth Wing, and Paul Sullivan and Ellwood Savage.

—Twin sons were born Monday, Jan. 26, to Mr. and Mrs. Nicolò Dentrino of 18 Lake street. The father was born in Chieto, Italy, and is employed as a fireman at Quincy. The mother was born in Wallingford, N. Y.

—Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. Frederick Bauer, have returned from France, where Colonel Bauer has been with the A. E. F. since 1918. Mrs. Bauer joined her husband in August of last year, making the return trip with him. They are now at their home 236 Pleasant street.

—Mrs. Milledge Blair was pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening when on arriving home from a visit to friends she found a host of her friends gathered at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred C. Porter, 25 Grant street, Quincy. The affair took the form of a kitchen shower and the young bride received a quantity of presents, all of which are needed in the kitchen. In addition to the shower Mrs. Gertrude Frizzell very pleasantly presented Mrs. Blair with a handsome cut glass water set, a gift from her fellow employees of the Eastern Mass. Street R. R. Co. Mrs. Blair before her marriage was Hazel G. Collings of Standish road, North Weymouth.

—Monday evening the Village Study Club met in Fogg Library Building, South Weymouth, with Howard H. Joy presiding. "Mexico" was the subject for discussion, with papers by Mrs. Elliott R. Scudder and Howard H. Joy. There was an illustrated talk by Carl F. Elsner.

CLAPP MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION

The Clapp Memorial Association invaded the courts of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, at Brockton last Saturday and played one of the best games ever seen on the Brockton floor. Although the C. M. A. lost the game, it was one that will go down in basketball history as an achievement worthy of the best basketball players in the country.

The North Cohasset quintet invades the C. M. A. tonight and plenty of fireworks are promised. The North Cohasset team, which hails from West Corner, defeated the C. M. A. by one of the narrowest margins on record, scoring the winning point in the last half minute of playing. The Weymouth boys are anxious to defeat the West Corner aggregations and if they do, a rubber game will be played, possibly at Hingham.

The C. M. A. team received the welcome news that the rubber game between the home team and the North Easton American Legion, has been arranged for February 3, to be played at Brockton. The Weymouth team has been awaiting the coming of this battle ever since they were defeated on the North Easton floor, after police had been called in to quell disturbances among the audience. They defeated the North Easton team at the gym three weeks ago.

The second showing in a series of boxing and wrestling bouts was staged at the C. M. A. gymnasium Monday evening. The entertainment proved one of the biggest successes of the year. Silver cups were awarded to the winners of the bouts. Fritz Brunell, of the C. M. A. and former champion wrestler of the American Expeditionary Forces defeated "Stone Hatchet," a warrior from Boston. Brunell showed his supremacy over the Boston man and it was only when the manager of Stone Hatchet tossed the towel into the ring that the Boston man displayed any action. Stone Hatchet was forced to leave the hall because of the hissing and booing directed at his person.

Plenty of transportation facilities will be placed at the disposal of the large crowd that is expected to attend the championship contest between the C. M. A. and the North Easton American Legion at Brockton next Monday. The three royal rooters that have accompanied the team at every game are expected to be present to send their best wishes to the C. M. A. (We might state that these rooters are of the gentler sex).

Basketball and dance, two entertainments, at the price of one, is the attraction offered by the C. M. A. at the C. M. A. hall every Friday unless otherwise advertised. The attendance is expected to increase more than ever this week as the special attraction of basketball in the form of the North Cohasset game is being played.

Freddie Webb, one of the C. M. A. boys returned from Brockton last week with another victory to his credit. Good luck Fred, the C. M. A. extends its best wishes.

Several people, who witnessed the game with North Cohasset are anxious to become acquainted with "the man with the mustache, who played on the C. M. A. team." In looking them over "Rummy," I noticed some pretty nice looking. Watch your step and remember that this is Leap Year. I am in a position to introduce a number of these inquisitive people.

A large number of people are anxious to witness a bout between Freddie Webb and Hughie Ramsey. How do the sport followers feel about such a bout. Address all your communications to the Press Agent, Clapp Memorial Association.

Saturday night the Clapp Memorial quintet lost to Co. A. State Guard, at Hingham, 19 to 17.

Tuesday evening the Clapp Memorial team went to Brockton and defeated the Oke club 23 to 16.

TOWN BRIEFS

—On and after Feb. 1, the Kincaide Theatre at Quincy will be known as the Quincy Theatre. The bill is changed now every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

—Rev. E. T. Ford of the East Weymouth church was moderator and Rev. Harry Grimes of Braintree scribe at the church council called at Quincy on Wednesday to examine Rev. Eric I. Lindh, who was later installed as pastor of Bethany Congregational church. Three former pastors were present, Rev. E. N. Hardy, Rev. B. A. Willmott and Rev. T. C. Richards.

—Since the Gazette commented favorably on the way Supt. Johnson handled the snow in Weymouth streets, several Boston papers have taken a similar view.

—At the Clapp gym last Friday Weymouth High was defeated by the Durfee High of Fall River 35 to 29.

—The Selectmen have petitioned the County Commissioners for a relocation of Union street from Central street to the Rockland line. Notice of a public hearing is advertised in the Gazette this week for Tuesday, March 9. Union street is nearly two and one half miles long.

—Monday evening in the Odd Fellows' hall, before Willey Lodge, Rev. Ora A. Price of the Old South Union Congregational church, delivered an illustrated address on the subject, "The Pilgrims and the Tercentenary." Charles E. Sturtevant, noble grand, presided.

—Abigail Adams Rebekah lodge will hold a whist party next Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5, to be followed with a supper at 7. After the lodge meeting there will be a spelling bee and community singing. Mrs. Charles E. Sturtevant is noble grand and Mrs. Nellie M. Holbrook chairman of the entertainment committee.

—A column of South Weymouth briefs on page 13.

—Friends are invited to forward news items to the Gazette.

—The address of the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript is Weymouth 88, Mass.

Nash's Corner and Main Street

—John Seabury of Main street left Tuesday for Miami, Florida, where he will remain for the remainder of the winter.

—Mrs. Thomas V. Naen and children are confined to their home with whooping cough.

—Miss Ruth Munroe, who has been a patient at the Mass. Eye and Ear Infirmary, has been transferred to the City Hospital, where she is seriously ill with diphtheria.

—Samuel Robinson of Main street has been transferred from Portland, Maine, to the Boston office of the Eastern Coast Fisheries Co.

—George Munroe of Mill street has returned from a business trip to Washington, D. C.

—Guy Carlton has accepted a position as salesman for the W. E. Greene Co., Boston.

—Richard Harriman of Main street has purchased a Ford touring car.

—Miss Mary Roche of Park avenue entertained Mrs. Helen Ferris of Rockland over Sunday.

—Funeral services for Dennis Keefe who passed away at his late home 526 Middle street, were held at the St. Francis Xavier Church Friday morning at 9.30, Rev. Dennis P. Crimmins officiated at a requiem high mass. Mr. Keefe was ill but two days, and succumbed to an attack of pneumonia. He was 84 years of age and is survived by nine children. Burial was in the family lot, at Canton.

W. R. C. NOTES.

Mrs. Brassil, Mrs. Mahoney, Mrs. Keene, Mrs. White, Mrs. Ida Keene and Mrs. Litchfield attended the installation of officers of Corps 103 at Quincy on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Mahoney and Mrs. Stoddard attended the Suffolk County Association at East Boston on Tuesday.

Glad to report Miss Freda Hauser is gaining at the Homeopathic hospital.

Mrs. Elizabeth Donlon, Mrs. Alice Derby and Mrs. Margaret Culley are recovering from their illness.

Frank Richards, the husband of our past president, has decidedly improved.

SHUBERT THEATRE, BOSTON

For a limited engagement beginning next Monday night, Feb. 2, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will send to the Shubert Theatre, "The Rose of China," which has just terminated its run at the Lyric Theatre, New York. Accustomed to producing the best in musical shows, Messrs. Comstock and Gest have in this instance put upon the stage a production that may be described as unique. Since the days of "San Toy," old China has offered a tempting background to the writers of musical comedy. In "The Rose of China" Guy Bolton takes some breezy Americans right into the heart of old China, where it is needless to add romance is found in its most attractive form. The lyrics, by P. G. Wodehouse, are bright and humorous, and the reunion of these two writers, the famous authors of "Oh, Boy!" "Very Good Eddie" and "Oh, My Dear!", to say nothing of countless other musical hits of the past few seasons, is one of the happiest and most successful features of the production of this new Chinese musical comedy.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Unless this country is made a good place for all of us to live in it won't be a good place for any of us to live in.—Theodore Roosevelt.

A SYMPOSIUM OF SOUPS.

Although clear soups, which are largely water, contain little nourishment, they are of value because they warm and stimulate the stomach. Appetizing soups may be made of materials otherwise wasted. A cupful or two of mashed potato can be turned into a most nourishing soup.

Soup is not necessarily made from meat stock; such vegetables may be used as beans, peas and other vegetables cooked until soft and passed through a sieve, then heated with milk, water or stock. Using left-over vegetables is an economy.

Split Pea Soup.—Take one pint of dried peas, four quarts of water, one large onion minced fine, four tablespoonfuls of drippings (or butter is better, as it gives a better flavor), three tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of minced celery or a few dried leaves, one-half teaspoonful of paprika and two teaspoonfuls of salt.
Wash the peas and soak them over night in cold water. In the morning pour off the water and put them into the soup kettle with three quarts of water. Place over the fire and bring to the boiling point. Pour off this water and add four quarts of boiling water, and let the peas simmer for four hours. Add the celery the last hour of cooking. Cook the onion and drippings slowly for half an hour. Drain the water from the peas and save the water. Add flour, water and seasoning and cook half an hour, stirring often. Mash the peas, rub through a sieve, and mix with the other ingredients. Cook 20 minutes and serve hot.

Scotch Broth.—Take three pounds of mutton, two tablespoonfuls of pearl barley, two tablespoonfuls of minced onion, two tablespoonfuls of minced turnip, the same of carrot and minced celery, and salt; one tablespoonful of minced parsley and three quarts of cold water. Remove the bones and all the fat from the mutton, cut the meat in small pieces, and put into the stewpan with the water, chopped vegetables, barley and all the seasonings except the parsley, and simmer three hours. Add the parsley and serve.

Many vegetables which would otherwise be refused will be taken unquestioned in soups. The mineral value found in vegetables is very essential for all growing children, and when spinach is not relished as a plain vegetable, add it with other vegetables to a cream soup.

Why is it that women so seldom think of house management as a business? A business which needs training and adaptability. Why should we expect all women to be successful housekeepers? We would think it absurd to limit a man to any one business or profession regardless of talent or equipment; so let us be as charitable with the women.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE FOR DIN- NER?

Where fresh mackerel is not to be obtained, those who are fond of fish will like baked mackerel occasionally, which is a favorite breakfast dish in many households. Soak until freshened a good thick meaty fish, letting it lie in water skin side up. When sufficiently freshened place in a dripping pan with a few tablespoonfuls of boiling water.
Cook for ten minutes; then add hot cream poured over the fish and bake for ten or fifteen minutes longer.
Serve with the sauce poured over the fish. Milk may be used with butter, but nothing tastes quite so good as cream.

Dinner Salad.—Use a few sections of grapefruit with all membranes removed and broken in small bits arranged on lettuce and sprinkled with finely shredded green pepper. Serve with an oil dressing, using corn oil.
Beat the yolk of an egg, add salt, sugar, mustard and lemon juice; when well mixed add a little corn oil, beating well. Continue beating until thick and creamy. Use about three-fourths of a cupful of oil to one egg yolk and a tablespoonful or two of lemon juice.
This dressing will keep indefinitely if kept cold.

Add one tablespoonful of cornstarch to each cupful of flour in making cake.
It improves the grain greatly.

Belgian Socialists Agree.

At the first sitting of the labor congress at Brussels, Minister Vander-velde said that a majority of the socialist federations approved of socialist participation in the government.
He added that an agreement had been reached on the following points, which are part of the governmental program:
Direct single vote for men twenty-one years of age; democratization of the senate, in case of a conflict the chamber having the last word; the creation of resources adequate to the financial

The day returns and brings its petty round of irritating concerns and duties. Help us to perform them with laughter and kind faces;
let cheerfulness abound with industry. Give us to go blithely on our business this day.—R. L. Stevenson.

OUT OF THE POTATO BIN.

The common vegetables of mother earth may be served in a variety of ways, to avoid monotony.

Stuffed Potatoes.—Select good, even-sized potatoes, cut off the ends and bake. When baked, scoop out the inside without breaking the shell. Add butter to season, with salt and red pepper and sweet cream enough to beat them light and fluffy. Fill the skins with this and place in the oven to brown.

Farm Potato Dish.—For a good-sized family, take a milk pan, cover the bottom with sliced potatoes, filling the pan nearly full; sprinkle over the sliced potatoes one, two or three finely shredded onions, the number depending upon the amount of potato or the family taste. Cover all with well-seasoned pork chops which have been cooked on one side. Place them cooked side next to the potatoes, and place in the oven to cook until the potatoes are done and the chops brown. This is a meal which is good to prepare on a busy day, and is very appetizing.

Hot Potato Salad.—One quart of boiled potatoes diced, one minced onion, chopped parsley and green pepper to taste. Take two slices of bacon diced, and fry until brown; remove the bits of fried bacon and use as a garnish on top of the salad. Add a tablespoonful of flour to the hot fat, and when smooth stir in a half-cupful of vinegar, half-cupful of hot water, one teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of sugar and a little pepper. Stir and cook until smooth, then pour hot over the vegetables. Serve hot.

Potatoes, Spareribs and Apples.— Place seasoned spareribs in baking dish and cook one hour. Place quartered potatoes under the spareribs and quartered apples on top. Bake one hour more. Season well with salt and pepper before baking.

Hot Potato Balls.—Take a pint of mashed potato, seasoned well, add two beaten eggs, a tablespoonful of flour, a half cupful of grated cheese and milk to make a soft drop batter. Drop by spoonfuls into hot fat, and cook until light brown.

"Cookery must be studied thoroughly these days, for it must be remembered that the less food there is the more important it is to know how to utilize what is available to the best purpose."

SIMPLIFY YOUR MEALS.

Those who know tell us that the average American of the well-to-do classes eats at least one-third more food than is necessary or safe,
and that seven-eighths of our diseases are caused from improper food and also, in large degree, improper eating.

Horace Fletcher, who gave to the world so much on the way to eat and what to eat, advocated the long mastication of foods, chewing twice as long, and in consequence the appetite is satisfied with much less food.

Fried Onions and Apples.—Slice two onions very thin and cook in a tablespoonful of hot fat until yellow, then add half a dozen sliced tart apples; cook until soft, adding a bit of water and fat if needed. Just before serving add a teaspoonful of sugar. Serve with roast pork, pork sausages or pork steak or chops. If one does not like the onions or desires variety core the apples without peeling, slice in half-inch slices and fry carefully not to break them. Serve with chops, making an overlapping ring of the apples around the chops.

A simple experiment which has been often repeated is that of chewing a mouthful of bread and butter until it swallows itself, without any effort, it will develop a flavor in the mouth which will be a surprise to all rapid eaters. The starch is partly changed by the action of the saliva which is never noticed when food is bolted.

With a soup for a light meal and a simple salad following a main dish and a dessert which appeals to the eye, one has a meal which is suitable for all ordinary days.

francs, and an eight-hour day and autonomy of the railroads.

HOT SOUPS, CHOWDERS AND STEWS, MAKE EXCELLENT DISHES FOR COLD WEATHER

The Ingredients of a Fish Chowder Are Simple and Inexpensive.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For the cold, raw winter day what is more cheerful than a bowl of hot, savory soup, a steaming hot chowder, or a well-seasoned stew? Now is the time to take advantage of the possibilities offered by these dishes which may be made nutritious enough to serve as the main dish of the simple supper or midday meal and yet be made at small cost.

All of the recipes for the dishes given below have been tested in the kitchen of the department of agriculture. Served with bread and butter and a simple dessert they make an economical and a well-balanced meal.

Such dishes are also economical in that they furnish an excellent use for the small quantities of left-over meat and vegetable. Try keeping a stock kettle on the back of the range, put into it the bones and meat trimmings, the bits of meat, fish or fowl left on the serving platter, the small amount of gravy left in the roasting pan, the bones from the roast, or the steak, or the roasted fowl. All of these combined make a rich stock when cooked together, which if used in place of water will add richness as well as flavor to soups, chowders and stews.

In the same way if a bowl is kept in the refrigerator for the small quantities of left-over vegetables, they may also be added to the soup, the chowder, or the stew, lending a variety of flavors.

Soups.

Black Bean soup, split pea soup, cream of bean or pea, puree of beans and tomatoes—you can have all of these and many others. They are delicious, inexpensive and easy to make.

Soak and cook a pint of peas or beans as usual, but take more water, about two quarts, and cook until very soft. Then put them through a sieve.
These mashed beans or peas are ready to be made into all kinds of soups by adding the various seasonings, with water and milk or stock enough to make two quarts. These soups should all have a little flour added to them as a binder, to prevent the thick part from settling to the bottom. Mix thoroughly two tablespoonfuls of fat with two tablespoonfuls of flour, add a little of the hot soup, and stir until it is smooth, then add to the remaining soup, stirring to prevent lumping, and cook for about ten minutes.

Black Bean Soup or Split Pea Soup.—
To the pulp from a pint of beans or peas add enough water or stock to make two quarts. Thicken with flour, as directed. Season with salt and pepper. The juice of a lemon and one-half teaspoonful mustard add to the flavor.

Cream of Bean or Pea Soup.—To the cooked and mashed pulp add enough milk to make two quarts of soup. Season and thicken with flour.

Puree or Porridge of Beans and Tomatoes.—Instead of milk, tomatoes may be used. Add a cupful of canned tomatoes or three medium-sized tomatoes which have been cooked for ten minutes and put through a sieve. If the porridge is too thick, add water or stock. Season and add the flour as directed.

Bean or Pea Soup With Meat.—The peas or beans are soaked as usual and cooked until soft in four quarts of water with meat, either a soup bone or a ham bone, or one-half pound of salt pork or any smoked meat. Remove the meat and put the soup through a sieve. Season and thicken.
The cooked meat cut in small pieces may be added to the soup. An onion, several stalks of celery or soup herbs are good cooked with the soup.

CHOWDERS.

Fish Chowder.
1½ pounds of fish 2 cupfuls carrots cut (fresh, salt, or in pieces.
canned). ¼ pound salt pork.
9 potatoes, peeled 3 cupfuls milk.
and cut in small Pepper. pieces. 3 teaspoonfuls flour.
1 onion, sliced.

Cut pork in small pieces and fry with the chopped onion for five minutes. Put pork, onions, carrots and potatoes in kettle and cover with boiling water. Cook until vegetables are tender. Mix three tablespoonfuls of flour with one-half cupful of cold milk and stir in the liquid in the pot to thicken it. Add the rest of the milk and the fish, which has been removed from the bone and cut in small pieces, and cook until the fish is tender, which will require about ten minutes. Serve hot. You can omit salt pork and use a tablespoonful of other fat, if preferred. Salt codfish or smoked fish, rabbit, fowl, or any meat may be used instead of fresh fish, or tomatoes instead of milk. Any desired vegetables may be used in place of carrots.

Vegetable Chowder.

Here is a mixed vegetable chowder that is good. It makes a substantial dish. Rice and okra may be substituted for potatoes and carrots; indeed, almost any vegetables may be used with or in place of those mentioned.

4 potatoes. 2 tablespoonfuls fat.
3 carrots. or a piece of salt
3 onions. pork.
1 pint canned toma- 3 level tablespoonfuls toes. flour.
2 teaspoonfuls salt. 2 cupfuls skim milk.

Cut potatoes and carrots in small pieces, add enough water to cover, and cook for 20 minutes. Do not drain off the water. Brown the chopped onion in the fat for five minutes. Add this and the tomatoes to the vegetables.
Heat to boiling, add two cupfuls of skim milk, and thicken with flour.
Celery tops or green peppers give a good flavor to the chowder if you happen to have them. So do finely chopped chives.

STEWES.

Hot Pot of Mutton and Barley.

1 pound mutton. 4 potatoes.
½ cupful of pearled 3 onions.
barley. Celery tops or other
1 tablespoonful salt. seasoning herbs.

Cut the mutton in small pieces, and brown with the onion in fat cut from the meat. This will help make the meat tender and improves the flavor.
Pour this into a covered saucepan.
Add two quarts water and the barley.
Simmer for one and one-half hours.
Then add the potatoes cut in quarters, seasoning herbs, and seasoning, and cook one-half hour longer. This recipe will serve five people. Rice can be used in place of barley.

Kidney Bean Stew.

1 cupful dried kid- 2 tablespoonfuls of ney or other bean flour.
2 cupfuls canned to-1 onion.
matoes. 1 tablespoonful salt.
½ cupful rice.

Wash the beans, put in a covered kettle, and soak over night in two quarts of cold water. Cook the beans slowly in the water in which they soaked. If necessary, add more water to cover and continue the cooking until they are nearly tender, usually about two hours. Wash the rice, cut up the onion and add with the tomatoes to the beans. Cook until the rice is tender—about 30 minutes. Mix the flour with a little cold water and stir in carefully to thicken. A small piece of salt pork cut up in cubes and added to the beans at the beginning of the cooking gives a pleasant flavor to the dish.

OVERCOOKING SPOILS FLAVOR

Vegetables Like Cabbage or Onions Become Disagreeably Strong if Cooked Too Long.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Overcooking of vegetables impairs their flavor. Very delicate flavors are destroyed, while vegetables with very strong flavors, such as cabbage or onions, become disagreeably strong if cooked too long. Overcooking also destroys the attractive color of some vegetables.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Chicken pie is excellent made with biscuit crust.

There is economy in buying large fish, as there is less waste.

When boiling, a kettle should never be quite full, as it is apt to boil over.

An excellent, hearty salad is made with cottage cheese, tomatoes, eggs, olives and lettuce.

The best dressing for most vegetables is simple butter. White sauces are apt to ruin the flavor.

Fold tablecloths differently from time to time and you will prevent the forming of worn lines in the creases.

"SUPERB" DESCRIBES THIS DINNER GOWN

HERE is a dinner gown which invites you to imagine it in combinations of black satin and black chantilly lace, with either king's blue or jade green ribbon—wide and of heavy quality. The bodice is one of those that is cut very low in the back, a style that is vanishing but beautiful—that is when backs are beautiful. Perhaps it is because beautiful backs are rather rare that the never evening gowns do not follow this fashion. To support so abbreviated a bodice narrow strips of black velvet are used, and they serve a double purpose, for nothing will bring out the white of lovely shoulders more surely than black velvet.

The satin skirt is draped beautifully and the artist in gowns delights in this particular feat of so draping black satin that we cannot forget it. It is natural to long to possess such a piece of artistry. Taking advantage of the liking for bouffant effects at the hips and back, big choux of the satin are posed just below the waistline. One of them ends in a length of satin that trails some inches on the floor, having for its companion the choux and end of wide moire ribbon which bears it company to the last. Either king's blue or jade green make the best choice of color for this ribbon; both are beautiful with black, and fashionable. Very wide chantilly serves to veil the shoulders and to add further graceful drapery to the design, falling nearly to the bottom of the skirt at one side.

A wide-brimmed, droopy velvet hat, faced with crepe matches this superb gown in character, with sash and rosettes made of ribbon as a trimming. Plain black silk stockings and satin slippers support the rest of the costume in exactly the right way, so that altogether this is an ensemble to make any woman cast "one longing, lingering look behind" when it passes by her.

PRETTY HATS FOR RESORT WEAR

THERE is an amazing variety in the hats that have been made for wear at the winter resorts, perhaps because so many people are journeying to them and because these people demand individuality in the millinery they wear. Out of the great mass of new things for spring that have their try-outs in the winter resorts, some things survive their brief season in the South and become established styles for spring.

In the group of three hats shown above, a hat and parasol to match, of cretonne, is selected from a number of such matched sets, a good many of them made of cretonne. Taffeta silk, hemstitched in rows, and other materials are featured in matched sets also. Those of cretonne usually have the figures outlined with yarn in black or in a solid color. Bands of black appear on the parasol and on the small hat pictured here.

The pretty sailor hat at the right of the group is among those that are likely to outlive the resort season, and appear with the survival of the fittest, when Easter challenges millinery designers to display their triumphs. It is made of georgette crepe, having the crown decorated with narrow cross-bar tucks and a beautiful narrow band of feathers about its base. Finally a small flower made of feathers reveals a fine and cunning hand that has made its feather trimming the pride and glory of this hat.

But this delightful hat has no better chance of survival than the odd and chic round hat at the bottom of the group. This is something new. It is made with a foundation of black satin veiled with figured crepe, which sounds very simple, but fails to convey the charm of a clever bit of millinery designing. It would take a professional to tell all there is to tell of this new arrival, but, being novel and becoming, it will remain and make us familiar with its secret of success. The displays of millinery for resort wear reveal the immense advance made by American designers during the war. This millinery will bear comparison with any. Some of it is made in this country of fabrics which have been imported, but most of it is purely American and of a character to make us proud.

For the Busy Farmer Who Raises Chickens

THIS YEAR, don't bother with troublesome oil lamps to raise your chicks. Get your birds out early and brood 300 to 500 in one flock with one Candee Colony Brooder, and you will have to tend only one heater—buy coal for but one fire—save labor and fuel and have more poultry profit at the end of the year.

Attention once or twice a day is all the Candee needs because it is self-regulating and gives the chicks a correct heat all the time, and because its coal magazine feeds the fuel to the fire evenly and continuously.

CANDEE COLONY BROODERS
CAST IRON
COAL BURNING—SELF REGULATING

You need a big Brooder with big features like the Candee to raise big flocks. The heater, the grate, the hopper, the depth of the felt curtain, the "breathing space" for the chicks under the hovers—everything about the Candee is big.

And you want real value for your brooder money. The Candee is built on honor to last a lifetime. Its heater is all cast iron and it is a store for business.

Its guaranteed all-woolen-felt curtain keeps the heat under the hovers, where it belongs, so that the stove is not required to heat the whole room to keep the chicks warm, which saves much fuel.

A safe size 12-inch grate—a special safety grate shaker and sealed base that prevent hot coals falling into the litter—and a swinging hover action that makes it easy to get at the heater to attend the fire and clean up—are other features that make the Candee your one best investment.

Drive over to my place and see this up-to-the-minute method of raising more chicks at less expense and greater profit. I will be glad to show you my Candee Colony Brooder and how it works.

ACCIDENT AT ICE HOUSE
A serious accident happened at Holbrook on Wednesday afternoon when the roof of an icehouse owned by the Robert H. White Ice Company of Taunton collapsed, falling upon the men as they were working on a door of ice.

Ten other employees, at work on a runway between two of the icehouses, escaped miraculously, some by sliding down the runway to the ground and others by clambering to the top and along the conveyor to a place of safety.

The most seriously injured are Ellis Jones, 24, of South street, Holbrook, and his brother, Ralph Jones, aged 20. The former is on the danger list at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The collapse of the roof and later the walls of the big ice shed came without warning. The fact that the huge conveyor parted at the point where the runway becomes level with the ice houses undoubtedly saved the lives of the men, who climbed up the conveyor to the level portion, and then made their way across the roofs of adjoining houses to safety. Had the entire runway given away, these men would probably have been killed, as there was a sheer drop of 60 feet, with huge cakes of ice and broken timbers and machinery below.

LATER—Ellis Jones died at the hospital on Thursday.

FIREMANS TOURNAMENT

THE WHITE CHURCH
(Congregational)
East Weymouth

Rev. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor. The presence in this country of so distinguished an Englishman as Sir Oliver Lodge is a matter of no inconsiderable interest to all intelligent Americans. His visit has received wide publicity through the service of the country-wide newspaper press. Popularly he is very generally thought of in connection with his published declaration on the subject of Spiritism, and the possibilities of communication between the living and the spirits of those who have departed this life.

But Sir Oliver Lodge's right to an audience upon this difficult subject does not grow out of his particular attainments in this field of research. We listen to the man upon this mysterious subject, because the world has had abundant cause to respect his earlier achievements in the realm of physical scientific research. Some say of his more recent activities that they represent the sad weakening of a noble mind. Others believe that they reveal the trained and resourceful mind of an accomplished scientific investigator, devoting its matured powers to the study of a most important problem whose recognized difficulties have too long left it a neglected field of scientific inquiry. However that may be, there are unquestioned religious values of great significance in many of our distinguished visitor's utterances. One of these, having no connection with the subject of "Spiritualism" will be considered in connection with the Sunday morning sermon at the White church. Better come and hear it!

Morning worship and sermon at 10.30; sermon topic: "The next great forward Advance."

Sunday evening service at 7 o'clock. Bright, brief and brotherly, pastor's topic: "Shirking his Duty" or a soldier critic at fault.

Always a cordial welcome at the White Church.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Quincy, 20 Greenleaf street, Morning service and Sunday School, at 10.45. Subject of the lesson-sermon: "Love." Golden text: Romans 12:9. Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good.

HE GETS THE TRADE

The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone.
The constant know of Towser masticates the toughest bone.
The constant wooing lover carries off the blushing maid.
And the constant advertiser is the man that gets the trade.
Don't ever think that printer's ink is money to the bad.
To help you fail a role of cable there's nothing beats an ad.
You can't fool people always, they've been a long time born.

AMERICANIZATION MEETING PLANNED

By Women in Church's Call Campaign

The women in the Diocese of Massachusetts, under the leadership of Miss Eve W. Corey of Brookline, are rallying as never before to the Church's work, of the Episcopal Church, as a result of the speeding up incident to the Nation-Wide Campaign.

The educational department of the Women's Auxiliary has just launched a class on "Christian Americanization" to be held in St. Paul's Cathedral rooms for seven successive Thursdays, under the leadership of Mrs. Edward S. Brown, wife of Professor Brown of the Episcopal School of Cambridge. Here for two hours, beginning at 10.30, the immigrant in his various aspects will be studied. The work has been organized in the recognition that Americans have shunted too long responsibility for the immigrant, and that now instead of blaming him for not acting as we wish he would, we should blame ourselves for having neglected him. The course is to train leaders, or any who would like to be leaders, in ways by which they may demonstrate to immigrants the Christian principles of the foundations of the country in which they have come to live.

MISS EVE W. COREY

Also under the leadership of Miss Corey, and as part of the Nation-Wide Campaign work, a mass meeting for the Church Service League is being called in St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, on Wednesday, January 21st, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The speakers on this occasion will be Dean E. S. Rousmaniere, the members of the Church Service Council, and Bishop William Lawrence, D. D., who will give a talk on "The Service League and the Nation-Wide Campaign."

All women of the Diocese are being urged to attend.

The Church Service League is an attempt to federate the organized work of women. It was inaugurated during the last general convention at Detroit, which Miss Corey attended. At this time all the national organizations of the Episcopal Church were invited to join on an equal basis in forming the larger organization. From the National Council came the recommendation to form diocesan councils, and Bishop Lawrence has since appointed such a council here with Miss Corey as its chairman. It is hoped through this organization to develop new opportunities for work to be done, to arouse the interest, enlist the sympathy, and to secure the responsible help of every woman in the Diocese. The intention is to form parish communities of the Church Service League, and to that end a very attractive bulletin has been issued, setting forth definitely ways in which this new organization may help in the spiritual activities, education, personal service, work for missions, and ultimately in gifts, all objects that are being emphasized in the Nation-Wide Campaign.

Particularly in the enlistment of every woman in each parish, in the emphasis of community cooperation, and in stressing the value of publicity for the conferences, classes, plays, and other activities of the parish, it is expected that this new organization will be of far-reaching value.

In the matter of meetings for men and women together, the Campaign in Massachusetts is being very vigorously pushed.

At the next dinner of the Episcopal Club to be held at the Copley Plaza Monday, January 26th, the program will be devoted entirely to the Nation-Wide Campaign. Bishop Lawrence will speak, and Mr. H. Anthony Dyer of Providence, who was chairman of the Committee to receive Cardinal Mercier at the Episcopal Convention and has been prominent in the Campaign in Rhode Island, will also make an address. William C. Sturgis Ph.D. of New York, Educational Secretary for the Board of Missions, who is coming over to give a series of noon meetings on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 27th, 28th, 29th and 30th at St. Paul's Cathedral, is also to be on the program for the dinner.

Rev. Charles L. Slattery will be the speaker Thursday evening, January 22d, at the big community service at St. Paul's Cathedral, covering all the parishes of Greater Boston. Dr. Slattery is the Rector of Grace Church, Broadway, New York, and has recently been offered the position of Dean at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge. His subject will be "Personal Religion," the subject of the entire week of January 18th is The Church's Call.

Friday evening Miss Edna L. Sladen was tendered a surprise party at her home on Church street, by eight of her girl friends. The first part of the evening was spent in playing games, after which all adjourned to the dining room, where a delicious luncheon was served. The table was attractively decorated with candles and place cards, and at each place was a surprise package. These packages all proved to be fun makers, with the exception of the one for Miss Edna Sladen, which to her surprise contained a beautiful butterfly pendant in behalf of her guests. Also to the surprise of Mrs. S. C. Beane, her package also contained a butterfly pendant with best wishes to her as she leaves for Cleveland, Ohio. The occasion was a very pleasant one, and greatly enjoyed by all.

At the annual business meeting of the Sunday School connected with the First Church, the following were elected for the ensuing year:

Assistant Superintendent, Miss L. A. Humphrey.

Second assistant superintendent, R. Edward Bates.

Treasurer, Miss Bertha C. Nash.

Secretary, Miss Ruth A. Nash.

Auditor, Marshall Ries.

Librarian, Miss Ruth Freeman.

Assistant librarian, Miss Marion Lunt.

Second assistant librarian, Miss Alice Freeman.

Superintendent of Cradle Roll, Miss Mary Humphrey.

Superintendent of Home Department, Mrs. H. A. Nash.

Miss Isabel Jones was home over the week end from Simmons College and was accompanied by one of her college-mates.

The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a social in the First Church chapel this evening for its members and friends, the same being in charge of the social committee.

A party of about twenty ladies from the Heights are to enjoy a dinner party in Boston this evening, and see "Moonlight and Honeysuckle".

Frank Richards of Green street who has been ill for several weeks, is improving.

The address of the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript is Weymouth 88, Mass.

PUBLIC HEARING

Census Supervisor Joseph I. Garity announces the census enumeration for Weymouth has practically been completed. Several enumerators were assigned to duty, and according to reports filed by them, every person in Weymouth who was available, has been listed. While no figures will be given out, a substantial and healthy growth has been experienced since the last census.

The enumerators have made every effort to secure the necessary information in relation to every person in the town. The work has been very well done, but of course, it is unavoidable that some persons must have been overlooked. The census law is explicit to the effect that every person must be enumerated and the law places the responsibility upon both the enumerator and the persons to be enumerated.

With this idea in mind, Supervisor Garity has issued a strong request to every person in Weymouth who has not been covered by the enumerators, to make this fact known at the census office, in order that arrangements may be made to have the enumerator call and secure the necessary information.

This can be done either by telephone by calling Quincy 2625, daily between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M., or by filling out the form printed below and mailing it to the Supervisor. Every resident of this town is urged to give this matter their early and careful attention.

If you have been missed by the enumerators, either telephone to the census office or fill in and mail the following blank:

HAVE YOU BEEN ENUMERATED?

If not, or if you have any doubt, fill out this coupon and mail to Joseph I. Garity, Supervisor of Census, Bradford building, Quincy, Mass.

On January 1, 1920, I was living at address given below, but to the best of my knowledge I have not been enumerated there or anywhere else.

TO PIG OWNERS

Hog cholera exists in Weymouth at the present time. Some farmers have lost pigs due to this highly contagious disease and others may unless certain precautions are taken.

How cholera may be contracted: Every swill distributing plant is apt to be a center of distribution of the disease as vehicles carrying away swill are apt to come from places where cholera exists, thus contaminating the place.

Feeding frozen swill lowers the vitality of the pigs to such an extent that they are apt to be susceptible to most any disease with which they come in contact.

Treatment for immunity:

Pigs may be inoculated to prevent them from contracting the disease. They may be treated at any age after weaning. The inoculation is simple and is done at the State's expense by men sent out especially for this work. There is a slight charge of from 35 cents to 80 cents, depending on the size of the pig. This charge is the cost of the serum and virus used, no charge is made for the inoculation. This certainly is cheap insurance.

Symptoms of the disease: When a pig begins to look rough and unhealthy, humped up and does not come out to eat, such may be considered with suspicion at least.

Anyone wishing more information regarding the symptoms, treatment, etc., write to the Dept., of Animal Husbandry, room 138 State House, Boston, Mass.

Farmer's Bulletin No. 834, published by the U. S. Dept., of Agri., Washington, D. C., is a very reliable publication on this subject and is free for the asking. The Agricultural department at the Weymouth High School will gladly assist in furnishing information regarding this disease.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

On Tuesday, at the 42d winter meeting of the Norfolk and Pilgrim branch of the Woman's Board of Missions, an hour was given to a memorial service to Miss Mary F. Loud, late of Weymouth who for 26 years was corresponding secretary of the branch. Miss Louise Humphrey told of her home and social life; Rev. E. J. Yeager of her church relations; while Miss Sarah B. Tirrell, Mrs. Archibald McCord, Mrs. Mark McCully, Mrs. A. A. Lincoln and others spoke of her missionary zeal. Two hymns were sung and prayer offered.

The meeting was held at the First Congregational church at Braintree, with Mrs. I. W. Sneath of Wollaston, the president, presiding. Reports were given in the morning, and in the afternoon there were echoes from the annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

NOW WEAK AND HEARTBROKEN

In Mourning and Poverty She Counts Her Dead and Looks With Eyes of Sadness Toward the Threatening Future.

Article II.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

August 1, 1914, was the day. On that day Germany declared war on Russia. The fire alarm rang around the world. Peasants in the field straightened their backs, listened and looked into the sun confused, wondering. Flags were unfurled, bands played, faces were white, tense and serious. Men left their work and talked in groups on the street corners. Women laid down their brooms, put aside their washing, and talked in whispers; sad lights were in their eyes. Children stopped playing. Something had happened. Evil things were ahead. August 3 and 4 found France and Great Britain mobilizing their sons. The torch was sweeping Europe—the fire of death had started.

For four long years—heart-sickening years—the world ran red. Men waded through mud and blood, fought, suffered, cursed, prayed, while back home in the manless houses women and children worked, cried, prayed and waited. The world was mad. Death poisoned every breath the people breathed.

It is over now, it is finished. A stunned, numbed, weak, heartbroken Europe is again sitting in the sun of peace. Europe is in dirty black rags. The black is mourning, the rags are poverty. Her face is deeply lined—trenches made by suffering. Her eyes are downcast and dead. Hope flutters weakly in her breast; faith has faded from her soul. Her home is a house of darkness. The fire on the hearth has turned to cold gray ashes. The kettle no longer sings, it moans. Her mind is weary, her body is wasted. Hunger has robbed her of her strength. Her stockingless, shoeless feet are blue from the cold. Her lips wear starvation color. Ice in the winter's wind lashes her shivering, half-naked body. She mumbles as she stares vacantly into space—she is tired, so tired. As I beheld her it seemed to me that a face so troubled and sad must never have known a smile.

I listened to her mutterings. I found that she was counting. Over and over again she counted on her thin, tired, worn hands—she was counting her dead.

Thinking of Her Loss.

She was thinking. Her eyes looked over the hundreds of thousands of square miles of war zone, slashed with trenches, pitted and pockmarked by shells. She sees where they fell. No tears are in her eyes. Long ago the hurt had reached the point where tears dry up. Row upon row, line upon line, mile upon mile, white-painted wooden crosses mark their graves. For the most part they were her youngest born, her most beloved, who dug deep in the soil to sleep forever in the dark dungeons.

As they fell bleeding from steel and lead, choking from gas, writhing in agony from fire, they proved in the dying word they spoke that they were mere boys, as they had shown in their fighting that they were brave men. To the poppies they entrusted their message, and the red poppies remember the last word of Europe's dying sons, who went out into the great beyond with this last word on their lips, "Mother."

She has finished counting; an ache shudders through her bent body. She sighs and sobs, "Seven and a half million of my sons are dead."

Her thoughts turn to the living, her arms open to receive them, she holds them to her heart. They have come, but how?

Some with sightless eyes, doomed to grope through the world in a never-ending darkness, a night without stars or moon; sunless, black, hopeless days, and these, too, young men in the very morning of their day.

Others sentenced to silence—deaf and dumb. Never again will she hear their voices nor will they hear hers. Still others in wheel chairs, dwarfed, legless.

More hobbling on crutches, limping on canes.

Some with empty sleeves. Many with great scars, where once was a handsome face.

She sees them all, her heart bleeds; the twisted, the mangled, the torn. She is counting them, the 12,616,017, the wounded of the war.

War's Frightful Cost.

Her voice is husky, her hands are tired, but she must count on. Six and a half million of her sons were marked "missing and prisoners" in the official war score. Many of these have come back to her, but she does not question them—she dare not. Their faces tell of the unspeakable horrors they endured. She sees in their eyes a depth of pain that is unfathomable. She is a mother—she knows.

The war is over, but she is not over the war. Must she never stop counting? Is there no end to her losses? The graveyards are crowded. Her thoughts turn to the dead who, while they did not die in the war, died because of the war. Those who went out in battle left life in a burst of glory. Others there were who fell in their tracks—exhaustion, broken hearts sent them "west." She has not forgotten how the home flank suffered. The stay-at-homes were not all slackers. They fought hunger and cold, bent their backs beyond the straining point. Worst of all, they waited. It is estimated that 20,000,000 civilians died from weakness, fatigue, strain, broken hearts—the horror of waiting destroyed resistance. These were the underfed older men and women, the scared, undernourished children. Is there any wonder that Europe has a death look in her eyes? Death has been her night sob, and for four years made up of months, weeks, days, hours, minutes and seconds death has been her Nemesis.

She is now totaling. The figures are appalling. They stagger her imagination. It is easy to write them, impossible to understand their full meaning. The mind can't grasp it; the world is bewildered by the number. It is too stupendous, too horrible for understanding. Think of it, seven and a half million young men, for the most part between the ages of eighteen and thirty, the youth, the strength, the spirit, the man power of Europe, dead—twenty million from civil life dead, over twelve and a half million wounded.

Who can measure this loss? War brought death. It did more—it stopped birth. In the devastated regions of Belgium, France, Italy, Poland, parts of Russia and the Balkan countries, the birth rate fell to almost nothing. In England and Wales the birth rate in the last part of 1915 was 19.5, the lowest on record. Mallett calculated that the birth rate had fallen 12 per cent in England and Wales by 1916.

The Journal of Heredity quotes Savorgnan as having estimated that it will take England at least ten years, Germany 12 years, Italy 38 years and France 36 years to recuperate their populations. These calculations by Savorgnan were made before the fearful losses of the campaign of 1918.

A village in France, Blerancourt, tells what the war has done to the man power of Europe. This village, which is in the Chateau Thierry-Soissons district, had a population of a thousand people before the war. Its losses have been tabulated. Twenty-six soldiers from this village were killed in the war. Ninety-seven of the villagers died from war privations. The total of 123 is the death toll of a village of a thousand.

The figures I have quoted from the calculations of Savorgnan and Mallett were made before the war was finished. Since the war, estimates have been made, and these estimates show the situation to be even worse. In France I was told that 57 per cent of the men between twenty and forty years were listed as dead or incapacitated for work. Further, that it would take France over 70 years to recover her normal population.

It is said that it will take Italy 50 years and England 25 years to regain normality of population.

The human waste of the war is more than sad memories. The loss of man power makes a grave problem. It has thrown out of balance the domestic scheme of the world. It will be felt for years. There are a great many more young women than men. Home life is bound to suffer. There will be fewer marriages, fewer children. Statistics only tell part of the story.

European Tarantula.

An eminent authority in such matters, in remarking that the tarantula is a spider, says of that terrifying creature that it is the Lycosa Tarantula, a species of spider found in some of the warmer parts of Italy and Spain. When full grown it is about the size of a chestnut and of a brown color. Its bite was at one time supposed to be dangerous and to induce a kind of "dancing disease," but now it is known not to be worse than the sting of a common wasp.

It is an old fable, extending to remotest times, that the bite of this spider would produce epilepsy or a strange dancing mania in its victims and that this epilepsy or madness could be relieved only by a particular kind of music. The tarantula of Italy and Spain—and it is found in those countries today—has hairy legs with black markings on them.

America's Debt to Jews.

Jews figured very prominently in the discovery of America by Columbus according to Rabbi David Philipson of Cincinnati. The first man who stepped on the shore of the new world was the interpreter of the expedition, Luis de Torres, a Jew. Bernal, the ship surgeon, was also a Jew, as were several members of the crew.

It is also now said to be established that the long-credited belief that Queen Isabella pawned her jewels to furnish Columbus with the funds for the trip is a legend. These funds, it is said, were furnished by two Jews, Luis de Santangel and Gabriel Sanchez. A letter by Columbus to Sanchez is still extant, in which he gives some account of his exploits.

Who Knows?

A friend of mine called upon a newly wedded pair and I happened to drop in. The bride had been a widow. My friend remarked to me, "You introduced them to each other, didn't you?" "Why, yes," I testily blurted, "I introduced her to her first and second husbands and who knows but what I'll be the one to introduce her to her third one?"—Exchange.

THE FISHING PLACE.

Yeast—Where are you going on your vacation, old man?

Crimsonbeak—I'm going fishing in a little lake up in Maine.

"Why don't you go somewhere?"

"What do you mean by some-where?"

"You're wasting your time fishing in a little lake. Statisticians tell us that Lake Erie produces more fish to the square mile than any other body of water in the world."

Cheerful Giver.

"Brain work is not always well compensated."

"Brain workers," replied Farmer Cornstossel, "is mostly too generous. Every summer boarder we had was willin' to give me advice by the hour on how to run the farm, and never charge me a cent."

Modern Shorthand Had Birth in 1857.

Modern shorthand had its birth in the publication of Dr. Timothy Bright's "characterie" in 1857, the first English work on shorthand. Various systems of shorthand were published from that time on, all based on the a b c method, and some of them became quite popular, but with the publication of Isaac Pitman's "phonography," based on sound, all the others fell into disuse. Pitman had a number of predecessors whose systems, like his own, were strictly phonetic. These systems never gained any footing, while his immediately became popular, and has since been used by a large majority of shorthand writers of English.

Daddy Didn't Fight in Medal War.

Little daughter was certainly glad to have her father home after he had been to France for two years, working all the way from eight to twenty-four hours in a hospital rendering valuable aid to the injured while hearing the hum of German "air cooties" high overhead.

Daddy noticed daughter giving him the once over several times. Finally she seemed to have resolved the thing in her own mind. She was worried because daddy did not have any medals pinned to his coat. "Daddy," she lisped, "why didn't you fight in a war where they had medals?"

"PERHAPS THEY COPIED THAT PICTURE TOO WELL."

Synopsis.—In a base hospital at Neuilly, France, his face disfigured beyond recognition, an American soldier serving in the French army attracts attention by his deep despondency. Asked by the surgeons for a photograph to guide them in making over his face, he offers in derision a picture of the Savior, bidding them take that as a model. They do so, making a remarkable likeness. Invalided home, on the boat he meets Martin Harmon, New York broker, who is attracted by his remarkable features. The ex-soldier gives his name as "Henry Hilliard," and his home as Syracuse, New York. He left there under a cloud, and is embittered against his former fellow townsmen. Harmon offers him a job.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

The younger man glanced at the card. "My name is Hilliard. Well—competition so keen you can afford to pay that high for business, or is the stuff just hard to sell?"

Harmon, who had begun to nod assent to the first question, looked rather blank at the second, but rallied quickly.

"Competition. But there's money in it, and you'll get your share of it too—believe me! I've got a sneaking suspicion that you and I can do business together. Want to consider it?"

"All this on such short acquaintance? Aren't you taking a fearful chance?"

Harmon saw that the young man's eyes were extremely luminous and clear; he leaned forward seriously. "I'm simply backing my hunch, son. In the long run it pays me—pays me well. I've sort of taken a fancy to you. As far as I know you may be the rottenest salesman in the whole United States; I wouldn't hire your experience without some references, and maybe a surety company back of you; but I'd hire that face of yours, and your manner, and your voice off-hand. I'd hire your front—not your past! And let me tell you right now, son, I never made a trade as fast as this before in my life. But there's something about you that . . . Well?"

The young man was thoughtful and unblinking.

"You're actually making me a proposition, are you?"

"Absolutely!"—Harmon's fist on the table provided the exclamation point. "Here—I don't know you, and you don't know me, but if you're hunting for a job you've found it. . . . It's your next move."

The young man's lips parted in grave good humor; Harmon was spell-bound at the effect.

"I'll try not to keep you waiting. This speed of yours rather entices me. Besides, if my face is my fortune, I'd better find it out as soon as possible. This organization of yours is in New York city, isn't it?"

"My headquarters are, but I'd want you to work outside. I've got one special town in mind—up the state. That's where this list is. It's always been one of our hardest markets, and it's got money to burn. Can't swing it, somehow—they don't respond to any ordinary selling talk; they're too hide-bound conservative. You know the kind. Government-bond crowd. And for a year or so they've been making war profits till you can't see 'em for dust. Manufacturing town. And I'd like mighty well to ship you up there for a month or two; give you time enough to get your bearings, and turn you loose. You ought to do great work in a place like that. They need a chap like you—confound it!" He halted abruptly and shook his head in great bewilderment. "I can't make it out at all! You've got the appearance of a . . . well, a sort of a strait-laced youngster, if you know what I mean, and yet the way you say things, I—"

The young man gestured blandly. "And the town you have in mind?"

"It's Syracuse, New York."

"Syracuse?" The young man's chin was squared by a ruler, and noticeably thrust forward.

"Yes; know anybody there?"

Hilliard laughed unpleasantly and resumed his former attitude.

"Why, it so happens," he said, biting the words off sharply, "that I was born and brought up in Syracuse, and if there's any one place in the world I care less about than any other place that's the one . . . I'm sorry, but I'm afraid we're at cross purposes from here on."

Harmon showed his vexation. "What's the matter? Haven't you kept on good terms with your old friends?"

"No."

Harmon frowned. "Well, is it so bad you couldn't do any business there? How do they remember you?"

The young man regarded him stonily for an instant; then gradually a far-away expression crept into his eyes; he started and caught his breath.

"I'll let you judge for yourself." He brought out a flat leather wallet, from which he extracted a tiny photograph, torn from an old passport. "What do you think of that?"

Harmon scanned it superficially. "Nice-looking boy. Who is he?"

"It was taken two years ago," said Hilliard, resting his elbows on the table. "You wanted to know how they remember me, so I'm showing you. That's a photograph of me, taken two years ago."

"Impossible!" Harmon snorted it. "That doesn't look any more like you than . . . than I do! Let's omit the comedy; I'm talking business!"

The young man's mouth curled. "Don't be mistaken, Mr. Harmon—there's very little joking in me when I ever mention Syracuse." Harmon shivered at the tone, but waved the photograph in scoffing accusation.

"You're not trying to sit there and tell me—"

"I told you I was in hospital for nearly a year, I believe," said Hilliard jolly. "It was shrapnel—across the face. As a matter of fact I didn't have much of any face left. But the surgeons—they're pretty clever. Yes—they're clever!" Hilliard's eyes were needle points. "They make a man over from his own photograph. In my own case I preferred it differently. So when they asked me for something to use as a pattern in remodeling me I gave 'em this!" He tossed out a picture postcard, soiled and frayed.

"Well, that's where the trouble began. They cursed me up and down for a . . . still that part of it won't interest you!" His eyes were blazing now, and his voice shook with passion. "Naturally I hadn't meant it as a—d—d literal as all that . . . but they had me under either before I could help myself . . . and they went through with it . . . and cursed me some more afterward . . . They couldn't copy it exactly, of course, but they did the best they could. . . . Gloated over it! Took infinite pains to make it perfect . . . and sneered at me while they did it! Sneered—and laughed. . . . Well, you've got the results in front of you. That's what I was—and that's what I am! What's your opinion now?" The last sentence came snarling through set teeth.

The broker's pupils had dilated grossly; his eyes wandered vacantly from the photograph to the postcard and back to Hilliard's face. His whole imagination was pinned down and crushed; he swore softly under his breath and wet his lips.

"It's a . . . a miracle!" he stammered. "A miracle!"

"The photograph," said Hilliard harshly, "is the way they remember me up in Syracuse. Do you think they'd ever recognize me now?"

"It's a miracle . . . It's paralyzing!" . . . Harmon swallowed hard, and looked down almost fearfully at the time-worn postcard. "There's so much difference . . . nobody'd ever think of it without knowing . . . but when you see the original! . . . It . . . It knocks me all in a heap! It's staggering! And they did that to you! Just to think they could do that to you! . . . I've got to have a drink!"

Hilliard motioned impatiently, but his fit of rage was slowly going down.

"There's no miracle about it at all. It was good plastic surgery. If they'd sent me out looking as I used to you wouldn't call it a miracle, would you? No. It's only what they did do that makes it staggering. But it's clever—oh, yes—clever! And you can see for yourself how few marks of it there are."

He drew a long breath and managed to smile again; but the effect was shocking, for while his features were composed and kindly his eyes were venomous. "Well, I certainly never intended to go to Syracuse again for pleasure, but if there's enough compensation to pay for the risk I'm not afraid to try it on . . . business." His accent sent cold chills coursing down Harmon's spine. "In fact now that I think of it, it ought to be rather amusing!"

The broker was striving to pull himself together.

"But why on earth didn't you have 'em use your own picture for a copy . . . if they're as clever as . . . Oh!" He stopped short and his chin dropped. "Oh! Is that the answer?"

"Yes," said Hilliard, reclaiming the two photographs. "That's the answer. I didn't mind starting over again only—"

He sighed and inhaled mightily. "Only take my advice, Mr. Harmon, and don't lose your temper just before an operation."

Harmon breathed more freely, but he was still in violent intellectual distress. He round face was vapid with awe, and he was tonguing his lips in constant nervousness, for the complete possibility of the situation was creeping over him.

"If that's the case," he ventured, "why . . . they surely needn't recognize your name either, Mr. Hilliard, need they? I mean, if you had any idea of going back to your home town incognito, as it were—"

"They wouldn't recognize anything about me," said Hilliard dryly. His teeth, showing at the moment, were white and regular as a young wolf's.

"We won't discuss that side of it just now, though. But if I go back, I'm incognito—and don't make any mistake about it. Is that quite clear?"

Harmon swallowed again.

"They'd recognize your voice, wouldn't they?"

"I had to get used to this one myself. Something went wrong with my vocal cords, and the antrum on both sides was hurt; it seemed to have an effect like changing a sounding-board."

"So! And you used to be fatter in the face, didn't you? How about your general size, and so on?"

"I've taken on twenty-five pounds; my face is a lot thinner, but there's a reason. It hasn't grown on me; it was manufactured. Incidentally, while I think of it my stride's shortened six inches. That's another identification gone. Bullet in my knee. I don't exactly limp, but—"

Harmon was beaming now, and flushed with excitement.

"That's great. Oh! that's wonderful! Wonderful! Nobody'll know you from Adam! Thunder and lightning, what a chance—what a chance! Hold on—how well do you know the big men in Syracuse? Well enough to know what their weak points are? Well? Know Cullen? Know the Durants? Know Embree and McEachern and Cooke? Know—"

"At one time," said Hilliard, with sudden tragedy in his eyes, "all those people you've just named were about the closest friends I had in the world."

"Well, if you've got nerve enough to try to pass yourself off as a stranger, why—"

"Just a moment!" The young man's gesture, although calm, was nevertheless commanding. "Now listen! I lived in Syracuse twenty-six years! If I ever had any friends there I've lost 'em now. I—"

"Whose fault was it?"

"Whose fault? Don't make me laugh! The point is that my friends and I aren't on speaking terms."

"Go ahead," said Harmon, satisfied. "Do they know you went to France?"

"They don't know anything. I left between two days. I've never written anybody so much as a line to tell where I was, or what I was doing. I went over on a tramp. A French lieutenant got me into the army, and I didn't give a d—n whether I got killed or not—and then I got this."

His hand was on his cheek, where a long scar crossed it. "And for over a year I've been hoping that somehow, sometime, I could get back at a few of those men . . . principally Cullen and Durant and McEachern. Get back hard—you understand! Perhaps this suggestion of yours will give me the opening. Perhaps it will. That's what I'm wondering. I'm thinking it over. That's all."

Harmon controlled himself; his voice, when it came, was low and seductive.

"Well," he said, "could you get back any harder at people who haven't treated you right than by going back up there and making good? By putting something over on 'em—something big, you understand—and making those fellows look cheap? That's better than using a club on 'em, isn't it? Coals of fire, man, coals of fire! Show 'em what you can do—and take your satisfaction in that. Don't fight your enemies—you don't have to! Make a profit out of 'em! And then . . . oh, well, I don't care what you do after that—come out in the open and give 'em the ha-ha or not, just as you like. Could anything be a neater little come-back than that? More sort of Biblical and thorough? Poetic justice? Could it?"

Hilliard was still alert and rigid.

"There's a good selling argument. And something good to sell?"

"As straight as a shoestring, and as sure as you're a foot high. And if you can't do business on this basis, you couldn't sell gold eagles for a dollar apiece! That's flat!"

"So I could go back—and honestly make good? All the way? Prove what I can do? And not have any back-fire in it?"

"And have a chance," said Harmon, nodding, "to put yourself in right again. That's what my whole idea was. If you're going to cash in on your hard luck, boy, you've got to speak up. That's my policy. Cash in on this thing the doctors did for you! Let's play it together, son. If it's a sort of whitewashing you want, I'll help you. I don't care a continental what you did to get in wrong in Syracuse—it's success that counts. Nothing else but success. Is it a bargain?"

Hilliard shut his teeth tight; reflected; yielded abruptly.

"It's a bargain!" he said. "I'm with you!"

"Good! Now—"

"One moment! Let's be frank with each other. Don't get any impression that I've done anything that's—"

"Mr. Hilliard, you don't have to talk like that to me! I've had you sized up from the start, haven't I?"

"Yes, but I wanted you to know—"

"But I do know, son! Wild oats, sort of. Am I right, or am I wrong? That's why I'm banking on you. People turned up their noses, maybe. Said things. Gossip. I know that sort of business. And you're sore—naturally. Well, this'll poltice everybody, including yourself. Go on back to your old friends. You're a new man; they won't know you. Make 'em new friends—and there you are. Oh, here's another suggestion. What would you say to no salary at all, twenty per cent commission, and no limit to your expense account? But you pay back half of your expenses out of your earned commissions. On—say, a three months' tryout. How does that strike you?"

"It . . . why, I don't see what you're driving at."

"Because," said Harmon, "you're worth more than I thought you were. How do I know? I've watched your eyes, son! You're going into Syracuse with the finest plan, the finest front, and the finest opportunity I've ever dreamed of in all my life! And besides that, you've got a spur that even I couldn't give you. . . . How are you fixed for money?"

"I'm not fixed at all. I'm broke."

Harmon fished for his bill-book, and folded two notes into a small compass.

"Here! Bind the bargain. Don't worry—it's an advance. I know who I can trust—that's my longest suit, son. Give me a receipt, if you like. Better not speak to me again until we land. Never know who's aboard that might see you later. Come to my office at ten o'clock the morning after we're docked. And—"

He laughed in patent relief. "You know, son," he said, "I'm a pretty wise old bird, and there's not much that fools me, but . . . right up to the last second, I wasn't quite sure whether you'd take that job or not. If the surgeon that mended you could only have doctored your eyes, son—if he could only have doctored your eyes! Whew!"

He stared again at Hilliard, and nodded soberly. "Wonderful—perfectly wonderful," he said, fascinated. "When you smile at me like that, I sort of feel as though I ought to get up and take off my hat and apologize to you, and I'm hanged if I know what for. . . . Perhaps they overdid it a trifle . . . copied that picture too well . . . why don't you see if you can't grow a mustache . . . ?"

CHAPTER III.

According to the railway schedule, the journey from New York should have taken about six hours; as a matter of fact, it took seven, and yet to Hilliard, who hadn't once left the observation platform, it was accomplished with the speed of a projectile.

The dramatic value of his purpose had seized him, and partly because he was going home, he was temporarily relieved of perceptive judgment, whether of time, space, or attendant circumstances.

"Now, whatever else you do, son," Harmon had adjured him, "stick to the story! First, last, and always—you stick to the story! It's your own business, in a way; and in another way, it's my business; but you keep your head clear and don't let anybody shake you on the facts, and we're both all right. Of course, you're starting out by lying—but it's a good lie. You're justified. As far's the rest of the world's concerned, you're a new man. You're just born. Well, you've got a perfect right to be whatever you want to be. Nobody can prove you aren't what you say you are. Just remember these three things: One, capitalize your experience, and fill 'em full of war-talk—they'll love it; two, capitalize your position, and stick to your story—they'll swallow it whole, and never dream of the answer; three, capitalize your face, and smile, man, smile!" Here he had planted his hand between Hilliard's shoulder-blades with a thump which was meant to be fraternal and heartening. "And we'll both make good until the cows come home—and I think I hear 'em coming. Don't forget—they can't stop you! It's your second shot at life, and you've got the cards stacked the way you want 'em."

"The only thing," Hilliard had said, "is the . . . the story!"

"D—n it, Hilliard, what's the matter with you? Aren't you justified?"

"Y-e-e-s, but so much of it sounds unnecessary to me—every now and then, I wish we could have thought up something else, that's all."

"Well, did we?"

"No, but—"

"Then don't be a rank quitter! It was your own idea; and I say it's darned clever; stand up to it. You will, won't you?"

"Oh, I'll do that, Mr. Harmon. I've got to."

"Yes, you've got to. And just keep smiling, son; that's all. That's what I hired you for—start off smiling, and the battle's half won already. . . . That's it! Keep your nerve, son! . . . Good-by!" And here he had staggered Hilliard by another friendly buffet between the shoulder blades, and swung him cordially into the runway, and disappeared.

On the observation platform, Hilliard had ensconced himself behind a newspaper and a cigar, and tried to hold his emotions and his imagination in check. His purpose, now that it was crystallized, brought him no aftermath of shame for what he was about to do—he was conscience-stricken only in respect to what he had done already, long ago; and his nervousness was due merely to his fear that he might fail in his purpose.

After all, what was there to discourage him? He had worked out a system of campaign as clear, as definite, and as inexorable as any field-marshal could ever hope to devise—and perfect. He was simply bringing home one vital principle of trench fighting—to rely on indirect fire. That was it—to fight! To fight for reputation lost, and to defend his new advantage gained. The end would amply justify the means; or if the end by any chance proved to be disastrous, why, there was another principle he must remember—no quarter given or asked for.

"I'll teach 'em," he said unsmilingly to the blurred landscape. "I'll show 'em whether I can make good or not! Time! Time! That's all I want—time!"

At the depot, among the private cars and taxicabs, a motor omnibus bore on its side the name of the newest hotel, which was his immediate objective; but for reasons which he couldn't have explained, he avoided it, and signaled to a taxi. As the car came to a standstill at the motor entrance to the hotel, he managed by great exercise of will-power to maintain his mood of arrogant conquest, and it was imperative for him to maintain it, inasmuch as his first ordeal was so soon to come. More than that, he had an ancient grudge against this hostelry, for it had successively declined to continue his credit, refused to honor his checks, and, toward the last, had politely suggested that he refresh himself somewhere else. One of his most galling memories was connected with this very entrance; his cheeks grew hot as he fought the vision down.

"Now!" said Hilliard, on the outer threshold.

A stranger in his home town.

Lignum Vitae for Propellers.

While inspecting the head of a golf club or fitting a caster to the dining room table, few landmen realize they are handling wood from the West Indian gualacum, or lignum vitae tree, says Popular Mechanics magazine.

Fewer realize that this same wood has been used to make propeller shaft bearings for every battleship and ocean liner on the high seas. This wood, alone of the thousands upon the earth, will survive the grinding rotation of the great shafts. The reason is found on examining a lignum vitae log. The sap cells are seen to be full of heavy, solidified resin. Successive layers of fiber are arranged obliquely to each other, making it impossible to split the log.

POULTRY FACTS.

OAT SPROUTER FOR POULTRY

Successful Chicken Raisers Beginning to Appreciate Value of Green Feed in Winter.

All poultry raisers are beginning to appreciate the value of sprouting oats for hens in winter. I made a sprouter of my own as shown in the drawing, says a writer in an exchange. It is a box 20 by 20 inches and 36 inches high. It is large enough to supply 50 to 75 hens with sprouted oats every other day. There are six drawers in the box, each two inches deep with window screen for bottoms. A is a funnel into which warm water may be poured into the square box B which is full of small holes in the bottom. I put about one-half inch of oats in each pan, then pour a gallon of warm water through a funnel into the pan B, from which the water trickles down through the oats in all the drawers and finally collects in the lower pan

Homemade Oat Sprouter.

C, which is water tight. D is a lamp below the pan C and should be regulated so the oats in the lower drawer will not get warmer than 85 or 90 degrees. The oats should be watered each morning and night, with warm water.

The four holes in the side furnish ventilation for the lamp. In one week the sprouts will be three to four inches high, and may be fed. Begin with the lower drawer, and after feeding the contents refill with oats from the pan E in which they have been soaking for 24 hours. Move the other drawers down and put the last one filled on top. I find one feed every other day to be enough.

HENS AS MORTGAGE LIFTERS

Feathered Tribe Would Prove as Profitable as Hogs if Given Same Attention.

With the same care, systematic attention and scientific feeding given the poultry flocks as are given your hogs, the feathered tribe would prove to be as much of "mortgage-lifters" as the four-footed beasts. Poultry will not stand for neglect any more than your live stock.

DISPOSE OF EARLY PULLETS

Fowls Hatched Last Winter Will Molt About January First and Should Be Marketed.

Pullets hatched in January and February are the ones that lay in the summer and fall when the old hens are molting. It will be well not to depend on these to continue laying through the winter, however, as they probably will molt about the first of January and should be disposed of at that time.

FIND MARKET FOR BROILERS

Good Thing May Be Made of Plump Young Chicks Weighing Three-Quarters to a Pound.

If your farm is near a city of large hotels, restaurants and club houses, a good thing may be made of plump young chicks, termed squab broilers. At seven to eight weeks old when weighing three-quarters to a pound each they often bring as much as one dollar a pair.

POULTRY NOTES

Don't feed the chickens in a dirty, filthy place.

It pays to watch the flock closely in the fall, winter and early spring.

Clean the floors of the hen houses every few days; don't allow the trash to accumulate.

Perhaps some hens and pullets would be much better layers if they could select their owners.

Leghorns at 5½ months, and the larger breeds of Rocks and Reds at 6½ months, will begin egg production.

It is much more economical and profitable to feed a variety of feeds to poultry, than it is to depend on one or two grains.

Chemists find that eggs simply are water, protein and ash and that more than one-half the egg is water, so it is apparent that sufficient water is a necessary consideration.

No. 7463

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
LAND COURT

To Gabriel Costanza, Lucy M. Loring, Pasquale Garofalo, Filomena Garofalo, Frank H. Holmes, Abby J. Bicknell, Arthur C. Bicknell, Marinda D. Denton, and James H. Flint, of Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk and said Commonwealth; Ruth L. Harrington and Mary L. Miles, of Quincy, in said County of Norfolk; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Nellie E. Raymond and Mildred R. South, of Braintree, in said County of Norfolk, to register and confirm their title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situate in said Weymouth, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point marked by a spike in a fence in the southeasterly side of Shawmut Street forty-seven and 78-100 (47.78) feet distant north-easterly from a private way, the line runs southeasterly fifty-four and 70-100 (54.70) feet to an old post; thence continuing southeasterly thirty-two and 86-100 (32.86) feet to a spike in a post; thence continuing southeasterly twenty-seven and 70-100 (27.70) feet to a point marked by a nail in a fence; thence turning and running northerly by a fence and wall sixty-two and 12-100 (62.12) feet to a point; thence northerly but more easterly fifteen and 15-100 (15.15) feet to a point; thence westerly sixty-three and 83-100 (63.83) feet to a point, and thence continuing westerly but more northerly thirty-eight and 50-100 (38.50) feet to a spike in a post on the southeasterly side of Shawmut Street; thence southeasterly by the southeasterly line of Shawmut Street by three courses, twelve and 19-100 (12.19) feet, thirty-five and 21-100 (35.21) feet and forty-seven and 87-100 (47.87) feet. Being bounded southwesterly by land of Lucy M. Loring and Pasquale Garofalo et al; easterly by land of Frank H. Holmes; northerly by Pasquale Garofalo et al and Frank H. Holmes and northwesterly by Shawmut Street; and containing 9129 square feet, more or less.

Petitioners admit the above described land is subject to a right to pass and repass, cart and drive, when necessary, to his own land, granted to Lovell Bicknell and his heirs, and assigns, over the northerly end of the above described land, as shown on the plan hereinafter mentioned.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the sixteenth day of February, A. D. 1920, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifteenth day of January, in the year nineteen hundred and twenty.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

CLARENCE C. SMITH, Recorder.

AT BATES OPERA HOUSE

As wholesome and refreshing as a mountain breeze on a spring day is the story unfolded in the picturization of Harold Bell Wright's celebrated novel of "The Shepherd of the Hills," which comes to the Bates Opera House, Wednesday, Feb. 4, matinee and evening.

Through it all runs a sentiment of buoyant optimism and a sturdy faith in the finer qualities of human nature that is splendidly inspiring in its effect. So simple in outline, yet so true to the rugged but sincere human nature it portrays is, "The Shepherd of the Hills," that its popularity is readily explained.

It deals intimately with the homely lives of the Ozark dwellers when luxury was unknown and when the rough hard work of pioneer existence was met with fortitude and industry. In its heart warming fashion it tells of the stranger who comes to the little community from a more pretentious life and how from a simple tender of sheep, he becomes a shepherd of men.

With such a splendid subject matter as this, the scenes follow each other in kaleidoscopic variety, forming a picture drama which is being viewed by thousands of theatre-goers with wonder and intense interest.

ARLINGTON THEATRE

On Monday, Feb. 2, John Craig's new and quite distinguished company will make its first appearance at the Arlington Theatre, Boston, in the special production of "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," the drama by Harry Gribble that made such a sensational success when Mr. Craig first presented it for three performances early in the season, just as an experiment. It was one of the most successful try-outs on record, critics and playgoers being in complete accord regarding the popular merit of the play and also regarding the triumph scored by Mary Young in the leading role. To support Miss Young, who will be starred in this dramatic story of the adventures of an extremely temperamental actress whose son goes off to war to forget a romance his mother has shattered, Mr. Craig has engaged a company of metropolitan caliber, which will be seen at leading theatres in New York, Chicago and other important cities when the engagement at the Arlington is over.

WEYMOUTH WITNESSES

The Names of Weymouth Persons Familiar To All

Who are the witnesses—Residents of Weymouth who have had kidney backache, kidney ills, bladder ills; who have used Doan's Kidney Pills. These witnesses endorse Doan's.

One Weymouth resident who speaks is Peter Fowler, 17 Norfolk Street. He says: "I suffered from a lame back and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills made my back well and I have had no more suffering from it. Since using Doan's, my kidneys have acted regularly."

NEARLY FOUR YEARS LATER. Mr. Fowler said: "I always keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand and they never fail to relieve any attacks of backache I have."

—Clarke Alden of Park street is able to be at work again, having recovered from an attack of the measles.

—Mrs. Rose E. Holbrook was presented with a beautiful pendant by chapter 123, W. M. L., in appreciation of her services as installation officer, at a public installation held in G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth, Wednesday evening.

—The Y. P. C. U. of the Second Universalist church had charge of the service in the church Sunday morning. The vested choir, directed by Miss Annie Deane gave a good musical program, with Mrs. Fish at the organ. In the evening, Rev. J. S. Pearson gave an illustrated lecture on "Ireland, the Beautiful." The weather prevented a very large audience.

—Pilgrim Circle, C. F. of A., held their regular meeting in their new rooms at Clapp's hall, Monday evening. Grand Chief Companion Cassie Cromwell of Dorchester and Grand Marshall Hilma O'Brien of Quincy attended in their official capacity. A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

—Mrs. B. A. Bennett of Union street has returned from a visit with her son, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bennett, of Taunton.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bernhart and family have moved from Central street to Pond street.

—Roy E. Sherman of Pleasant street has accepted a position as foreman of the packing room at the Stetson Shoe Co., succeeding Mr. F. Irving Loud, who resigned. Employees of Mr. Loud's department presented him with a purse of gold in recognition of his efficient services.

—Mrs. Thomas Nudd of West street was a week end guest of Mrs. Stanford York at Wollaston.

—James, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Holbrook, is seriously ill at his parents home on Pleasant street.

—Marshall Abbott of Park street is nursing a fractured arm sustained while cranking his automobile.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Cullinane of Central street entertained their daughter, Mary, a student at Brighton Seminary, over Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miner, who have been making their home with Mr. and Mrs. George Sargent, have moved to Providence, R. I. Levangie Brothers of Weymouth purchased the business at Independence Square.

—Mrs. G. C. Andrews, and Mrs. R. E. Holbrook were the guests Sunday of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Carlton of Chelsea, who celebrated their 49th wedding anniversary.

—Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

FEED THE BIRDS

The real old-fashioned New England winter we are having has been a delight to all lovers of winter sports. The children have been enjoying to the utmost all of the healthy winter pleasures that make red cheeks and good appetites.

But the birds have been the sufferers, and some have been found dead during the height of the recent big storm. All lovers of birds, and others not so inclined, can aid our feathered friends to exist while the snow is on the ground, by putting crumbs on a receptacle and placing it where it will do the most good.

300-500 Chicks—One Flock
One Heater—One Building

BUY OR HATCH 300 to 500
B chicks all at one time.

Put them with one Candeel Colony Brooder, all together in one building. Attend the coal fire once or twice a day.

Set the Automatic Temperature Regulator when you start the Brooder and it keeps a correct heat continually, requiring adjustment only when the chicks get older and need less heat. A turn of a screw does it.

RESULT: Chicks and buildings always safe from fire. The largest possible number of birds brought to strong maturity. Much time, labor and fuel saved and greater profit at the end of the season.

SPECIAL FEATURES: All cast iron heater that lasts a lifetime. Large 12-inch grate—the safe size. Safety Grate Shaker. Sealed Base. Swinging Hopper Section that makes it easy to get at the heater. All-woven-wool felt curtain, guaranteed for 5 years.

Satisfy yourself that this is the safest, surest and most economical way to raise the most of your chicks. Come to my poultry plant and see the Candeel Colony Brooder and how it operates.

THOUSANDS PROCLAIM THE MERITS OF PE-RU-NA

Read Their Letters

Mrs. Martha C. Dale, R. F. D. 1, Cannon, Del. writes: "I am entirely cured of chronic catarrh of the stomach and bowels by PE-RU-NA."

Mr. J. Bayer, Glendale, Oregon: "There is no medicine like PE-RU-NA for catarrhal deafness."

Mrs. Kate Marquis, Middleburg, Ohio: "PE-RU-NA cured me of catarrh of the head and throat."

Mr. J. H. Collins, Wesson, Mississippi: "PE-RU-NA makes me feel vigorous and able to work without that tired, weak feeling I usually have otherwise."

Mrs. P. Ludvigsen, Austin, Minnesota: "I got rid of my liver trouble and can eat anything since taking PE-RU-NA."

Mrs. L. Hearing, 283 East 169th St., New York City: "For catarrh of the head and stomach, I have found PE-RU-NA better than any other medicine."

Mr. W. H. Edgar, 49 Cooper St., Atlanta, Georgia: "PE-RU-NA cured me after I had suffered fifteen years with rheumatism."

Mrs. Leona Dodd, R. No. 3, Medon, Tennessee: "PE-RU-NA is a grand medicine for coughs and colds."

So many diseases are due to catarrh and catarrhal conditions, makes PE-RU-NA the best medicine in the world to have on hand for emergencies and general health protection. Thousands of families are never without a bottle of PE-RU-NA or a box of PE-RU-NA Tablets in the medicine cabinet. That is the safe way.

You can buy PE-RU-NA anywhere in tablet or liquid form.

WAS DISCOURAGED

St. Charles Man Tells How He Suffered Before Doan's Cured Him.

"Heavy strains on my back and being exposed to all kinds of weather, weakened my kidneys," says John S. Shelton of St. Charles, Mo. "The misery in my back was constant and I had to get up several times during the night to pass the kidney secretions. I got no rest night or day and lost twenty-two pounds in weight. My eyes burned as if there were fire in them. I also had dizzy spells and would feel as if I were going to pitch forward. Sharp catches would take me in my back as if someone were drawing a sharp knife into my back. My kidneys were so weak I had no control over them and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I had pains in my bladder too. I was discouraged. I tried different remedies but received no benefit. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and when I did so I was soon relieved of my misery. Doan's cured me."

Mr. Shelton

At length, with perspiration streaming into eyes already half blinded by dust, Hank stood still. A great calm descended. "This," he panted grimly, "is no place for a minister's son."

With one despairing glance at the whirling dervishes, he darted for the stairs and went down, three steps at a jump. At the foot he just missed collision with a woman's figure.

"Mollie!"

"Is it—robbers?"

"Worse," he grunted.

As her speech had died, he sketched the battle of Krueger's Crossing, but before he was half way through the girl was laughing until her sides were aching.

"Yes," he cut in, "but how about the hordes they're raising up there? Come on out!" He led her forth upon the tiny platform at the side of the tower. "Look at that!"

His finger was pointing to a semaphore to the north of the cabin. It was wabbling up and down in a helpless way which suggested an old woman signaling a street car.

GOING SOME AT KRUGER'S

By FRANK A. WARD

(Copyright.)

Hank looked at the monkey, perched on the window sill, and the monkey looked back. There matters rested. "Maybe you're real," he gasped, "but then—"

He shook his head as if, in the dim light of the single oil lamp, he could not be certain. Whistling to keep up his courage, he let his weight fall in the rickety chair and picked up the pen.

He paused, slanting an eye at the visitor sitting there like a graven Buddha. Never in his nine months at Krueger's Crossing had he seen such a phenomenon. It frightened him.

Meanwhile the creature shifted a bit on the roost. Instantly Hank robbed his eyes, and sat up with a jerk; for now two monkeys grew where one had grown before, and a swaying branch outside showed their means of entrance.

For days he had been in the depths of melancholia, and the climax had come that evening when he settled down to write his letter of resignation.

As to reasons for his leaving, there were several.

First, ambition—not to be gratified by fifty-five dollars a month and a post in a signal-tower, placed where monotony was king and a passing tramp was an event. Second, third, fourth and all the rest, there was Mollie Carey, she of the frightened eyes and rounded face, daughter of the nearest farmer.

But it was upon monkeys that the operator's mind was busy just now and creeping each moment a shade nearer the edge of masculine hysteria.

The girl's fine face became serious under the sunbonnet.

The semaphore stopped its wagging, and after a slight pause they heard the clank of one of the cross-over switches. The clamor broke out anew from the garrison in the tower. One of the monkeys danced a war-dance on the window sill.

"It's a fine wind-up," Hank estimated, with a grin.

The girl was puzzled. "What do you mean?"

"I'm quitting—that's all. I wrote the bloomin' president of their road that I'm through."

"But why?" she had to know.

"Why? Because of you. We could never live on the pay I'm getting in this hole. It's you, Mollie, dear—Oh, stop that racket, you ring-tailed baboons!"

But at that instant came another sound. It was a long-drawn shriek, echoing about among the hills.

"Good Lord!" Hank cried. "The G. M.'s special—and the cross-overs are—Heaven knows how!"

Only one thing remained, but he was too late.

Even as he turned to dash upstairs for his lantern a third blast cut the air, and he heard the barking roar of the engine die away.

In its place was the grind of the brakes as their flanges bit the wheels. He gazed, stupefied. Suddenly he remembered those lever-throwing apes.

"Saved!" he burst out almost hysterically. "They've set the signal at 'danger'!"

From one of the brightly lighted cars a knot of men jumped down and ran swiftly across the tracks.

"What in the name of the Gadarene swine," shouted the first on the platform, "d'you mean by holding up my special? Who gave you orders?"

Any awe Hank might have had for the general manager was swept from him.

"Monkeys," he answered curtly.

"What?" The rest of the official statement was mercifully indistinct. He turned now to the girl for the first time.

"Is the man crazy, or just plain drunk?"

"Neither," she retorted, "and if you knew what he'd gone through for your old railroad you wouldn't be insulting him now!"

"Perhaps you would be kind enough to explain this talk about monkeys giving him his orders," came the G. M.'s, withering fire.

Hank took up the burden. "You can see for yourself," said he, "if you look at the tower."

They all looked.

The whole ship's crew of simians, attracted by the arrival of the train, had gathered in the windows, their bodies silhouetted against the light in the room.

"Now," Hank went on, "perhaps you'll believe me. They came—three of 'em—about an hour or so ago. I didn't pay much attention, because I thought they'd get tired and run away. So—"

"Hold on," broke in a gray-haired man with hard eyes. "Monkeys, young man, don't grow in this part of the world."

"Yes, they do," the operator patiently explained. "There's a farm about three miles north of here, where they keep all sorts of wild beasts. As I was saying, I didn't mind the three until they began running about the tower and trying to throw the levers like they'd seen me do. Then more of 'em dropped in. I chased 'em. One put the wires out of business, and—"

"I see," said the gray-haired man, whose eyes were now twinkling a bit; "they made a monkey out of you. Well, gentlemen, we'd better drive out the foe and get the railroad in operation again. Here—all of you!—grab sticks or anything that's handy and mount to the siege. Come on!"

But at the tremendous racket of the attacking party as it climbed the stairs, broke ranks, with cries of terror, broke ranks. Head over heels they piled out of windows and raced away, a medley of waving tails and scampering feet.

"My word," sighed the president as he sank into the only chair and held his sides. "I haven't had so much fun since the cat came home! Hallo! What's this?"

In his hand was the operator's letter, blotted by the tracks of monkeys which had raced across the table.

Hank, trembling, and with Mollie's hand in his own, nodded bravely as the official's eyes bored into his.

"Resign!" snorted the great man. His eyes, now suddenly softened, rested for a moment on the girl, who grew scarlet. "Hun! Seems to me you need a job now more than ever."

"I had another chance, sir, with a firm in Kansas City," Hank began, "and the pay here is so small—"

"Pay? Is that all the trouble? Here, George," the official queried, "anything against this man's record?"

The general manager shook his head. "He's been always well reported to me," was his answer.

"Good! What's your name? Well, Redwood, I'll see that you're put on the day shift at Curzon, where the pay's a hundred a month."

"He'll accept, all right," said Mollie.

Before Hank's trembling lips could be shaped to offer thanks the president's party at a word from their leader, had disappeared down the stairs.

As the special gathered speed and coughed its way into the darkness, a troop of monkeys, drunk with freedom, was scaring the assorted wits out of the inmates of a farm-house three miles away.

But Hank didn't care.

Why? He was too busy thanking Mollie.

HEADACHE Often Caused by Acid-Stomach

Yes, indeed, more often than you think. Because ACID-STOMACH, starting with indigestion, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, bloating and gas, if not checked, will eventually affect every vital organ of the body. Severe, blinding, splitting headaches are, therefore, of frequent occurrence as a result of this upset condition.

Take EATONIC. It quickly banishes acid-stomach with its sour blood, pain and gas. It aids digestion—helps the stomach get full strength from every mouthful of food you eat. Millions of people are miserable, weak, sick and ailing because of ACID-STOMACH. Poisons, created by partly digested food charged with acid, are absorbed into the blood and distributed throughout the entire system. This often causes rheumatism, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble, ulcers and even cancer of the stomach. It robs its victims of their health, undermines the strength of the most vigorous.

If you want to get back your physical and mental strength—be full of vim and vigor—enjoy life and be happy, you must get rid of your acid-stomach.

Is EATONIC you will find the very help you need and it's guaranteed. So get a big 50c box from your druggist today. If it fails to please you, return it and he will refund your money.

"GLADDIE"

By JEANIE L. DARLING.

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Hillcrest people have not yet forgotten the eccentricities of Peter Tromp. When he built his house, the best situated in the village, it had two fronts. One, with a big piazza, faced the street; here Katie, his wife, sat and sewed or visited. The other faced the meadows behind the hill town; here, silent and moody, Peter used to sit and gaze at the faraway blue outlines of beautiful eastern mountains.

They were not as friendly as husband and wife should be—Peter and Katie weren't. There were no children to bind their hearts together; then, too, Katie loved her neighbors and Peter did not. He would not even go to the little meeting house on Sabbath days, and Katie's heart was bitter about this. The minister once expostulated, but Peter led him through his house and onto the back, or rather the front porch.

"That there's my church, and good enough for me," he answered, pointing toward the mountains, which lay serene, majestic, understanding, in the purple-red colors of sunset, and no more would he say.

Two days after Emma Simonds died, Katie went into Peter's garden and found Emma's four-year-old daughter there playing "mudpies" with Peter. They seemed the best of chums.

At sight of Katie Peter drew the bare-footed, roguish-eyed child down beside him. His great, gaunt body trembled with tenderness.

"I shall keep her," he said defiantly. Katie looked at Gladdie's irresponsible face and shuddered.

"The idea!" she objected. "You're crazy, Peter. Her aunt Ella'll have to take her. It's mighty risky takin' other folks' young uns to bring up. Besides, I don't have no time to look after a child, anyway. And what would the neighbors think?"

Peter's eyes blazed. "Hillcrest ain't my judge," he answered shortly.

Peter's wife smiled sardonically. "Well, s'long 's she don't bother me, she can stay," and she went back into the house.

Peter and Gladdie sat on, hand in hand, on the steps.

"Daddy," she said joyously, and stroked his face. He gathered her in to his arms and she cuddled up against his breast and slept. The sun went down and the mountains took on vague, haunting outlines in the darkening distance; peace lay over the valley world, and Peter's eyes hungrily took in the sight until his soul was satisfied, and he, too, slept, his head against the porch railing. They were still there when Katie, returning from an evening call, came out and found them.

"So this is the way you're goin' to take care of her, is it, Peter?" she flared. "She's probably got her death of cold." Oh, yes, Kate knew how her words were hurting the man she had married. "She'll go to her Aunt Ella's tomorrow, just as sure as the sun comes up."

She took the sleeping child and bundled her into the house. Peter followed, crestfallen, conscience struck. Not for worlds would he have harmed the child he was learning to love passionately. In time he got back some of his dignity.

"You let me have her," he commanded firmly. "I want to look after her myself, and I'm goin' to keep her, too," he added not so firmly.

"Till mornin'," Katie agreed, grimly, and went out to sit alone on her porch. Gladdie was wide awake now and her happy laughter came out to Katie. Somehow it drove the anger out of her heart and filled it with a strange desolate feeling.

"What's that, Daddy?" Gladdie was asking. Gladdie's up-bringing had been woefully deficient in some lines. "A night-gown? Is it Gladdie's, daddy?"

"It's Gladdie's tonight," she heard Peter say, gently. "We'll get Gladdie one of her own tomorrow."

"Who has it when Gladdie ain't here," the child persisted.

"Katie," Gladdie gruffly.

"Who's Katie, Daddy?"

"She's—she's," Katie knew her husband was groping for words, "she's your new mamma."

Katie rose angrily. To put such notions into the child's head!

"Peter," she called, "you harness Ned and take that young un to her aunt Ella's right off. She ain't goin' to stay here another minute. D'you hear me, Peter?"

Peter came out to the porch. "I ain't goin' to take her back, Katie," he breathed heavily.

"I want to kiss mamma good-night, too," a plaintive voice said and a little white figure, holding up a huge nightgown, stumbled between them, fumbled for Katie's skirt, and little arms reached up for her embrace.

Katie sank back into a chair, her legs shaking from the effects of her anger, I suppose. The little white figure climbed at once into her lap, and loving, warm, sweet, baby lips pressed ardently against her throat and mouth. Gladdie's up-bringing had not been neglected in some respects! With those magic kisses Katie's heart suddenly became a thing all tender.

Above the white figure, husband and wife looked into each other's eyes.

"Let's bring her up together, Peter," Katie faltered.

"I—we need you, Katie, both of us," he agreed.

SHE DYES HER OLD GARMENTS LIKE NEW*"Diamond Dyes" Make Faded, Shabby Apparel So Fresh and Stylish.

Don't worry about perfect results. Use "Diamond Dyes," guaranteed to give a new, rich, fadeless color to any fabric, whether it be wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods—dresses, blouses, stockings, skirts, children's coats, feathers—everything.

Direction Book with each package tells how to diamond dye over any color. To match any material, have dealer show you "Diamond Dye" Color Card.—Adv.

After-War Coffee.

People old enough to remember the Civil war are able to recall the fact that after the close of that conflict it was difficult and often impossible to obtain coffee. Various substitutes were used, such as parched rye, but one that was commonly utilized in Washington and many other cities was sweet potatoes. The latter were first roasted and allowed to burn somewhat on the outside. Then they were mashed in water and boiled. The water was thus transformed into coffee, by no means so unpalatable as might be imagined. Sugar in those days cost 25 cents a pound. But the sweet potato coffee required no sugar, and so was an economical drink.

A Shock for Father.

Tommy had a baby sister, about a month old. The parents told him that she had been found under a gooseberry bush. Tommy comes in from the garden, soiled and dirty. "What have you been doing?" asked father. "Digging around the gooseberry bushes," came the answer. "Did you find any baby?" Father winked at mother. "No," answered Tommy. "I was putting the last one back."—Exchange.

The Distributing Point.

"How is it that couple always seems to be in a pickle?" "I suppose they get it from their family jars."

HAIR FALLING? HERE IS WHERE IT SHOWS

Don't worry! Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair will grow strong, thick and long and appear soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant. Try it!—Adv.

Appropriate.

"What do you think are the best flowers for an April bride to carry?" "I would advise a shower bouquet."

As we grow more sensible, we refuse drug cathartics and take instead Nature's herb cure, Garfield Tea.—Adv.

Proof.

"Do you know Jones?" "I lent him a tenner this morning. I should say I do know him." "You lent him a tenner?" Then I should say you don't know him."

New Form of Torture.

"How did you enjoy your visit to the Bilthersbys?" "It was an ordeal."

"How so?" "I had to sit through 1,000 feet of the baby."

"What?" "Film, you know. They were showing me motion pictures of the little darling taken between the years of one and three."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

On the Right Side.

"I don't want to do anything wrong," said an elderly Shropshire woman who called upon an official of the ministry of food, "but when I die I should like my funeral to be properly carried out." She then confided that she had, in stock, her coffin and shroud, two bottles of whisky and three tins of salmon.

This cheerful soul was quite pleased when told that she was "on the right side" so long as she did not add to her stock.—London Chronicle.

So Considerate.

The traffic was at its height, and there were the usual piles of passengers' baggage on the platform. In the usual way the porters were bawling it about, while the owners mournfully looked on. Suddenly the station-master appeared, and, approaching one of the most vigorous baggage-smashing porters, shouted in stern tones: "Here! What do you mean by throwing those trunks about like that?"

The passengers plucked themselves to make sure that they were not dreaming, but they returned to earth when the official added: "Can't you see you're making big dents in the concrete platform?"

EUROPEANS ASKING FOR BIGGER BASEBALL BATS

Serbian and Roumanian convalescents were introduced to baseball by the American Y. M. C. A. representatives during the recent war. After considering the game from all angles, these persons gave it their heart-felt approval, but voted for larger bats, and balls that did not travel so swiftly.

STEEPLECHASE BACK ON A FIRM FOOTING

Cross Country Game Re-established on Eastern Tracks.

Certain That There Will Be Keen Competition and Large Fields in 1920 at Belmont, Aqueduct and Other Courses.

One of the most pleasing features of the 1919 racing season is the renewed interest in steeplechasing, the most picturesque branch of the sport.

Though it took some time to re-establish it, the cross-country game is now on a firm footing again, and it promises to be immensely and deservedly popular next season.

It was a regrettable feature of the racing on the metropolitan tracks that the steeplechase events were far below the average of other years both in the number and quality of the horses. This was unavoidable, as many of the owners of jumpers were in the service during the war and gave up racing for the time. The result was that when they returned it was necessary to establish the sport anew.

How well this has been accomplished was shown recently in Maryland when some of the new fences were brought out. These were horses developed for cross-country running since last spring, and consequently not yet at their best, but they showed enough to make it certain that there will be much better competition and larger fields in 1920 at Belmont park, Aqueduct and Saratoga.

More than 40 horses were trained for the jumps last year. A number of these have not yet had a public trial, though they have schooled well. But among those which have been tried are Mrs. Payne Whitney's Rol Crag, one of the very cleverest of the new crop. Esquilman, from the stable of Captain Ray Parr; War Paint and Twiford, owned by W. T. Wilkinson, and Houdini, from the string of jumpers owned by J. E. Widener.

Most of these named are three-year-olds which had shown speed over the flat but had the natural qualifications for jumping. As a rule, horses are not turned over to the steeplechase game until they have served their usefulness on the flat, and that accounts for the aged fences and the lack of class in many of the contests. There should be better racing with younger horses.

ALEXANDER WINS TRAP HONOR

Chicago Cub Pitcher Lands Championship of Cook County—Is Given Silver Trophy.

New honors for Grover Alexander. At a recent target tournament held in Chicago the pitcher of the Cubs won the championship of all Cook county against scores of gun sharps. In spite of wretched shooting conditions during the two days of the tournament

Grover Alexander.

Alexander broke 91 out of his 100 targets. He got a big silver mug of some sort as a trophy, all inscribed with the fact that he had won the trap-shooting championship for amateurs of Cook county.

BOXER TRIES FOR YALE TEAM

Amateur Heavyweight Champion of America Will Be Out for Position as Fullback.

Eddie Eagen, 1921, of Denver, amateur heavyweight champion boxer of America, will be out next season to win a place as fullback at Yale. He won a place as substitute this year. Eagen is an all-around athlete.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

It Is the Most Important Part of This Advertisement

Prices are still rising. It is not our purpose to attempt to explain it, justify it or criticize it. It is an absolute fact, however, and must be faced now. There is no store that can even hope to sell goods at present prices. It is only a question of how long present supplies will last. When these are replenished and when Spring goods arrive, the prices will be higher, and in many cases much higher than now. All the merchandise advertised for this sale is at the old price. Next lots, especially for Fall and Winter 1920, will be more, and from 15% to 50% more. That is the truth—the future will prove. You can buy now, and put away your purchases until next Fall and save thereby a considerable sum. The price of everything sold at this sale is guaranteed for six (6) months, with your money back, if your purchase now has not proven a money saver to you.
